JUST A PREVIEW. Next week helicopters, both private and those from the Canadian Forces search and rescue branch, will be putting down at either Lansdowne Junior high school or a field near Jubilee Hospital with 66 retarded children, complete with attendants and nurses, to be airlifted from Woodlands School on the mainland to the new Eric Martin Institute. It is hoped to complete the transfer in one day. (Robin Clarke photo).

14 POLICEMEN INJURED

Hayakawa Target of Rocks

BOSTON (AP) — Police with nightsticks twice routed some 200 rock-throwing militants who attempted to prevent a speech by S. I. Hayakawa, president of San Francisco State College, Thursday night at Northeastern University.

The demonstrators, waving Viet Cong flags and shouting obscenities, left the auditorium littered with glass from broken windows. Rocks smashed windows in other university buildings.

Thirty-one demonstrators were arrested; 14 policemen were treated at hospitals for minor injuries.

Hayakawa, who took a hard line with demonstrators at his college last year, endured steady heckling from militants in his audience of 1,300. He was shouted down frequently, and interrupted by others telling the hecklers to "shut up."

Police said many of the demonstrators were non-students who participated in earlier disturbances at Boston University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Hayakawa, speaking in the university's distinguished lecture series, departed from his text at one point to recall that in the 1930s "the brownshirts (Nazis) in Germany would go through colleges throwing out professors ahd disrupting learning.

"It was the brown-shirted youth then; today it is the SDS (Students for a Democratic Society)."

Shattered Glass, Nerves Follow Sonic Boom Battle

From AP-Reuters

Israeli planes damaged Egyptian oil installations in the Suez canal area Thursday and fought a duel of sonic booms with Syria late into the night.

Egypt said one civilian employee of its oil company was killed and 11 were wounded in the attack on the refinery at the southern end of the canal but did not say how much damage was done to equipment.

Lots of broken windows and frayed nerves resulted from the sonic duel.

It was the first attack on the Egyptian refinery since Israeli shelling in October, 1967, destroyed a large part of the plant.

WINDOWS SHATTERED

Syria began the Battle of the Bangs Thursday afternoon when a lone MiG-21 flew over Israel's chief port, Haifa. The Israeli military command said it did not bomb or strafe, but the sonic boom it created shattered hundreds of windows and caused a flood of phone calls to police stations. The plane escaped back to Syria.

Hundreds of people rushed out into the streets of Haifa, but there were no reports of panic and most people believed the plane was Israeli until they heard the news.

An hour later, an Israeli plane roared over Damascus and took a toll of windows there. Then after midnight Israeli planes flew over Damascus and four other cities in the north, Hamma, Homs, Latakia and Aleppo, Syria's second largest city, the Israelis reported.

A military spokesman in Damascus said the sonic raids in the middle of the night broke many windows but caused no injuries.

There also was a sonic boom over the biblical Lebanese port of Tyre near the Israeli border Thursday night, but no one seemed to know whose plane caused it.

The buzzing came after another day of intense Israeli air activity in which jets struck into Jordan Arab guerrilla positions and also at Egyptian military targets in the Suez area.

Long Beach First Goal

The provincial government isn't backing out of a deal with Ottawa to acquire land for a 35-mile-long national park on the lifeboat trail and the Effingham Islands, Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan said Thursday.

But the province won't move on land acquisition until Long Beach Park itself is dedicated, he said in an interview.

"We are giving first priority to the Long Beach area where there are already large areas of provincial and federal land assembled, and we have said we will make no further alienations or negotiations to acquire more land in the other areas in the meantime," Kiernan said.

The proposed 65-mile-long national marine park including the trail, the Effingham Islands at the entrance to Barkley Sound and Long Beach, was authorized by legislation passed last year.

1971 DEDICATION

The province hopes the first stage, Long Beach, will be dedicated as a national park in 1971.

Kiernan said the federal government realizes it would be impractical to build up all three parts of the park at the same time.

But he warned that acquisition of land along the lifeboat trail, from Port Renfrew to Bamfield, will be difficult because of the large number of Indian reservations, private holdings and timber operations in the area.

Salvador, Honduras Hostilities Erupt

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Hostilities broke out again between Honduras and El Salvador Thursday. Each claimed the other started the shooting. The two governments suspended peace talks in Costa Rica at which they had been trying to ease the aftermath of their 100-hour war last July.

Honduras said a "considerable number" of dead Salvadoreans were left in Honduran territory. El Salvador's defence minister, Gen. Fidel Torres, said he was waiting for casualty reports from the front.

El Salvador, smallest Spanish-speaking nation in the Western Hemisphere, claimed Honduran planes violated Salvadorean air space and then Honduran troops and armed civilians crossed the poorly-defined border. El Salvador said its troops repulsed the invaders after a three-hour battle.

Honduras said the first attack was made by 100 Salvadorean ground troops, around dawn, and five hours later Salvadorean planes bombed two villages. The Honduran foreign ministry said that after a battle of several hours, the Salvadorean troops "were defeated, leaving behind a considerable number of guardsmen dead in Honduran territory."

Armed conflict along the border has been common since July, but Thursday's appeared to be the most serious since a ceasefire was declared July 18.

Pot 'Shot' at Munro

Health Minister John Munro's suggestion that if a substantial proportion of Canadians are found to be smoking marijuana it should be legalized was questioned in the House of Commons and attacked in the B.C. Legislature Thursday.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) asked Prime Minister Trudeau if Munro's suggestion during a taped television show was a statement of government policy "and if so, may I ask what is meant by reasonable minority.'"

"Mr. Speaker, I am informed by the minister that he stated nothing of the kind," replied Trudeau.

At a Wednesday night taping of the Under Attack show Munro said "if we find that a significant minority of the Canadian people smoke marijuana we would be totally irresponsible if we didn't legalize it."

But he cautioned that he "would not really expect it to be legalized in the near future."

Minister without Portfolio Grace McCarthy told the legislature here Munro's attitude was "unbelievable" and Premier Bennett chimed in:

"That's like saying that if theft is widespread, you should legalize it."

"I charge the minister with complete irresponsibility," Mrs. McCarthy said.

She said Munro's words "give credence to the school of thought that drug-taking is no more harmful than drinking" and are a "disservice to children."

Such statements could lead to "an open invitation to every pusher in the United States" to come to Canada if it were to become known as "a drug haven."

She said the legalization of marijuana would increase

$1.6B Pipeline Seen for Canada

VANCOUVER (CP)—Public Works Minister Arthur Laing says Canada is in line to pick up a $1,600,000,000 contract for oil pipelines from Alaska to the rest of the United States.

"I spoke to my very good friend Walter J. Hickel, U. S. Secretary of the Interior, and he told me the overland oil pipeline route from Alaska to United States proper is the best route for transferring oil," Mr. Laing said Thursday.

Speaking at a banquet here on the opening of the Anvil Mine in the Yukon Territory, he said the overland pipeline through Canada is a "definite possibility."

Mr. Laing said the recently-tested Northwest Passage route is not suitable for year-round traffic by oil tankers.

"There are 100 mile-an-hour winds blowing there in the winter. Coupled with ice problems, they make it impossible for ships to travel that route year-round."

He said the $1,600,000,000 figure represents what the U.S. would spend on pipelines which would "probably be located through British Columbia and Alberta if they are given the go-ahead."

The 215,000-ton bulk oil carrier Manhattan ran into heavy ice on a trial run through the Northwest Passage last September in an attempt to establish a safe sea route from Alaskan oil fields.

Mr. Laing also predicted a boom for the Canadian Prairies.

"They're sitting on a fortune in energy-producing materials.

"I'm not saying the Prairies will export their natural resources. I'm saying that industry, from the United States and other countries, will come to them."

9 Killed In India

CHANDIGARH (Reuters) — Police shot and killed nine persons and the army was put on the alert in Haryana state in north India today amid mounting violence.

Four persons died when police opened fire on an enraged crowd who tried to set fire to a passenger train at Rewari, 70 miles south of New Delhi.

In Sonepat, about 50 miles north of Delhi, five persons were shot and killed and demonstrators burned down the houses of two Congress party members of Parliament.

Haryana was gripped by a general strike to protest the government's decision to award the disputed capital city of Chandigarh to the Sikh—majority state of Punjab. The two states had the capital, which was designed by French architect Le Corbusier, since Hindu Haryana was carved out of the Pubjab three years ago.

In the Sikh holy city of Amritsar, Sant Fateh Singh today broke his four-day fast over the fate of Chandigarh. The 60-year-old Sant had threatened to fast until Sunday and then burn himself to death if the city were not given to Punjab.

TYPHOID OUTBREAK COST LINE $520,000

LONDON (Reuters) — The cost of the typhoid outbreak on board the P. & O. liner Oronsay probably will exceed $520,000, a company spokesman said today.

The spokesman explained the daily cost of keeping the Oronsay in Vancouver was $20,800. For the last two weeks there also was a $26-a-head hotel bill each day for 123 persons waiting to join the ship when it sails.

The name of the typhoid carrier would not be released, the spokesman said, but confirmed he was a male member of the crew who now is in hospital.

Marcos Palace Under Siege; 20 Wounded

MANILA (UPI) — Anti-government students smashed down the gate of the Philippine White House with a commandeered fire truck in a night of rioting and bloodshed that raged into the early hours of this morning and spread to downtown Manila.

At least two persons were killed and 20 or more wounded by gun shots, police said. A check of Manila hospitals showed at least 100 others were injured by flying rocks or police clubs.

Armed forces chief Gen. Manuel Yan took control of more than 1,000 police and troops fighting the rioters and said "no less than 100 persons were arrested."

Riot police swinging their clubs from behind wicker shields repulsed a mob of more than 3,000 students besieging Malcanag Palace, the residence of President Ferdinand Marcos, after two hours of fighting Friday night.

But scattered battles raged on and several police trucks and jeeps were burned in a five square block area near the palace. Sniper fire was heard.

There were reports of looting, vandalism and burned cars in downtown Manila more than a mile from the palace.

The rioting flared during a demonstration called to protest alleged police brutality and to demand that politicians stay out of next year's constitutional convention.

At a similar demonstration last Monday rioters hurled sticks and rocks at Marcos' car as he was leaving the halls of Congress after delivering his annual state of the union message.

Marcos was reported inside the old Spanish palace throughout the battle. His press secretary, Francisco Tadad, issued a statement blaming the riot on "subversive elements" and taking Manila Mayor Antonio J. Villegas to task for allegedly refusing to maintain law and order.

The violence erupted when members of the left-wing Nationalist Youth Group and other militant organizations joined the protest group.

The demonstrators attacked the palace, climbing trees and walls. They used poles, slingshots and rocks to smash all the lamps along the street and several windows of buildings

Housing Jump Seen

Times News Services

OTTAWA—The government was asked for confirmation today of a report that low-income housing will be substantially expanded this year.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto-Greenwood) also asked whether there would be an announcement soon that public housing rents will be reduced.

He was told the questions will be passed on to Robert Andras, minister responsible for housing, who was absent.

The questions followed predictions by Toronto's Globe and Mail that Andras will announce Monday orders to Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to pump $550 million into low-rent projects this year.

$150 MILLION

The money, an increase of more than $150,000,000 over the federal commitment last year to low-income housing, will come from a total CMHC budget of $850,000,000, the newspaper says.

The government apparently will increase its effort to expand the housing stock for low-income people, but make no additional money available above the amount spent last year for loans for student housing projects and land assembly for housing development, or for direct loans for mortgages to individual home buyers, it says.

The newspaper says new low income housing starts in the coming year will almost double the number of such units—19,000 built in 1968.

RATE CUT

The paper says some of the $550,000,000 will be lent at reduced rates to builders for limited-dividend projects which they will rent at rates limiting their return on investment.

Meanwhile a resolution supporting voluntary restraint against raising the selling prices of factory-built homes in 1970 was adopted unanimously Thursday by the Canadian Home Manufacturers Association, concluding a two-day convention here.

'Most Fearsome' Bombs Being Developed by U.S.

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States disclosed today its nuclear weapons experts have lately been testing "new weapons concepts" conceivably dealing with such bizarre weapons as the laser bomb, the neutron bomb and the "pure fusion" hydrogen bomb.

But the government also revealed there would be some delay in completing expanded facilities for producing some of its most modern present weapons—including warheads for the Safeguard anti-ballistic missile system.

The Atomic Energy Commission told about both projects in its annual report to Congress.

The commission gave no details about the new weapons concepts.

FREE OF FALLOUT

But AEC weapons official have previously disclosed to The Associated Press that:

—The United States is trying to develop "pure fusion weapons"—that is, hydrogen bombs and missile-warheads that would not require an A-bomb fission trigger and would therefore be free of radioactive fallout.

—The AEC also is still trying to develop the fearsome "neutron bomb," which has been described as a kind of death-ray weapon.

—Commission scientists maintain a new kind of hydrogen bomb—a "laser bomb"—is a theoretical possibility, but a highly remote one.

A laser bomb would be an H-bomb in which the intense heat of a laser beam—perhaps the most powerful and concentrated form of light in the universe — would be used to trigger the hydrogen explosives, instead of the A-bomb trigger now required.

The AEC told about the "evaluation and testing" of the feasibility of the new weapons concepts in the "nuclear defence effort" section of its report which also covered the status of peaceful-uses area of atomic energy.

burdens on provincial and municipal governments, particularly with regard to traffic enforcement. Police would have diffuclty in determining if drivers are impaired by drugs, she said.

She said she was not "entering the argument" on marijuana because she wasn't an authority, but "more research" is needed on an international scale to establish the "ramifications" of marijuana, she said.

Mrs. Eileen Dailly, (NDP—Burnaby North), said both she and Mrs. McCarthy were on a legislative committee considering drugs in 1968.

The members of the committee had all felt that it should be resumed again to go more deeply into the subject, she added.

In that case, Mrs. Dailly said, "I can't understand why she has not used her influence to resume the committee."

Babs Brings Blush To Old Blue Eyes

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — Singer Barbra Streisand watched her escort at work in the Commons Thursday and was watched by him in turn.

Prime Minister Trudeau, who escorted her to the National Arts Centre Wednesday night, glanced up frequently at the gallery where Miss Streisand sat.

The only direct reference to the most glamorous of the prime minister's dates came from George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings. He smilingly asked Mr. Trudeau to answer a question "if he can take his eyes and mind off the visitor's gallery long enough to answer."

Mr. Trudeau usually freezes at remarks about his personal life but this time he responded with laughter and blushes.

In the gallery, Miss Streisand laughed and tapped the rail in appreciation.

She entered the gallery as the question period began at about 2 p.m. to a stir from those in surrounding seats.

Accompanied by her married sister, who came from New York City with her, she wore a jaunty fur hat and coat.

Mr. Trudeau gave a smiling nod at the U.S. singer early in the 40-minute question period.

She and Mr. Trudeau left the House at about the same time, with Trudeau aide and former football player Vic Chapman making a path for Miss Streisand through a crowd of visitors, reporters and photographers.

She went to his office and had coffee with him before leaving.

She denied a report that she spent the morning snowmobiling with Mr. Trudeau. It rained during the night and Ottawa's snow was slushy.

Reporters also asked what she thought of Parliament.

NEVER SAW ONE

She replied that she really couldn't say since she had never seen any Parliament before, "not even my own."

The couple stole the show Wednesday in attending the arts centre for Manitoba Night and a world premier by the Royal Winnipeg Ballet of Brian Macdonald's Five over 13.

MINE PAYS $50,000 FOR PARK SITE

Bethlehem Copper Corp. paid $50,000 to the government last summer for the right to stake mining claims on land reserved for parkland near Divide Lake, Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan said Thursday.

Kiernan said the money was applied to development of a camping park at Lac le Jeune near Kamloops.

Kiernan said the deal, made before the Aug. 27 provincial election, was a fair and reasonable one. No park development for the immediate future was planned at Divide Lake, which is 17 miles northeast of Spences Bridge, but there were plans for work at Lac Le Jeune, Kiernan said.

Meanwhile, Indians living near Divide Lake are planning court action to stop plans to drain the lake for strip mining if drilling tests are favorable.

Order Requires Steering Device

A provincial cabinet order Thursday made mandatory the installation of an "auxiliary device" on industrial vehicles to ensure adequate control of the vehicles in the event of a power steering failure.

It was one of a number of safety improvements required by amendment to rules under the Industrial Transport Act.

just inside the perimiter fence.

Gasoline was spilled in the street and set ablaze. One demonstrator set fire to a small wooden guard hourse. A fire truck moved toward the palace to douse the flame. Students seized it and used it as a battering ram to smash a metal gate into the palace grounds.

Police met the charge with tear gas, warning shots, billy clubs and blasts from high pressure cannon. Students battled with sticks, stones and small bombs.

Warships To Dock Saturday

Four United States destroyers, carrying 600 men, will arrive for a weekend training and recreation visit to Esquimalt Saturday.

The USS Blaine arrives Saturday at 4 p.m. while the USS Bridget, USS Uhlman and USS Evans will dock at 5:30 p.m.

All the ships will exercise with the Esquimalt-based destroyer-escorts HMCS Qu'Appelle and HMCS Mackenzie.

Blaine leaves Esquimalt Tuesday at 8 a.m. while her sister ships, departure date is scheduled for Sunday at the same time.

Early Closing Order Issued to Irish Bars

BELFAST (CP) — All bars and clubs serving liquor were under orders from British security authorities today to close 90 minutes earlier than usual to help prevent Roman-Catholic-Protestant streetfighting.

The order, issued Thursday, also will be in force Saturday night and was designed to curb weekend drinking which has often preceded strife between the two religious groups in the past. Bars in Northern Ireland do not open on Sundays.

The Northern Ireland security committee decided to impose the curfew on the city—bars will be closed at 8:30 p.m.—after five successive nights of trouble among groups of Protestant extremists, Catholics, and British troops.

Similar restrictions were imposed in hard-drinking Belfast in October last year after a serious outbreak of shooting in the Protestant Shankhill Road district.

Earlier reports mistakenly said the security committee had decided to impose a weekend-long liquor ban in the city. In fact, the curfew will mean taverns will close only 90 minutes earlier than usual.

Conspiracy Charges Dismissed

A joint charge of conspiracy against Allan Lee Sawin, 22, of 3255 Glasgow, and Stephen P. Nichols, of Berkeley, was dismissed in court this morning by Judge William Ostler.

The two were accused of conspiring to import hashish by mail from India and England.

Ostler, in his judgment, said a conspiracy requires two or more participants with a common design to gain an illegal object or a legal object by illegal means.

He said it is hard to prove conspiracy by direct evidence, the normal procedure being for the Crown to lead evidence in steps in an accumulative fashion to show the agreement.

If the Crown fails to prove the agreement, Ostler said, the case fails.

Ostler said although there was a body of evidence in the trial of Sawin and Nichols "strongly suggesting" a conspiracy, the Crown had failed to prove the agreement.

Both the accused still face charges of possession of a narcotic for the purposes of trafficking.

Meetings Calendar

Victoria Electric Club, 12:05 Tuesday, Crest Motor Inn. V. Vickers; P. Eng., speaks on The Bridges of B.C.

Canadian Physiotherapy Association, 7:45 p.m., Tuesday, Royal Jubilee Hospital.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Clear skies in the southern interior dropped temperatures to the 5 to 10-degree range overnight while along the coast minimums were near the 40-mark.

The weakening system lying just offshore will hold cloud in coastal areas along with a few showers to the exposed coast. Not much change is expected in the interior.

The next disturbance in this series is now by the weather ship and though showing signs of becoming less active is still forecast to bring rain to the north coast this evening and to the south coast for Saturday. Some snow is also expected in the interior Saturday.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

Although I live in a dry climate where the relative humidity often enough is as low as 5 or 6 per cent, I am well aware that regions of much higher humidity are in some instances healthier regions to live in. Most of us seem to prefer dry weather and it is indeed comfortable, but some ailments prevail in such weather. One of these is measles.

The virus that causes measles was found by scientists to survive and to thrive better when the relative humidity was low. When the humidity rises above 50 per cent, the measles virus—and some other viruses, too—die or decrease in potency.

Researchers found in several cities in the Eastern coastal regions that there was a much higher incidence of measles in the winter when the humidity indoors was generally lower because of heating. In the summer, when the relative humidity indoors was higher, there were fewer cases of measles.

BIGGEST DAILY TESTIFIES

'Press Must Hear People'

OTTAWA (CP) — Publication of a newspaper is an exercise in arbitrary power and the press should make itself accountable to the people in Canada, the Toronto Star said today.

The Star, Canada's biggest daily with current circulation of almost 390,000, told the special Senate committee on mass media that Parliament should vigorously prod a "dangerously self-satisfied" press into establishing regional press councils.

The council would serve as independent tribunals, representing press and public, to which aggrieved members of the public could appeal against misuse of the economic, social and cultural power wielded by newspapers.

"Our society will either redress real grievances or it will fail as a society," The Star said in a written submission. "And some real grievances concern the press."

In urging the establishment of press councils, which would be free of governmental involvment, The Star said most Canadian publishers try to discharge their responsibilities in a fair and reasonable way.

"But the arbitrary power is an inescapable fact of the business."

HAS FINAL SAY

A publisher, through general directions to editors and often by personal decisions on specific items, decides what particular fraction of the total information available is actually published, The Star said.

"A newspaper can advance certain causes and ideas while ignoring, obscuring or discrediting others," the newspaper said.

"A publisher can . . . reward his friends and punish his foes with a force that is far beyond the capacity of the ordinary citizen who has no particular access to a communications medium.

"This is power, and it can be just as arbitrary as the publisher wants to make it," The Star said. "The only external restraint is that if its exercise is too blatantly obvious and offensive, the people may decline to buy the paper."

While overt exploitation of the publishing power has become rare in Canada, there is a more common and serious use of the power to stifle information.

The Star said the more serious fault is "failure to gather and report news of genuine import to the community out of deference to local notables, businessmen, officials or establishments."

"In short, the publishing power can be used to stifle enterprising and aggressive journalism, to the public's detriment."

DISLIKES CRITICISM

The press in Canada is not bad, but it is dangerously self-satisfied—"notably unreceptive to criticism of itself, either from within or without," The Star said.

"When we consider that 90 of the 113 Canadian daily newspaper publishing without any local competition—80 in one-newspaper towns, two in each of five cities have the same publisher—the need for an independent tribunal to which the public can appeal becomes obvious and imperative."

The Star suggested regional press councils on the British pattern for the Atlantic area, Quebec, Ontario, the Prairies and British Columbia.

The councils should not be established by law, for fear of an appearance of state interference in news, but experience in Britain and Canada suggest that "the press will not undertake even this moderate form of collective self-discipline without vigorous prodding from Parliament."

'PAPERS STILL HOLD POLITICAL INFLUENCE'

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Allister Grosart, a former national director of the Progressive Conservative party, told the Senate committee on mass media Wednesday night that "daily newspapers are still more important than television in influencing political opinions."

He also said that between a television commercial and a good newspaper advertisement "I'll take the newspaper."

●

Senator Grosart, who organized the successful 1958 campaign of former prime minister John Diefenbaker, said most of a newspaper's impact comes from its news pages, not the editorials. Surveys of editorial readership had indicated it is so low " you can almost say that nobody reads editorials." But if a newspaper "cleverly and deliberately slants its news . . . it has tremendous impact."

Television doesn't have this impact, he said, because "there isn't the credibility."

Journalists Seeking Code of Standards

OTTAWA (CP) — A group of newspaper men asked the special Senate committee on mass media Thursday to help work out a code of journalistic standards.

The journalists themselves had been unable to agree on what the standards should be, the committee was told.

The plea was made on behalf of the embryonic Canadian Society of Professional Journalists by Frank Drea of the Toronto Telegram, Martin Goodman and Rae Corelli of the Toronto Star and Jeff Carruthers of the Ottawa Journal.

The society, about eight months old, has about 80 members, the committee was told. It hopes to organize outward from Toronto and become a means of raising professional standards among journalists in the print and electronic media.

The committee was told that a code of standards should be established. Then other issues affecting the press—recruitment, taxes, group ownership—could be measured against the standards to see whether public policies and practices within the industry were helping or hindering attainment of the goals.

Entrance into a journalistic career should be regulated and discipline imposed on journalists on the basis of the standards, it was agreed in answer to questions.

The system of setting recruitment qualifications and exercising discipline would be comparable to systems employed by law and medical societies, Senator J. M. Macdonald (PC—Nova Scotia) suggested. Drea agreed.

France Supports Bonn Move

PARIS (Reuters) — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt said today France supports his policy of working for closer relations with East Europe.

Speaking with reporters after the first scheduled meeting with French President Georges Pompidou at the Franco-German summit meeting here, Brandt said the talks covered East-West relations, the Common Market, Franco-German questions and the international political situation.

"The French government is fully behind our Eastern policies," the chancellor said.

The West German chancellor is making his first official foreign visit since taking office.

SEEKS BACKING

In an interview with the French newspaper Le Monde today, Brandt said that in its talks with East European countries, Bonn "is not advancing as a lone sniper in front of its friends and allies but is seeking to be covered by them."

He said Bonn wanted to normalize relations with all Warsaw pact countries but warned that quick results should not be expected in contacts with East Germany.

Sources and Resources

THERE IS CONSIDERABLE comfort in the words of Mr. J. J. Greene, the minister of energy, mines and resources, that his recent talks with Mr. Hickel, the United States secretary of the interior, did not concern the very sensitive issue of Canada's water resources. Mr. Greene smoothed a great many ruffled feathers in this country by saying —as quoted elsewhere on this page today — that "water has never come up in the negotiations and certainly is not for sale."

That is a much more definite stand than Mr. Greene has shown on earlier occasions, and whether or not it is the result of outraged protests from across Canada or merely the Minister's personal feeling, it will have a wide welcome. But the clear predilection of Secretary Hickel for the continental approach to natural resources — the doctine that all the resources of the continent should be shared in common by all the inhabitants of the continent, regardless of the country in which they may be deposited — renders him still suspect by Canadians, who know that "sharing" natural resources with a giant, however friendly, would be a very ill-balanced deal.

We cannot forget, either, that Mr. Greene's words will do nothing to discourage the Congressional lobbying of those vast interests in the United States which are working on gargantuan plans to run Canada's water southward to slake the thirst of mills, turbines and people in the west and south of the neighboring country.

Canada is the fortunate possessor of one of the finest supplies of fresh water in the world. But Canada is also a country with one of the greatest potentials in the world — the opportunity to develop in population, industry and prosperity to an almost unlimited extent. In the achievement of this destiny, Canada will need all of its water supplies—as it will need all of its other natural resources that are not shipped out of the country in their raw state to feed other nations' production lines.

Thus, to write off a large part of Canada's future now, by selling, trading or promising to export water, would be an act of incredible folly. Carried to an appreciable extent — and that could quickly develop from any precedent — water exports would doom Canada to a future as the well and woodpile for the rest of North America. To a large extent, this country will live or die by its water policy.

That is why we should not rest too complacently on Mr. Greene's comforting words. We must remember that Mr. Hickel has not enunciated any such sentiments, that the United States is rapidly using up its pure water supplies, and that it would rather channel our water down to American industries than see those industries come to our water. Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty — and protection of water resources.

Hypocrisy in Greece

RATIONALIZATIONS CAN DEgenerate into hypocrisy when viewed in the harsh light of reality. Such is the case in Greece where the military junta initially attempted to explain that its reason for taking over the democratic government was to suppress Communist influence. But in recent months Communist influence in Greece is growing at the express invitation of the military-supported Greek government.

A new Greek-Soviet agreement will bring Soviet technicians to the strategically vulnerable north of Greece bordering on Bulgaria for survey work. East Germany will soon be visited by a Greek delegation bearing gifts in the form of trade agreements and a permanent trade mission in East Berlin. Soviet goods, long shunned by Greece, are being imported at reduced tariffs. This flurry of trade flirtation, coming after three consecutive years of decreasing Soviet-Greek trade, indicates something more than a casual relationship between the two countries.

In an era of growing entente between East and West, the Greek moves are logical politically but not ideologically, viewed in terms of the military junta's stated aims. The Soviet's willingness to send technicians is also paradoxical. Communist governments are quick to point out how the United States supports totalitarian regimes in Latin America and Asia. But the Russians exhibit no scruples about embracing dictatorships, as is the case in Greece, when it serves their interests.

The Greek government courts the Communists perhaps because the West has shown a distinct coolness to the quasi-military regime in Athens. Last December Greece walked out of the 18-member council of Europe to avoid expulsion, and a motion recommending suspension of Greece's associate membership in the European Economic Community is expected early in February. Petulance on the part of the Greek government will not change Western attitudes. Fickle politics simply indicate forgotten ideals.

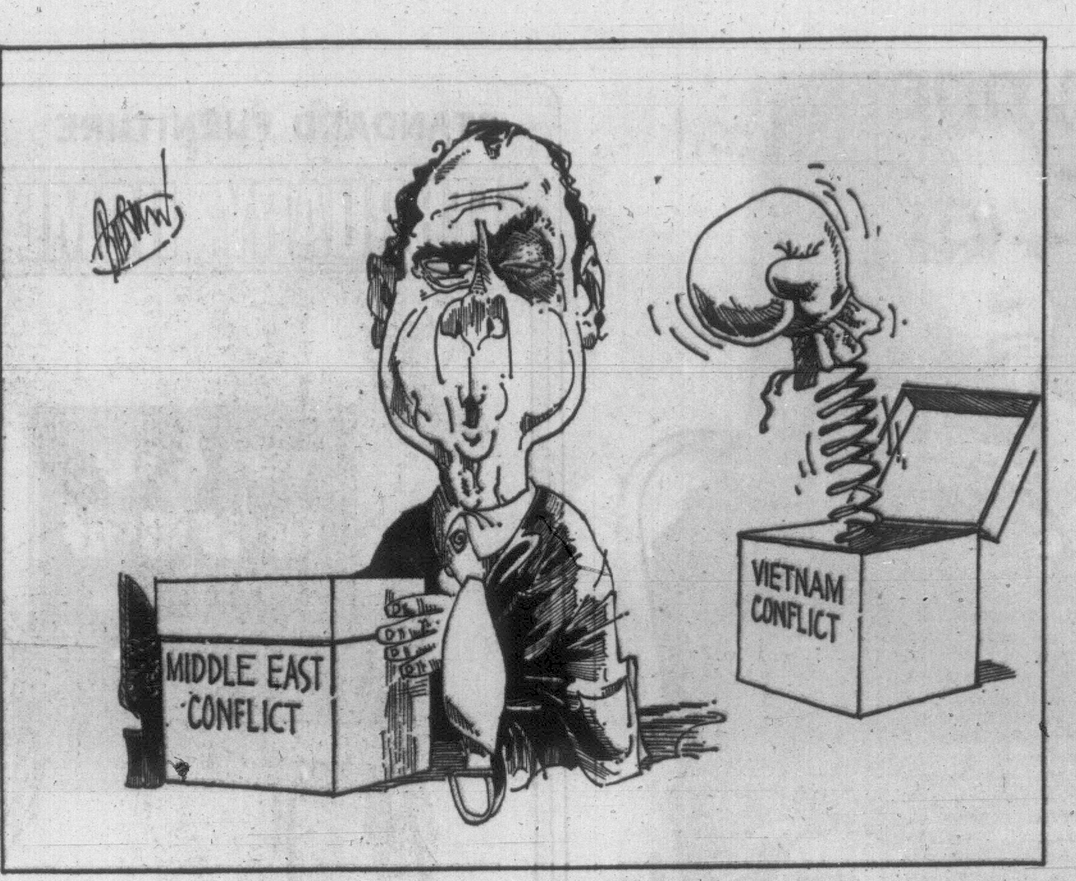
Breeze of Change in Ethiopia

REPORTS FROM ETHIOPIA state that only about one-tenth of the school age population is receiving education, that discontent is growing among the students and that their ideas are spreading farther afield through improved communications.

The students, the reports indicate, are dissatisfied with what they consider the backwardness of their ancient country and have reached the point where they now speak openly against the regime of Emperor Haile Selassie where they formerly cloaked any such criticism in generalities about the problem of an education irrelevant to the kind of life they will lead. Feelings are stirred deeply by the gap between the poor and the wealthy who exploit them, and a rising anti-Americanism is noted because the American advisers are seen as props supporting a regime which would topple without them.

Here is another area of Africa where the winds of change are blowing — as yet only a breeze, since the student militants can be easily quelled by the administration and the army. The trend, nevertheless, seems under way and is carrying an awareness to formerly uninformed rural areas that the present conditions of the country are not inevitable and that change is both needed and desirable.

The situation in Ethiopia differs substantially from that of other African countries, where ferment developed against colonialism, or along tribal lines. The division here appears to be more a battle between the haves and the have-nots among the Ethiopians themselves—and an awakening to the fact that feudal practices still followed cannot escape active opposition in the last third of the 20th century.



"I can't think of one single reason not to look into it . . ."

FROM WASHINGTON

By TIM TRAYNOR

An Effort to Dislodge Nixon 'Normality'

THE nation, and the Democratic party in particular, have been given much to think about during the first year of the Nixon presidency. There has been an absence of momentous departures, but the president has clearly left his imprint on the affairs of the nation and the world. He has had far more success in developing a Nixon formula than most observers expected and his political opponents counted on.

Traynor

The basic elements of this formula are clear. There is a strong emphasis on pragmatism, both domestically and in dealings abroad. Carefully-measured steps are taken to make the war in Vietnam less disruptive. Promotion of South Vietnamese self-reliance enables the president to answer the clamor for American troop withdrawals, but the whole takes place within the framework of strategic retrenchment calculated to enable effective fulfilment of basic commitments to allies. (It has been made clear that commencement of troop withdrawals is not necessarily the beginning of a process which will ultimately take all U.S. forces out of Vietnam, Laos and Thailand.)

Universal retrenchment is itself attuned to demands for transfers of resources from foreign, and specifically foreign military, uses, to meet domestic problems. In disposing of the increment, however, the administration looks not only to such things as poverty programs, but also to possibilities for cutting government spending in the drive against inflation, or financing anti-ballistic missiles to counter accelerated Soviet development of the multiple warhead SS-9.

To back up his pacification efforts, the president carefully cultivates a calm, simple, detached image. He clearly seeks to personify the ending of a crisis and a return to normal. Football and such like receive close attention as trappings of normality, and it often seems there is a conscious attempt to avoid deferring exceptionally to problems and programs which smack of earlier crises.

(The administration's equivocal attitude to race matters is in line with this, though it may owe more to a desire to strengthen Republican support among white southerners, as critics allege.)

How jealously normality is pursued was demonstrated in the reaction to the renewed anti-war demonstrations of the fall. With the vice-president's attacks on "effete snob" war critics and the president's appeal to the "silent majority" the administration sought to consolidate its program for withdrawal and retrenchment against what it considered ill-founded attacks by radical advocates of withdrawal, whether in the streets or in the news media. In the process, Mr. Nixon was able to cast himself as the moderate striving to restore normality against the onslought of a disruptive minority.

The Democrats no longer have any reason to doubt Mr. Nixon's effectiveness and they are increasingly taken up with efforts to come to terms with him. The problem looks different to each of the various contending groups within the party, and no one individual's attitude is representative. But the approach of Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, as spelled out in recent speeches, will serve to give some idea of the tenor of party thinking.

McGovern Campaign

Sen. McGovern, a leading liberal, is concerned to refocus attention on radical social reform. He charges Mr. Nixon not only with soft-pedalling this, but also with wrongly identifying radicalism with a small minority as against a conservative majority eager for his kind of normality. He maintains the president has glossed over a substantial identity of interest between radical reformers and large sections of the middle masses, and he proposes specific measures in accordance with this.

A key proposal is a system of family allowances, which would benefit not only the prime subjects of radicalism — the poor and minorities — but also the great mass of lower-middle income earners. (The allowances — $50 to $60 per child per month — would be universal, but would be reclaimed from the wealthy through tax adjustments.) The senator's proposed "Human Security Plan" would also include a guarantee of employment (by public authorities if not elsewhere), improved old age pensions and a fund to deal with residual poverty.

The plan is conceived as a counter to President Nixon's family assistance plan, by which existing welfare programs would be consolidated and rationalized. The Nixon plan has won plaudits for its liberalism, but it concentrates, as before, on the poor specifically, and this the senator decries as likely to perpetuate divisions and animosity between "the poor" and the rest. The touchstone of his proposals is their efficacy in breaking down these divisions.

Military Cutback

In the senator's presentation, the concomitant of such immensely costly programs is a really drastic cutback in military spending — on the order of $20 billion in the coming year and $50 billion three years hence. This goes far beyond the Nixon retrenchment and provides a rationale for attacks on the president's defence planning in general and the Vietnam policy in particular.

The senator denounces the treatment of anti-war protests, seeing in it evidence that the facade of normality is undercoated with intolerance, even repressiveness. (As the president embodies normality, so the vice-president, and Attorney-General John Mitchell are said to personify the administration's harsher traits.)

Having closely linked military cutbacks and social amelioration, the senator can move easily into a claim that the administration shows hostility to social reform through intolerance of anti-war protest. Against a background of modest domestic activity and studied calm, this leads on to a charge of turning away from social problems and stifling efforts at amelioration.

The senator speaks of the "politics of manipulation," and charges the administration with a "retreat from responsibility." He professes to see the beginning of "political apartheid," with quietism (and the status quo) elevated above activism (and reform). Deriding the president's appeal for public support, he recalls the catastrophic effects of a silent majority in Hitlerite Germany. Such is the nature of the developing confrontation.

Letter

Mr. Keate and the Guild

As president of the Victoria Newspaper Guild, it was not my intention to reply to Vancouver Sun publisher Stuart Keate's brief to the Senate media committee, as reported by Canadian Press news service in the Victoria Daily Times of Saturday, Jan. 24, on Page 2.

But since the Victoria Daily Times has re-run (and added to) the same story on his brief (Monday, Jan. 26, on Page 14), and since the Victoria Daily Times last week did the same for the parent company FP Publications brief, and since it did not accord this treatment to the American Newspaper Guild brief, may I be permitted to state that:

1. Journalists are not an "outvoted minority" because union votes (in my experience) don't divide themselves on this basis;
2. Journalists are by far the largest single craft within the Newspaper Guild;
3. The Guild does not regard non-journalist newspaper workers as some sort of second-class people to be placed in quarantine from journalists;
4. The Guild is used to publisher ploys to split the union and break a united front against management, after 37 years experience in two countries;
5. Heywood Broun himself advocated and saw extension of the American Newspaper Guild from a journalists-only union, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, to inclusion of commercial departments and an industrial-type union, affiliated with the Congress of Industrial Organizations, all of which occurred between the Guild's inception in 1933 and 1937.

Broun died at the end of 1939 and his successor as president, Kenneth Crawford, has stated: "He (Broun) got his way about industrial unionism, as he did about most things, and there are few, in the light of experience, who will question the soundness of his basic policies."

It is pleasing to see Mr. Keate quoted as saying there is no doubt that the Newspaper Guild has achieved important reforms in improved salaries, reduced working hours and longer vacations.

It is suggested that these improvements, and others, have come in large part from the Guild's own strength which in turn can be attributed to a base greater than that of a journalists-only union.

Mr. Keate's proposal that journalists form their own "association" thus comes into clearer perspective.

Finally, in reference to the Canadian Press report on the FP Publications brief (Times, Jan. 23, Page 35), it is not correct to state that while the company has the dominant position in Vancouver, at the Sun, it "has not reached out to smaller B.C. papers."

The fact is that, before FP Publications moved into the Sun, it owned Victoria Press Limited — the Victoria Daily Times and Victoria Daily Colonist. (In fairness, an earlier report — Jan. 22, Page 13 — did mention the Victoria ownership, in the last paragraph. — Roger L. Stonebanks, President, Victoria Newspaper Guild, Local 223, American Newspaper Guild.

Editor's Note:

The breakdown of American Newspaper Guild memberships in Vancouver, New Westminster and Victoria newspaper offices is as follows:

	Total Membership	News and Editorial Depts	Others
Pacific Press (Sun and Province)	616	264	352
The Columbian	51	17	34
Victoria Press (Times and Colonist)	130	48	82

"Others" includes employees of administrative, accounting, advertising, circulation, maintenance and minor production departments.

The FP Publications Brief clearly indicated that the company owned the Times and Colonist in Victoria as well as the Vancouver Sun. The company has not sought to acquire "smaller papers in B.C."

Firm Stand Against Water Export

THE firm declaration by Joe Greene that the Canadian government is not considering export of water to the United States should have the double value of quelling recent anxieties in this country and exploding the illusions of various American congressional figures and high pressure groups with elaborate plans for disposing of it. Recent speculation on this subject has been sparked mainly by Mr. Greene's talks with Walter Hickel, the U.S. secretary of the interior, who is an enthusiastic advocate of a continental energy policy, rather vaguely defined.

Western

Some anxiety was also aroused by reports of certain investigations of stream flows in Ontario, allegedly prompted by the U.S. Corps of Engineers.

Mr. Green's statement, however, should remove the principal causes of apprehension. "Water," he said, "has never come up in the negotiations and certainly is not for sale."

The position is still that frequently stated by Arthur Laing when he was minister of northern affairs. It would be foolish to enter into commitments (or in any way to encourage scheming groups in the United States) because, as Mr. Greene says; "We've never done a survey on a sufficiently comprehensive basis to know how much water we have, to know what we're going to do with it and where it will go."

Bargaining in the dark is a poor business. As a case in point it is worth considering some of the constitutional attitudes of a few years ago as they might have affected Mr. Greene's most cherished item of legislation, the Canada Water Bill.

In the mid-60s powerful premiers were demanding substantial transfers of powers at the expense of Ottawa and the federal government appeared rather too willing to accommodate them. It appeared to be a common view that Ottawa could dispense with a good deal of the jurisdiction exclusively entrusted to it by Section 91 of the BNA Act without grave damage to the federal role.

Among such items are sea coast and inland fisheries. It might persuasively have been argued that the federal government had no vital interest in inland fisheries and that, indeed, they would be more effectively administered by provincial governments.

But what has happened since? The only government capable of giving a lead in the struggle to control it is the national government. Mr. Greene's bill envisions, in most cases, joint federal-provincial authorities to enforce water quality regulations. There can, however, be no certainty of provincial co-operation and accordingly the legislation provides a reserve power of federal intervention.

On what is this based? The answer, at least partly, is the jurisdiction over inland fisheries set out in Section 91. If the government has a responsibility for conserving fish, it must also have powers in respect to the quality of the water in which they live. In fact, the new bill does rely on this; for example in defining what can or cannot be dumped into rivers or streams, it reads in part:

> "Waste means any substance that, if added to any waters, would degrade or alter or form part of a process of degradation or alteration of the quality of those waters to an extent that is detrimental to their use by man or by any animal, fish or plant that is useful for man . . ."

Arthur Laing, in his former ministry, repeatedly warned that water is our "ultimate resource." Any deal now when we have neither an inventory of our water nor the means of projecting future needs might be proven within a very few years thoroughly irresponsible. Time has shown the importance of conserving the federal powers over water and in like fashion it may demonstrate the wisdom of preserving against alienation the waters themselves.

From the Times of January 30, 1910.

Victoria's percentage gain in financial transactions is over half as large as Vancouver's which leads the whole of the Dominion. This is shown by the fact that the clearings for the week ending January 14 were $1,756,000—an increase of 34.7 per cent, while Vancouver's for the similar period is credited with $6,933,000—an increase of 66.5 per cent.

Does Anyone Need a Gun?

By C. H. ROLPH
New Statesman

LONDON—A friend of mine teaching in a high school at Syracuse, N.Y., rebuked a girl of 14 for screaming across the classroom.

The girl produced from her desk a police revolver, brandished it excitedly, and shouted: "My dad's a cop and this is his gun and I can use it and I will."

Two boys wrenched it away from her, but it was her father's revolver and (the teacher told me with a shrug) this made it only slightly easier for her than for any other pupil to bring a gun to school if it seemed a bright idea.

I thought at the time that this was one of those throw-away overstatements used on credulous British visitors, though I've always been puzzled by the place of firearms in the American civilization — and especially by the contrast between American Firearms law and its non-enforcement.

But now I read that every high school in Washington, D.C. is to have a full-time police patrol because playing with guns at school has become both common and deadly.

Born of Rebellion

As Mr. T. A. Critchley points out in his forthcoming book The Conquest of Violence, the Americans are a nation born out of rebellion that was widely regarded as legal. They "wanted an armed police force to control an armed population through centuries of frontier violence; a police force can hardly be disarmed until the populace which it serves has been disarmed."

I foresee a new campaign to arm the police of Britain. It will be staged by members of the still-angry pro-hanging lobby, but it will be supported (to my knowledge) by at least a few abolitionists who are genuinely appalled at the plight of the policeman sent to arrest or interview a dangerous man likely to be armed.

It will again be said that this is the only abolitionist country in the world where the police do not carry guns. One can go on repeating that the New Zealand police don't; that in Queensland and New South Wales (which are abolitionist) it is left to the individual policeman to choose and that the majority go unarmed; and that in many European countries the impressive-looking pistol holster on the policeman's belt is either empty or contains an emergency food ration.

One can repeat, in the knowledge that frustrated hangers will never listen, that our own police are not sent unarmed to "arrest or interview a dangerous man likely to be armed." They can take a gun if they want to.

I have heard senior London police officers recounting, in horror, stories about the issue of firearms under circumstances of special excitement to almost any constable rushing into a station and asking for one.

But at times of non-excitement you would be unlikely to find a man in the police forces of Great Britain, and you would certainly not find a senior officer, who wanted the police to carry arms as a normal part of their equipment.

The only true solution is more controversial, though the controversy need not make it eternally impossible.

This is the withdrawal of all firearms, whether or not they can be concealed about the clothing or luggage or in the glove-box of a car, from the entire civilian population; and a far more rigorous control by the customs authorities over the importation of weapons from abroad (the criminals' main source of supply).

Merely to suggest this, I have found, is to provoke a storm of abuse from the small arms industry, from the Society of Miniature Rifle Clubs, from killers of birds and other wildlife and from the people who have to make bangs to start races.

But I have never found it easy to understand why we should not, by way of a start, ban the possession by civilians — and I mean the merest possession — of pistols and revolvers.

The last time I suggested it I got involved in a violent correspondence, with various departments of the arms industry and the world of sport, and in terms of invective was easily vanquished.

Did I know what widespread unemployment the adoption of my daft suggestion would cause? Had I ever heard what the export trade meant to this country?

Had I thought of the part played in the defence of Britain in 1940 by the mere existence of marksmen trained to the use of firearms? (I admitted that the case for banning pikes might be stronger, reflecting that the arms industry is usually prepared for the last war but one and that "small arms" might not have much relevance to the war we all hope to prevent rather than to survive.)

Analogies Pressed

In fact the moment you make this suggestion the destructive analogies come flooding in from everywhere.

Would you destroy the motor industry because of death and injury on the roads? Would you close down the gas industry because there have been domestic explosions and gas-oven suicides? Is alcohol to be banned because some people drink themselves to death?

You can make your own list. The only ones known to me break down the moment you consider the designedly lethal capacity of firearms, and try to think of any conceivable way in which the pistol or revolver is now advancing the boundaries of civilization and humanity.

Who can say that anyone can possess a firearm without danger to the public safety?

Loafing in the Middle of World's Hottest Cold War

EILAT, Israel — They are young, carefree and far from their families' festive firesides.

There are about 500 of them living here on the beach of Eilat, a fingernail at the northern tip of the Red Sea.

A stock speculation is whether or not a similar colony thrives on the Jordanian side of this shared bay.

★

They squat in the middle of the liveliest cold war in the world, as innocent as a flock of starlings on the Berlin Wall. Before them, flat and tideless, the gulf laps a margin of gritty sand, scarcely turning a pebble in its day-long exercise until, in the evening, it throws into the air an occasional glorious shower of tiny, diamond-bright fishes, while the sun is swallowed by the mountains behind the beach and Jordan's hills make a shocking-pink curtain for the abrupt nightfall.

The Israeli port of Eilat is a staging post for the wanderlusts, the world walkers. One by one, their campfires make warm holes in the night and the lights of Jordan's Aqaba, looking strangely friendly, begin to twinkle across the water.

It is a place to see before wandering on, or for some a place to stay in perpetual summer holidayland.

As well as travellers there are American draft-dodgers, hippies, and because this is Israel, kibbutz dropouts.

★

Largely though, Eilat's special attraction is that one can earn money here. Europe, by and large, is a sterile hunting ground for money, a place where souvenirs, youth hostels, and necessities drain precious cash to the point where many a would-be circumnavigator has found himself climbing his embassy's steps to surrender his passport and demand repatriation.

Here though, despite token resistance from the police, the thriving colony of "beatnikim" lives in symbiosis with what amounts to a boom-town last-stop-before-Sinai, and performs useful tasks in the hotels, restaurants and night clubs. Many work for odd-job sub-contractors in the copper mines 15 miles back along the stretching desert road by which they arrived.

On the whole life is fun and the company is a genuine brotherhood with a representative of almost every race, color and creed. Everybody puts on a hippie show on Saturday.

One night, a couple of late-bathing Canadian hippies were pretending to be chased by sharks out in the bay, and at one fireside a Nottingham accent read that the time of singing of birds is here, from the Song of Solomon.

A tow-headed Dutchman walked from fire to fire inviting anybody who was hungry to come and join his friends for a feast of net-damaged tuna which floundered ashore. Over the glowing charcoal — remains of purloined planks — travellers' tales and information were swapped.

★

Slowly the sleeping bags claimed victims, leaving the scene to friendly, roaming beach mongrels which, after wolfing the scraps left around from the day, crouched against some sleeper for night warmth.

A couple of miles round the bay, United Nations troops went out for another weary night on the border. Here, in no-man's-land under the stars in the inky desert night, a far easier union of nations sleeps like an outpost of hope.

The Citizen Versus Bureaucracy Secrecy

By ANTHONY WESTELL

OTTAWA — Colleen Posluns spent part of last summer in the Lower Town district of this capital city upgrading the education of eight unemployed men.

She had previously worked for the United Nations and for Canadian University Service Overseas in Africa, and now she was trying to help eight Canadians get off the welfare rolls and into a job training program.

To qualify for training under the federal Manpower Department's program, the men had to have a grade eight education. With Colleen Posluns' teaching, five of them made the grade. But when they presented themselves at the Manpower office, with their diplomas, only one was accepted and four were refused.

Why were they turned away? Well, the Manpower officials have discretionary authority and apparently decided, for their own sufficent reasons, that the four were not likely to benefit from training.

Now, Colleen's husband, Michael Posluns, 28, happens to be executive director of the Canadian Civil Liberties Association, national capital region. So the story of the four men who were refused training went into his files and now forms part of a brief being prepared by the association for presentation to Manpower Minister Allan Maceachen.

The brief contains a number of detailed complaints about the way in which the Manpower program operates in the Ottawa area. Posluns says that from what he hears from other social workers, the grievances are much the same in most cities across Canada, and that the Manpower Department has a bad name for arbitrary and discriminatory decisions.

The purpose of this column is not to argue the question of whether the four men in Lower Town should or should not have received training, or whether the Manpower Department does or does not deserve a bad reputation. Those matters can be discussed later when Maceachen has received the complaints and prepared his answers.

The interesting thing at the moment is that Posluns hopes that the Civil Liberties brief will not only right some specific wrongs, but also establish a much larger principle.

●

The principle is that when government uses its discretionary authority in dealing with the citizen — when it decides, for example, that a man may or may not be admitted to a training program — the rules and guidelines on which it operates should be open to public examination.

The citizen should know explicitly why discretion is being exercised against him, on what authority, and how he may appeal.

The legislation establishing the Manpower program, like many other acts of Parliament, gives the minister the power to make regulations. By law, the regulations must be published. So, on the face of it, all the facts are on the table for the citizen to see.

●

The Civil Liberties Association, on behalf of the four men refused training and the other people with complaints against Manpower, should be able to pinpoint the specific reasons for official decision and the authority on which the decision rests. But that isn't always the way things operate.

One of the members of Posluns' advisory board is Mark Macguigan, 39-year-old law professor and Liberal MP for Windsor-Walkerville. He was also the chairman of the special committee of the Commons appointed last year to investigate the question of delegated legislation — that is, the rules by which Parliament delegates to others the power to make law by regulation and administrative decree.

Macguigan's committee established that behind the published regulations, in most government departments, there are scores of internal memos, circulars and handbooks instructing officials how to interpret and administer the law. These internal documents are classified as private and are not available to the public or to Parliament.

The department of Manpower and Immigration told the committee: "There are immigration and Manpower handbooks or manuals that are intended to serve as a guide to employees of the department to assist them in carrying out their dutues . . . in a uniform manner throughout the country and abroad . . . in addition, statements on matters of policy require to be modified and added to in the light of changing circumstances and as times goes on.

Hence, a series of operations memoranda are sent out from time to time under the same classifications as the manuals, to be included therein, for the added guidance of employees and officers . . . In addition to these documents the handbook, where necessary, elaborates on these regulations to ensure their correct application."

The department said that during 1968, there were 490 amendments to the immigration manual alone.

●

This is the gritty reality of democratic government in Canada. Parliament may legislate and departments may publish their regulations, but at the point of decision, when the citizen meets the bureaucrat across the desk, the effective document is a confidential manual.

For the citizen, the decision of the bureaucrat may be a matter of vast importance — whether, for example, he can be trained for a job or sent back on welfare — but the discretion will be based on interpretations of the law he is not allowed to see.

The Macguigan committee recommended in its little-noticed report: ". . . all departmental directives and guidelines as to the exercise of discretion under a statute or regulation where the public is directly affected by such discretion should be published and also subjected to parliamentary scrutiny."

That is the new freedom which Michael Posluns and the Civil Liberties Association hope to establish on behalf of four men refused job training, and on behalf of all other Canadians who are subject to administrative decisions they don't understand.

The Unneeded Generation

By RICHARD NEEDHAM

Few teachers or students, I think, would disagree with my contention that there are a lot of kids in school (high school especially) who just don't want to be there, who don't wish to learn and so aren't learning.

Some are passive, silent, indifferent — what I call the dead bodies. Some are hostile, aggressive, destructive; they're the ones who are beating up and murdering teachers in the United States, and driving teachers crazy in Canada.

What these two groups of students — more accurately, non-students — have in common is that they're forced to attend school; literally forced if they're under 16, psychologically forced if they're over 16.

The result in both countries has been the perversion of the school system; rather than educate (how do you educate people who don't want to be educated?), it concentrates simply on the maintenance of discipline, simply on keeping the prisoners in order.

This isn't the fault of the teachers, or of the students, either. The parents, the school administrators, the politicians have made the school what it is today. John Holt spells out the situation in his new book, The Underachieving School:

"The public, in effect, has said to our schools, 'Lock up our children for six or more hours a day for a hundred and eighty or so days a year, so that they will be out of trouble — and, by the way, while you have them locked up, try to educate them.' The two demands are contradictory and self-cancelling. The schools can be in the jail business or in the education business, but not both. To the extent that they are in the one they cannot be in the other."

Paul Goodman (Growing Up Absurd, Compulsory Miseducation) has been making the point for years. Mr. Goodman says the school has three main functions — 1) to socialize the kids, condition them to be good little workers, conscripts, taxpayers; 2) to keep them off the labor market, so that wages will remain high; and 3) to keep the kids off the streets and out of their parents' hair.

★ ★ ★

That's what is behind compulsory schooling, to force all kids into the classroom, regardless whether they wish to be there or not, wish to behave or not, wish to learn or not.

If we want kids to learn (and teachers to teach) in our schools we had better get rid of the kids who don't want to learn; or at any rate, who don't want to learn what's being taught in them. In a word — out!

But then everybody says, "What are you going to do with them?" Agreed, that's a problem. But it is not, and should not be, a problem for the school.

As a newspaper can only help people who want to keep up with the world, as a doctor can only help people who want to be cured, so a school (or a teacher) can only help people who want to learn. The problem of those who don't belongs to what is called "society."

It's true, I guess, that if we cleaned the vandals and hoodlums and dead bodies out of the schools (under or over 16, as the case may be), we'd be stuck with a lot of them.

We would have to put them to work, but what work? At this point, we come to a fact (I think it's a fact) which I ran across in my reading the other day and which hit me hard. This is the first generation in history which wasn't needed.

Eureka! That's it! The kids aren't needed for war; not in Canada, at any rate. They aren't needed for work on the farm or in the store or in the factory.

Nobody can think of anything for them to do except to consume (food, clothes, records, cars, drugs) and to sit around in a university or community college.

As Philip Belgrave of Ottawa pointed out in an exceptionally perceptive letter the other day, "Russia values the efforts of its young people over a wide range of endeavor, while our own society prefers to stimulate its youth to consume and to engage in sex play because it has no particular use for them except as objects of prurient interest."

★ ★ ★

There is, of course, lots of work to be done here in Canada — work which kids of 13 and 14 and 15 could easily do.

But the whole situation has been botched up with child labor laws, minimum wage laws, union agreements, stupid employers who are mesmerized by academic diplomas, and the abolition of the apprenticeship systems which contribute so much to Western Europe's industrial prowess.

So I don't see that the situation is going to change. We've got a whole generation which isn't wanted, which isn't needed, which is locked up in prison-like schools, and which reacts accordingly.

The results are ugly today, and they're going to become a good deal uglier.

26 Mining Firms Agree To Land Reclamation

By VIC PARSONS

Mines and Petroleum Resources Minister Frank Richter told the legislature Thursday that 26 mining companies have filed reports with the government to comply with land reclamation legislation.

He tabled the reports of mining companies whose reclamation plans have been submitted to date. Twenty-two of the reports have been approved, but four have been deferred pending further investigation.

The mines department has contacted about 70 other companies asking for reclamation reports and programs.

REPORT CHECKED

Richter said that some companies have gone beyond what is required of them. He referred specifically to companies who have instituted programs by growing grasses and feed for cattle and wild life in areas of their operations.

After the companies file their plans for reclamation, the reports are checked by government officials.

When unanimous approval of the officials is obtained, and the cabinet gives consent, the compaines are issued three-year renewable permits allowing surface work to be carred out after receipt of a bond.

Richter told the house that the department will do all it can to protect the environment and to restore the land to a "useful and acceptable" condition.

'HALF-TRUTHS'

He criticized "some sections" of the news media, especially radio and television, which used what he called "innuendo, half-truths, and out-of-context verbal and visual presentations" to "create a false impression" of the government's position and actions.

All decisions made by the government will be made in the best interest of the public, he added.

Richter said that the federal government white paper on taxation represented a serious threat to the mining industry in B.C., pointing out the value of mineral production in 1969 totalled $450 million and represented an estimated increase of 13.5 per cent over 1968.

HIGH RISKS

He added that mining was a high-risk industry and that money was being invested at present in marginal mining operations.

"Any drastic change in world markets, radical demands from labour, or punitive tax measures, will upset the delicate economic balance."

"Measures proposed in the White Paper would destroy the competitive position of the B.C. industry and drive both Canadian and foreign investors to other resource oriented countries."

WALLACE

Hospital Fee Hike Urged

By BRUCE YEMEN

An increase in the $1 a day hospital care charge to $3 was proposed in the legislature Thursday by Dr. Scott Wallace (SC—Oak Bay).

The new MLA noted that hospital care costs have tripled since the $1 a day concept was introduced in 1954 and that "it would not be unreasonable for the patient in an acute bed to pay $3 a day towards his care."

He suggested the $1 charge remain in effect for extended care patients and that an upper limit of 30 days be put on the $3 charge for acute care patients "to avoid undue hardship on patients with longstanding illnesses."

Wallace said that $6.5 million could be collected each year by the increased charges to provide needed new medical care facilities.

He said that "colleagues in the hospital field" had told him his suggestion was "eminently reasonable but politically unpalatable," and added:

SENSIBLE IDEA

"I do not intend to spend my time here playing politics in the worst sense of the word but intend to propose sensible, constructive, economically sound ideas which offer a reasonable, realistic and socially fair solution. . . ."

Wallace said he is convinced that at the present time taxpayers' money "is not being spent wisely or in the most economical manner" in the health and social services field.

He said the concept of progressive care—with a level of care appropriate to the patient's needs at each stage of his illness—should be adopted in the province.

Many patients are occupying $45 a day hospital beds who could be adequately served in much cheaper facilities, he said.

HITS POLLUTION

Wallace also proposed the formation of a department of environmental health under a minister with full cabinet rank to present a unified assault on all forms of pollution.

He warned that "time is running out on our present society" in the battle to "clean up a soiled environment."

He warned that "some of the material gains to be made from commercial and industrial expansion could be pitifully transient if such development accidentally leads to disastrous poisoning of the environment and the sacrifice of a valuable part of our natural heritage.

"To me it is inconceivable, for example, that drilling for oil with all its attendant hazards should ever be contemplated in the Strait of Georgia.

NATURAL BEAUTY

"In a province with such immense natural beauty and resources as British Columbia, consideration of any such shortsighted policy should be unthinkable and in my view quite unacceptable."

The only Social Credit cabinet minister to indicate support for Wallace on the oil-drilling issue was Isabel Dawson, minister without portfolio, who thumped her desk. A few Socred backbenchers also joined in.

Wallace also asked the government make known the availability of funds on a three or four year basis in areas of expenditure such as health and social services, education, municipalities and highways.

STOP-AND-GO

"Surely this is much to be preferred to the present stop-and-go methods, whereby a gread deal of time and money is spent planning new facilities and buildings only to find that the money required for their construction is not available," he said.

'Make Clear B.C. Stand' On Cypress

The provincial government was urged Thursday to take over development of Cypress Bowl in West Vancouver.

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) said it would be just as logical for the government to provide ski facilities in the controversial West Vancouver bowl as it was at Mount Seymour.

Dowding also asked the government to write a letter to Benguet Consolidated Inc. making clear that the company was not going to have a chance to develop the crown land through its takeover of Alpine Outdoor Recreation Resources, original promoters in the bowl.

He read a letter from a Benguet subsidiary company in the Bahamas which indicates Benguet is still going ahead with plans to develop the bowl despite rejection of the company Nov. 26 by Resources Minister Ray Williston.

UNANSWERED QUESTIONS

Dowding said there are a number of unanswered questions in the affair but indicated he wasn't blaming Williston for the entire problem.

"I don't believe for a minute the minister was involved in anything he shouldn't have done but it is obvious he wasn't aware what was going on in his department," Dowding said.

Dowding raised the question of deputy lands minister David Borthwick's involvement in a "mining venture" whose principals figured "largely" in the destiny of Cypress Bowl.

He noted the leases signed with Alpine for 632 acres were not validated by the lifting of a crown reserve on the land through publication in the B.C. Gazette.

"What was all the rush?" Dowding asked.

At one point Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan leaped to his feet to deny that NDP claims that the land in question was ever parkland.

'Reduce Legal Age'

Garde Gardom (L—Vancouver-Point Grey) Thursday called upon the government to "contemporize the law" and reduce the legal age to 19.

Gardom introduced a private member's bill which would reduce the age from the present 21 years.

In a statement released to the press, Gardom indicated that the present age of legal majority is a carryover from the Middle Ages when a youth of 21 was considered able to bear arms.

"More and more we recognize that the learning processes have been accelerated, and by putting the youth in the same old pigeonholes as was done before the atom, the airplane, radio, electricity, gaslight, or even plain old steam, is just cobweb kind of stuff."

POLLUTION-FREE SMELTER BEING TESTED

Mines Minister Frank Richter told the legislature Thursday that he had been informed that a new way of controlling pollution in the smelting of mineral ores is being tested in Arizona.

The minister said a multimillion dollar pilot plant is being established by the Anaconda Copper Company in the U.S.

The new system might enable the establishment of smelters at such places as Britannia Beach if it is successful, Richter suggested.

Safety Training In Mines Urged

Mines Minister Frank Richter suggested in the legislature that safety training should be mandatory for persons who are employed in the mining industry.

Richter said that the cost of such a training program could be shared by both industry and trade unions and that there might be a place in contract negotiations for a "binding responsibility on the part of all employees to engage in safety instructions."

The minister said this kind of step might be considered a "radical approach" to safety, but that it is just as important as the negotiation of holiday or health benefits.

Low-Income Housing Tops List

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The federal housing authority will concentrate its efforts during 1970 on providing funds for construction of housing to accommodate Canada's low-income families and senior citizens, Robert Andras, minister responsible for housing, said here.

He said the government's objective is to have 35,000 such housing units constructed this year.

Mr. Andras, here to address a Liberal association meeting, indicated an announcement will be made with the next 10 days on the amount of capital funds the government will make available for public housing in 1970.

The announcement will provide a breakdown on the financial allocation per province.

Wallace Outlines Stand To Delight of Backbenchers

Enthusiastic desk-thumping from Social Credit backbenchers greeted Dr. Scott Wallace (SC—Oak Bay) in the legislature Thursday as he set out his personal position within the party.

Wallace said he is a supporter of the Social Credit party because it most closely represents his political views but added:

"It should certainly be clearly understood that I would not remain passive to see any new progressive policies I might offer sacrificed on the altar of party unity.

"It should be made clear that I do not consider party loyalty synonymous with blind allegiance."

Wallace also said, in a reply to an NDP interjection, that he hasn't promised to vote with the government on every issue—"I've made no such obligation."

The Oak Bay MLA made clear his unwavering opposition to socialism.

"If the members of the socialist parties in this House are licking their lips in anticipation of the differences I may have within my own party, these are but skirmishes compared to the battle royal I hope to have against the avowed proponents of socialism and against those deceivers who espouse socialism while masquerading under a different label."

Speaker William Murray intervened at this point to ask Wallace to withdraw the word "deceivers" which he did with apologies.

Wallace said it would be "ridiculous" to suggest a politician should agree with everything his party says just as it would be to suggest a man should agree with everything his wife says.

'Utter Hogwash'

A claim that the B.C. Medical Association is stifling the free speech of its members was described in the legislature Thursday as "utter hogwash" by Dr. Scott Wallace (SC—Oak Bay).

"Any doctor who does not communicate with the news media, does not do so because of any interference by the medical association but from his own personal choice, usually because he is uncertain from past experience that his views will be accurately represented," Wallace said.

He said Barrie Clark (L—North Vancouver-Seymour) is not only a "hot-line expert but a hot air expert" for suggesting that doctors should be advising patients where they can find "known abortionists."

He said Clark, a hot-line radio moderator, was in effect criticizing doctors for not advising patients how to violate the ciminal code of Canada, Wallace said.

Clark raised the matter in the legislature Wednesday when he said the public was being prevented from learning the views of doctors on important issues because of the medical association.

COVERAGE REVIEW ORDERED

A special legislative committee set up to study automobile insurance will examine whether the provincial government's accident benefits coverage should continue to apply to public motor carriers.

This was set out in notice of a motion by Attorney-General Leslie Peterson to set up the committee which will also study costs of automobile insurance premiums.

Motor carriers such as buses and taxis are currently required to carry the accident benefits coverage, as are all private vehicles.

The committee will also study whether to bring into force a section of the act which would prohibit law suits for property damages in excess of $250.

This is the provision which Peterson last year said would result in a reduction of insurance premiums but critics of the move have pointed out it would force motorists to buy expensive collision coverage to protect themselves against damages above $250.

Job Totals 'Meaningless;' Dailly Blasts Gaglardi

Eileen Dailly, deputy leader of the NDP, Thursday blasted Social Welfare Minister Phil Gaglardi and his Alliance of Businessmen.

The MLA for Burnaby North noted in her reply to the throne speech thaat Gaglardi had only devoted four minutes of his 40-minute speech Wednesday to welfare, and she called figures he had given of the number of job placements by the alliance "almost meaningless."

Mrs. Dailly charged that Gaglardi had suggested a staff reduction in the department of social welfare, yet had not suggested a reduction in staff of the alliance which, she said, "is a place where the minister can and had practised political patronage."

The MLA said that figures Gaglardi gave of 1,150 job placements left many questions unanswered. "In what line of employment were they placed and at what salary? Were they temporary jobs at low salaries or permanent jobs at union rates?" she asked.

●

"None of this was given to us."

Only 350 of the placements were of people unemployed, she added. "As there were more than 30,000 employable persons receiving social welfare, a one per cent placement is hardly in keeping with the minister's grand statement on how he was going to reduce drastically the number of employable on welfare."

She said she hoped Gaglardi would announce the inclusion of rehabilitation and job placement in the department and "the abolition of the Alliance of Businessmen."

Mrs. Dailly said she had heard a great deal of talk about the slogans of the Social Credit government — "the good life" and "the rounded life" — but for many sectors of society it is an "empty" life.

She said those on welfare are demoralized and have no dignity or hope, and that the government has done little to relieve them.

Mrs. Dailly said there is a need for the establishment of a forensic clinic by the government, and urged stronger enforcement of laws protecting deserted families.

The deputy leader said that the day after seven-year-old Evangeline Azaercon was discovered missing, in Vancouver she heard police were rounding up all known sexual offenders. "If these offenders are known to the authorities," she said, "what is being done about them? Why has no attempt been made to treat them?"

Turning to another subject, Mrs. Daily said the government has yet to realize that housing is as essential a social service as hospitalization and medicare.

Strong government action is needed, she suggested, in the provision of land banks, the establishment of a housing authority, and in the injection of funds into housing.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Prices Continue Slide

After opening with gains prices slipped downward in moderate trading today on the Toronto and New York markets.

The downward trend also was the order at Montreal while gains made a comeback in morning trading at Vancouver.

AT TORONTO in industrials, Bow Valley was down 1½ to 24¼, Maclean-Hunter 1½ to 16, Imperial Oil 1 to 21 and Electrohome 1 to 35½.

Dome Pete was up 1¼ to 93, Home A 1 to 24½, Jefferson Lake 1 to 13½ and Chrysler 1 to 30.

McIntyre lost 7 to 143 and Denison rose ¾ to 39¾.

Asamera lost 1⅞ to 15¾ and Ranger 1½ to 11½. Canadian Homestead advanced ⅜ to 15⅞.

AT NEW YORK the market environment remains pessimistic in view of the Federal Reserve Board's statement that the tight-credit policy was having little effect on inflation. Stringent monetary restrictions long have been a major market dampener.

Fourteen of the exchange's 20 most active issues dropped, five advanced and one was unchanged at noon.

AT MONTREAL banks continued to lead losses in moderate trading today on the stock market.

Among banks, Royal at 20⅞ and Banque Canadienne Nationale at 11 both slipped ⅜. Toronto Dominion was up ⅛ to 22⅞.

In senior mines and oils, Denison, which earlier sold down to 39, surged up 3¾ in heavy trading after it announced the largest single sale of uranium concentrates in its history to Tokyo Electric Co. of Japan. Chairman Stephen Roman estimated the value of 33,500,000-pound, 10-year contract at $300,000,000.

Falconbridge gained 1¼ to 168½ after slipping 3¼ Thursday. International Nickel was off 1 to 43¼.

Velcro Industries was down 2½ to 38 in spite of a report that first-quarter earnings are expected to be higher this year.

AT LONDON prices generally declined today on the stock exchange but most losses were small.

Unilever, 1s 3d off, was the main loser among the leaders.

Bowater and Reyroell were off and Hudson's Bay Co. lost 1s 3d. Hawker was firm on the possibility of further Harrier jet sales to the United States.

Dollar stocks were widely lower, reflecting the Wall Street decline and a fall in the dollar premium.

Inco lost 4¼ points while Cominco and Trans Canada Pipe Line were other Canadians to fall.

In U.S. issues, Jersey Standard lost 3½ points.

AT VANCOUVER, gains made a comeback in pre-noon trading today.

Casino put on .15 to $4.95 while United Provincial Investments rose .20 to $2.80. Driver Development gained .10 to $1.35, United Bata was up .10 at $3.80 and Utica also climbed .10 to $2.35.

Gibraltar dropped .10 to $4.20 and Adanac eased .05 to $3.10.

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP)—Trade was light in fairly steady prices today at the close of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Rapeseed drew most of the action with general buying and exporter interest moving deferred futures fractionally higher.

Flax moved in a local and commission house operation with locals tending to pressure sales.

A domestic shipper trade proceeded in feed grains with rye stronger in a little exporter trade.

Lakehead prices for Class Two and IGA wheat all were unchanged.

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures advanced nearly 1½ cents a bushel on the Board of Trade today.

Soybean meal and oil also closed higher. Improved buying in the last half of the session strengthened corn and wheat futures also. Oats and rye prices were weak.

Soybean prices were irregular on the opening but—as meal and oil futures strengthened under mixed buying influenced by a good demand for the cash product—soybeans then rallied.

Chieftain

Preliminary agreement to acquire Chieftain Development Co. Ltd.'s shares in Blue Crown Inc. has been reached between Delhi Australian Petroleum Ltd. and Chieftain.

The latter holds 43 per cent of the outstanding stock in the Nevada company, of which the Canadian subsidiary has oil, natural gas and mineral properties in this country.

An exchange of shares and guarantee of bank debt to which Blue Crown is committed are involved in the agreement, a condition of which is termination of a previous agreement to merge Delhi Australian and Blue Crown.

Johns-Manville

The Johns-Manville Corp. reports the company's sales and earnings for 1969 had surpassed record levels of the year before.

President C. B. Burnett reported sales of $583.6 million compared to $556 million a year earlier. Net earnings, he said, were $41.5 million—$2.48 per share of common stock. Net earnings for 1968 were $40.2 million or $2.39 per share on a larger average of shares outstanding.

CZ

Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. reports 1969 net income of $13.8 million up 8 per cent over the previous year.

The Vancouver-based forest products company said in an advance summary of 1969 results that total dollar sales amounted to $205 million, an increase of 13 per cent over the $181 million for 1968.

Earnings per share were $1.78 compared with $1.66 in 1968.

President Robert G. Rogers said the level of dollar sales reflected improved markets for the company's manufactured products. Lumber prices increased in the first half of 1969, but declined in the second half, reverting to levels of three years ago.

Alcan

Alcan Aluminum Ltd., in a preliminary report, announces record levels in sales, production and earnings for the fourth quarter and total for 1969.

Net income per share is up 22 per cent for the year.

Alcan expects to show net income, after preferred dividends, of $2.62 a common share in 1969 and 75 cents a share in the fourth quarter. This compares with $2.14 and 49 cents a share respectively in 1968.

Consolidated net income amounted to $88.9 million in 1969 against $71.6 million in 1968.

Monarch Life

Monarch Life Assurance Co. reports net profits of $695,198 for 1969, a sharp drop from $1.78 million the previous year.

Darrell Laid, president, told the annual meeting that increased taxes, totalling more than $1 million, was mainly responsible for the decrease.

Under the 1969 tax changes, income taxes are payable on income as earned and on investment income. Previously, income tax was payable only on amounts transferred to the shareholders' fund.

Sales topped $118 million, a drop of $6 million from 1968, but well ahead of the 1967 figure.

B.C. Phone Earnings Increase

A per share increase of 35 cents in common share earnings was reported today for 1969 by B.C. Telephone Co.

President J. E. Richardson said net income rose from $16.9 million to $19 million on operating revenues of $139 million and $158 million, respectively.

There were more ordinary shares outstanding last year than in the previous year.

Richardson reported the rate of return on invested capital rose from 6.84 per cent to just over 8 per cent in the year through increased use of facilities such as long distance calls and steady growth in the whole system.

There were 974,823 telephones in use at year-end, compared with 226,431 20 years ago.

Much of the $91 million required this year for capital spending programs will come from internal sources, Richardson said. But one of the major tasks facing the firm in 1970 will be to provide all the funds necessary in the face of "severe demands on the available supply of money and the high return demanded by the market," he said.

Crude Oil Delivery Runs Behind Demand

CALGARY (CP) — Alberta's capacity to deliver crude oil has fallen behind demand, forcing the province to cut the February requests of some refineries.

The Alberta Oil and Gas Conservation Board announced Thursday that production of pro-ratable fields in the province would be held to 920,000 barrels a day during the month, 80,000 barrels a day below requested volume.

The biggest bottleneck is in the facilities of Interprovincial Pipe Line Co. Ltd., the major carrier of crude oil to Eastern Canada and the United States.

About 30,000 barrels a day of the decrease was attributed to reduced line-fill requirements and planned reductions of the inventories of Interprovincial and Trans Mountain Oil Pipe Line Co. Ltd., the major carrier to the western United States.

"The remainder of the decrease in demand, some 50,000 barrels a day, has been necessitated by the limited availability of pumping capacity of Interprovincial pipe lines," the board said in a memo to producers.

Owen Linton, administrative manager of Interprovincial, said the system had been able to meet the demands in December and early January but "was pumping to the maximum."

The company, which has three lines running between Edmonton and Superior, Wis., plans to carry out an expansion program later this year, but no work now is being done.

The expansion, on a 20-mile loop of 29-inch line in Ontario, would increase capacity by 50,000 barrels a day.

The theoretical capacity of the present system at Cromer, Man., the last point at which western crude is fed into the line, is 934,000 barrels a day.

The pipeline was "striving to reach" that volume, Mr. Linton said, but pipelines normally operate at 90 to 95 per cent of their nominal capacity.

SITUATION IRONIC

The situation is not without irony, as western producers have been clamoring the last year for greater access to the United States market and now find they cannot meet the demand.

In addition to pro-ratable crude oil the conservation board expects the province to produce 180,000 barrels a day of other oils—pentanes plus, heavy crudes, non-prorated light and medium crudes and synthetic crudes from the Athabasca oil sands.

Total expected daily demand for all Alberta oils in February would be 1,100,000 barrels, compared with 1,010,000 barrels in January and 886,000 barrels in December.

The decrease will not affect western refineries supplied by Trans Mountain or those on the Prairies supplied by feeder lines.

During December, bottlenecks in the feeder system prevented trunk lines from running to full capacity and the province was short about 10,000 barrels a day. During January the situation is expected to worsen.

The loss of sales of 50,000 barrels a day would mean a loss of $4,750,000 to the provincial economy in February.

Since the discovery of oil at Leduc in 1947, to Dec. 31, 1969, the provincial government had gained $2,865,865,291 from the sale of oil and gas leases, rentals and royalties.

Noranda President Hits Tax Proposals

OTTAWA (CP) — Alfred Powis, president of Noranda Mines Ltd., said Thursday the government's proposed tax changes will force his company to look elsewhere than in Canada for new mineral resources and industrial opportunities.

The proposals contained in Finance Minister Edgar Benson's white paper, made public last Nov. 7, would tax the mining industry more heavily than any other sector of the economy, Powis told the Senate banking and commerce committee.

WIDE FIELD

They would require extensive reorganization of the firm, which now owns or controls 33 other Canadian corporations, has interests in 26 other Canadian firms, and owns, controls or has interests in more than 50 foreign corporations.

Powis said Noranda is basically a mining firm which, through its subsidiaries, develops new mines and manufactures mining or other resource-based products. It owns Canadian Wire and Cable Ltd. and British Columbia Forest Products. Ltd.

In addition to its general changes proposed for all corporations, the white paper would end the present three-year tax holiday for new mines and alter the system by which mines can account, through depletion allowances, for the using up of their mineral deposits.

ADVANTAGES LOST

Powis said the advantage now given mines through depletion allowances is largely lost in having to pay provincial mining taxes. They amounted to 15 per cent of the pithead value of minerals in the three largest mining provinces — Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia.

Noranda needed substantial amounts of capital to finance its own and its subsidiaries' mining explorations and develpment. Having to pay full taxes would have made it uneconomic for Noranda to have gone into some ventures, such as Brenda Mines copper in British Columbia and Noranda's potash mine near Saskatoon.

Powis said there is no question of Noranda pulling out of Canada. It is a Canadian-owned firm, with wide interests in Australia, Ireland, Latin America and Europe.

Ottawa to Back Oil Expansion

OTTAWA (CP) — The cabinet has approved continuing the federal government's participation in the search for Arctic oil by Panarctic Oils Ltd., informed sources said Thursday.

An announcement that the government will contribute $4,500,000 to a $10,000,000 expansion program by the consortium of oil companies is being drawn up for release next week, they added.

The federal government owns 45 per cent of the shares of Panarctic. More than a dozen oil companies own the rest.

Some doubts about Ottawa continuing in Panarctic were raised by Energy Minister J. J. Greene. But at least two other ministers—Works Minister Arthur Laing and Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien—were most enthusiastic about the project.

All of Panarctic's oil exploration leases are in the Arctic islands. Sources say the company has about 60 per cent of the islands under lease.

They also say that the value of the government's shares, which cost it $9,500,000 when Panarctic was formed in 1967, now is in excess of $100,000,000.

The jump in value is partly explained by the huge oil find in Alaska shortly after Panarctic was formed and some of the favorable findings resulting from Panarctic drilling on Melville Island.

Last November, Panarctic reported a sizeable natural gas find. It was reported that if the find had been in southern Canada, it would have been exploited.

The success of the U.S. oil tanker Manhattan in plowing through northern waters off the islands last summer also indicated no insurmountable transportation problems for oil found on the islands.

Three's Not Much If Orr Gets Four

Esposito Matches Bob's Point Pace

By The Canadian Press

What is a guy going to do when he scores three goals in the National Hockey League and doesn't get a single curtain call?

That was probably the question Ray Cullen of Minnesota North Stars was asking himself Thursday night as he trooped out of Boston Gardens, where the rafters still rang from the cheers for defenceman Bobby Orr and centre Phil Esposito.

The problem, of course, was that Orr and Esposito upstaged the Minnesota forward by picking up four points each to continue their domination of the NHL's scoring race and lead Boston Bruins to a 6-5 victory.

Orr scored a goal, his 15th of the season, and set up three others in the first period to build his league-leading total to 72 points, while Esposito scored two goals and assisted on two others to bring his second-place total to 61 points, including 26 goals.

WINGS GAIN ON HAWKS

In the other scheduled games, Detroit Red Wings increased their fourth-place lead over Chicago Black Hawks to three points with a 4-3 victory over Philadelphia Flyers and St. Louis Blues defeated Los Angeles Kings 3-2.

The victory for the Bruins before 14,835 fans brought their unbeaten string over West Division clubs to 24 games.

Don Marcotte, Wayne Carleton and Ken Hodge got the other Boston goals, while Tom Williams and Danny Grant added single goals to Cullen's three.

The victory also moved the Bruins into a two-way tie for second place in the East with Montreal Canadiens. Both have 60 points, two less than New York Rangers.

Gordie Howe scored his 17th goal of the season before the 13,315 fans at Detroit. Frank Mahovlich, Garry Unger and Alex Delvecchio got the others.

HILLMAN SCORES

Gary Dornhoefer, Jean-Guy Gendron and Wayne Hillman replied for the Flyers.

It was the first goal in 223 games for Hillman, a defenceman who scored his last goal Oct. 23 1966.

Phil Goyette scored two goals for the Blues, who stretched their winning streak to 12 games over the Kings. Bill McCreary got the other St. Louis goal, while Bill Flett and Brian Campbell replied for Los Angeles.

The Rangers get a chance to increase their first-place lead in the East to four points tonight when they meet the Seals at Oakland in the only scheduled game.

About disa and data:

And today it is the University of Victoria Sailing Club which would appreciate some consideration. The need is for boats for competitive racing and training.

The problem is not new, just relocated. It is that of financing. The student body is willing to finance a substantial amount of money for the purchase of boats. However, the expense of purchasing a sufficient number of suitable boats is prohibitive at the present time. There have been other arrangements with city sailing organizations in the past, but for various reasons, most of them valid, these no longer are available. And so, briefly, if you would like to help, or would like more information on the plight of a ailing club, without sails in an area which provides some of the best sailing in the world, contact Uvic Sailing Club officials, or Marion Statham. They'll be glad to talk sailing, boats, or money, or all three.

Yes, Harry Jerome did run in three Olympics. Holder of the 100-metre and 100-yard records at one time, Jerome pulled up lame in the 100-metre final at Rome, finished third in the 100, and fourth in the 200 metres at Tokyo in 1964, and competed for Canada at Mexico City in '68. He also won the gold medal in the 100 at the BE games at Jamaica.

◆

Now, if you played or coached hockey for the Winnipeg Monarchs, winners of three Memorial Cup titles, one Allan Cup triumph, and one world championship, among other lesser baubles since the club's inception in 1903, hearken to this: This club wants you back. The call is out for Feb. 13 at the Winnipeg Arena, and the "homecoming" is being held in conjunction with Manitoba's Centennial celebration. Further details can be obtained from the Monarch Club, 2110 Main Street, Winnipeg 17.

It is nice, too, that the Swedish plan of hypocrisy that governs its National Hockey team, has leaked out. It makes one wish he'd thought of it first. The reason the Swedes can stickhandle behind the amatueur rule is that their players don't have formal contracts. They simply have an agreement whereby their ace Ulf Sterner is paid about $35,000 a year and the others from $20,000 down . . . and if you missed the item, Victoria will not be in the Northwest Baseball League this season, and neither will Vancouver, all of which is a relief, I suppose . . . and then there is the thought that Bert Bertoia would be an excellent choice as coach of the Shamrocks. He knows what it is all about.

It shouldn't pass, either, the note that a recent Quebec Superior Court judgment has ordered the proprietor of a Granby dirt track, the owners of the racing car involved and the driver, to share in the payment of a $39,000 award to a track worker's family. The deceased, employed as a guard at one of the gates, sucumbed from injuries after being struck by a car. The incident took place in 1964 . . . When John Unitas of the Baltimore Colts signs his football contract he negotiates directly with owner Carroll Rosenbloom; all of the others deal with general manager Don Klosterman . . . and girls, how about this: Bobby Hull gave his wife, Joanne, a full-length mink coat for Christmas. Business must be good.

And now there is some nut who is going to attempt the biggest motorcycle jump in the world. Esquire has the story of Evel Knievel who plans to jump across the Grand Canyon, or 1 and 1-10 miles. He will use an X-2—a rocket propelled motorcycle, equipped with a standard 750 cc American Eagle engine and two parachutes. He will blast off the take-off ramp at 300 mph—a motorcycle land speed record. Once across the canyon, he'll be ejected 30 feet skywards where his parachute will open. Another chute will bring the X-2 down "soft." The present record is 140 feet. Knievel drove his hipbone through his pelvis on that one. He's made $200,000 in the past two years, spent $25,000 on doctor bills, and at 30 years of age his hair is turning grey. I guess.

In the post was a handbook from the editors of Time, and do you know what is "sheer"? Courage, grit, audacity, gall and women's underwear, that's what . . . Football fans, and players, will be pleased to hear that Frank Hindle, coach of the Hornets, has been selected to attend a coaching clinic in San Francisco.

And more on that green stuff . . . the Uvic rugby program is such that the returns don't allow for a contingency fund . . . and as it is the hope of manager Howard Gerwing to arrange a tour of Australia and New Zealand for about three years hence, time already is wasting in the effort that will be needed to raise the necessary funds . . . and so, on Friday night, Feb. 6, a "Casino Night" will be held in the Student Union Building — you know, girls, gambling and all that sin . . . meanwhile, on rugger, it should be known by the weekend if or when Middlesex will play here in the spring . . . and it is this Saturday in Vancouver that the final trial match for Japan will be held . . . the guess is that Victoria may land six . . .

NOT EXACTLY SPORTING, BUT EFFECTIVE!

Hockey habit of pulling sweater over head of opponent when involved in fight may not be exactly sporting thing to do, but it is certainly effective way to obtain protection and dish out punishment. Gary Unger (7) of Red Wings tugs jersey over eyes of Philadelphia's Gary Peters during first of two brawls in opening period of National Hockey League game at Detroit as linesman Neil Armstrong wades in for attempt to break up battle. Red Wings went on to nip Flyers 4-3.

Cobble Hill Runners Lead Trophy Races

DUNCAN — Runners from George Bonner High School racked up impressive point totals Thursday afternoon to capture both girls' and boys' trophies in the second annual Duke of Edinburgh cross country meet at MacAdam Park.

The Cobble Hill athletes beat out teams from the Mount Prevost school at Duncan in collecting both point victories.

Races in the various categories ranged from one to three miles and were contested by more than 240 athletes from junior secondary schools in this area and from Chemainus, Lake Cowichan and private schools.

George Bonner boys were paced by 16-year-old Paul Washington, who placed first in the event for boys over 14.

DURELLE PREVAILS

MONTREAL (CP) — Former Canadian welterweight champion Joey Durelle of Sorel, Que., won a 10-round unanimous decision over junior welterweight champion Colin Fraser of Toronto in a non-title bout Thursday.

Seven-Under 65 Not Good Enough

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Jack Nicklaus sounded a warning to his challengers in today's second round of the $150,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open: "I'll have to do better."

Nicklaus, the defending champion, opened with a brilliant, seven-under-par 65 in Thursday's first round, one stroke better than fast-closing Tony Jacklin, the British Open title holder.

Four are at 67—Al Balding of Toronto, former Masters champion Gay Brewer, 49-year-old Julius Boros and young Joel Goldstrand.

The group of six at 68 includes Gene Littler and Bobby Nichols, while the current Masters champion, George Archer, was one of six at 69.

But Nicklaus, who has the hottest hand on the tour, remained the man to beat—and the man to catch.

Nicklaus' 65—he also had a 65 in his last previous competitive round—came on the 6,792-yard Torrey Pines Golf Club course in what he called an "ideal situation for scoring."

His round was outstanding enough, but even more remarkable because he did some experimenting along the way.

"About my fourth or fifth hole I started having some trouble with my swing," he said. "I wasn't getting the shoulder turn right. I worked at it for about nine holes before I got it back where I wanted it.

"It's gratifying to work your way out of some trouble and still be able to score well."

In that stretch of holes he had only one birdie, on a par five when he chipped close and made the putt.

He had two 20-footers and put irons within six, five, four and one feet for his other birds.

Penalties Mar Junior Tussle

Third-place Victoria Cubs bounced league-champion Nanaimo Buccaneers 8-3 Thursday in a penalty-studded Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League game at Pearkes Arena.

A total of 119 minutes in penalties were handed out during the evening with Victoria collecting 55 and Nanaimo serving 64 minutes.

Mark Purdy paced Cubs with three goals, one more than clubmate George Walton. Dale McLachlan, Tom Adkin and Jerry Caldwell counted singles for Victoria.

Rich Kramp, John Frew and Ken Wocknitz scored for Buccaneers in the second period.

YOUNG PILOT PITCHER DIES AFTER SHOOTING

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—Miguel Fuentes, 22, a pitcher for Seattle Pilots, died Thursday of gunshot wounds suffered in a bar at Loiza Aldea, his home town 20 miles east of San Juan.

Police said Fuentes was shot three times Wednesday night — in the abdomen, right hand and left thigh. He had been in the bar with a group of teenagers, police said.

He died in hospital.

Fuentes, a right-hander, had a 1-3 won-lost record and a 5.19 earned-run average in eight games with the American League Pilots.

Munro, Shibicky Return to Action

Victoria Cougars' roster will have a "full and healthy" look Saturday when the British Columbia Junior Hockey League's leaders face Kelowna Buckaroos at Memorial Arena.

Winger Scott Munro and Centre Alex Shibicky both are scheduled to return to action.

Munro has been idle since Dec. 21 when he suffered an eye injury in a game at Vernon.

Shibicky failed to show up for last Saturday's game against Penticton Broncos and subsuquently was benched for two games against New Westminster Royals this week.

Dale Pennock is being classed as a "doubtful starter" but coach Doug Anderson feels the big defenceman will be ready for duty against Kelowna. Pennock suffered a cut around an eye in Wednesday's game at New Westminster.

Kelowna will play in Vancouver while second-place Vernon visits Penticton in tonight's game.

Vernon's Wayne Dye continues to lead the individual scoring race with 65 points. He has a 10-point advantage over Cougars' Bruce Cowick and Vernon teammate Don Manson. Another point behind are Ted Plowe of Victoria and Vernon's Larry Quechuk.

Cup Leader Places Third

GARMISCH-PARTENKIRCHEN (AP) — Franciose Macchi, of France today won the World Cup downhill race of the Kandahar competition, clocking one minute, 8.62 seconds in this West German former Olympic site.

Austria's Wiltrud Drexel was second in 1:08.65 and France's World Cup leader, Michele Jacot, third in 1:09.46.

Skater Banned for Rudeness

EDMONTON — Skip Croff, 18, of Vancouver was asked to withdraw from competition in the 1970 Canadian figure skating championships Thursday for "excessive rudeness" to an official.

The 1970 British Columbia senior men's champion was reported to have been abusive during a practice session Thursday morning.

Groff, who ranked seventh after the compulsory figures, was to compete for the junior men's title today.

The skating association's rules have a section concerning the conduct of competitors and chief referee Joan Maclagan ruled that it applied in this case, an association spokesman said.

Officials were apparently having trouble with the music machine and could not play the tune for Groff's performance before the end of the scheduled practice.

Jim Waters, B.C. team manager, said Groff submitted a written apology and agreed to abide by the referee's decision.

A chunky blond, lucky enough to have been holidaying in Germany with his parents when the Russians rolled into Czechoslovakia in 1968, is Canada's new novice men's champion.

An act of Parliament allowed 17-year-old Stan Bohonek of Toronto to become a Canadian citizen after only 17 months residence last December.

Bohonek scored 502.3 points overall, far ahead of second place Ted Barton of Vancouver, who tallied 455.7 points.

Competitors from the host Royal Glenora Club captured two of the three titles decided late Wednesday.

Rea Kraisosky, 12, captured the novice women's crown. Her clubmates, Shauna McCann and Robert Weiss, captured the novice dance title over Debbie and Randy Burke of Chilliwack.

Marion Murray and Glenn Moore of Vancouver nailed down the junior pairs crown.

Vancouver's Karen Magnussen, national women's champion in 1968, took over the lead in the senior event after four compulsory figures were completed on Thursday.

Sonia Burling of Victoria was in 13th place.

Italian Slalom Expert Near World Cup Lead

MADONNA DI CAMPIGLIO (AP) — Gustavo Theoni of Italy today sped to his second consecutive World Cup skiing victory by winning the giant slalom at this Italian resort.

The victory raised Theoni's World Cup total of 131 points, just nine behind Patrick Russel of France, the leader, who did not compete here. Theoni now has 75 World Cup points for giant slalom—the maximum permitted for one type of race.

The Italian, competing in heavy snowfall, completed the two giant slalom courses in an over-all time of three minutes 13.75 seconds.

Second was Edmund Bruggmann of Switzerland in 3:14.74. Jean Noel Augert of France was third in 3:15.20.

After Theoni, 18, had won Thursday's giant slalom race over a tough and dangerous course, Switzerland's Doumeng Giovanoli, who finished second, said:

"Theoni is really unbeatable. He came down the course with incredible ability. He is surely the No. 1 for slalom races at the world championships next month."

O'Keefes Host Croatia

Utility man Mark Robb will fill in Ron Thompson's place as a link player with Brian Robinson when Victoria O'Keefes return to the Pacific Coast Soccer League campaign Saturday in Royal Athletic Park against second place Vancouver Croatia.

Thompson will be sitting out a one-game suspension handed down in the fracas involving O'Keefes and league-leading Columbus on Jan. 3 in Victoria.

The only other lineup change planned by coach Frank Grealy involves the shifting of Bob Bolitho from right wing to inside forward. Gil McIlraith was put in as right wing.

A win would move the third-place O'Keefes nearer to Croatia whom they trail by 8 points.

BASQUE BOMBER POSTS 24 STRAIGHT KNOCKOUTS

AIMS FOR EUROPEAN HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE

Jose Is Great at Lifting Rocks and Dropping Foes

MADRID (Reuters) — A Basque rocklifter with a build like Rocky Marciano's and a record of 24 knockouts in 24 fights has given Spaniards hope that Spain will produce the next European heavyweight champion.

Jose Manuel Ibar's professional experience consists of one hour, 50 minutes and 13 seconds in the ring. His average time for knocking out opponents is four minutes, 35 seconds. The longest anyone has survived his whirlwind punching is six rounds. The shortest — 17 seconds, including the count.

So regularly and swiftly do fighters fall before Ibar's blows that fight crowds have on several occasions screamed "fix, fix," as Ibar's hands were raised in victory.

Nicknamed Urtain, Ibar is scheduled to meet European heavyweight champion Peter Weiland of West Germany March 13, and boxing commentators throughout Europe are predicting that he will win.

At 26, Ibar is in prime physical condition. He stands five feet 10 inches, weighs 211 pounds and carries a sledgehammer blow in both fists.

He was born in the hamlet of Urtain — from which he takes his nickname — in the northern Basque province of Quipuzcoa. Before he realized there was money to be made in the boxing ring, he was a devotee of the Basque pursuit of stoneheaving.

The object of the competition is to see who can lift the greatest number of 220-pound rocks up to waist-level. He holds the current record of 12 lifts in 15 minutes.

Many of Ibar's victims have been unknowns, but he has also beaten some prominent fighters. He has knocked out Spanish light-heavyweight champion Jose Luis Velasco and American Mike Bruce, who went on to beat Spanish heavyweight champion Benito Canal two weeks later.

Ibar feels he could have the Spanish title whenever he wants it, but he is after the European crown. He will receive $13,200 for his fight against Weiland, who has held the title since Dec. 6.

Most of Ibar's fans think that their hero's power — and the punch with which he will knock out Weiland — is in his right hand. In fact, past opponents say it is his left that destroys them with constant accurate jabbing.

Then comes the finishing right, which, according to ringside observers, often travels only six inches before slamming on target. In 24 fights, it has been the last punch thrown.

OUTDOOR REPORT

Are Penalties Big Enough?

By STEWART LANG

What price tag is being placed on destruction of our natural resources?

Often it appears that it is much too small.

Reports from Thunder Bay, Ont., state that the second-largest manufacturer of pulp and paper in Canada, Domtar Ltd., was fined $1,000 after pleading guilty to a charge of discharging wood and chemical wastes into Lake Superior.

Closer to home, MacMillan and Bloedel was recently fined $1,500 on the two counts of placing slash in a river and destroying salmon eggs within a river bed. The spawning area affected was in Twin Rivers which drains into Barkley Sound.

Another question arises: Are the fines sufficient to deter multi-million-dollar industrial organizations from placing short-term profits before environmental stability?

After all, those were pretty cheap prices to pay for untold damage to the lake as well as the loss of part of a generation of salmon.

And if the companies had managed to elude detection and prosecution there would have been no penalties.

* * *

The latest issue of the trade newsletter for the Pacific Trollers' Association has a few pointers for anybody who comes upon a company dredging gravel from a salmon rearing stream or creating any type of hazard to the eggs or fish.

The newsletter states: "Evidence and information must be accurate and immediate as was the case concerning Twin Rivers. Only in this way can convictions and rehabilitation by the guilty party be assured."

It points out that the best way to get accurate evidence is in the form of photographs and to "secure at least five witnesses who are willing to swear court affidavits."

Then the best idea is to contact the closest Federal fisheries officer with the idea that "tomorrow is too late if action is to be taken."

Pro Athletes Unite To Combat Owners

TORONTO (CP) — Players associations of professional baseball, basketball, football and hockey in North America hold joint meetings "at least four times a year," Alan Eagleson told an Empire Club dinner meeting Thursday.

He said they will jointly fight owners' efforts to obtain exemption from anti-trust laws.

Eagleson, executive director of the National Hockey League Players' Association, said "we are able to join forces in many areas."

He said the players' groups in the four major professional sports last year established a lobby in Washington, D.C.

"We jointly retained a Washington spokesman," he said. "He keeps us in touch with U.S. senators and congressmen."

SANDY KOUFAX
. . . clear-cut winner

Koufax Selected Athlete of Decade

NEW YORK (AP)—Sandy Koufax, who pitched with pain and precision during a career in which he fashioned a record four no-hitters, was named Baseball Athlete of the Decade Thursday in a special poll taken by The Associated Press.

The Dodger left-hander, winner of the Cy Young Award as the best pitcher in the majors three times before he retired following the 1966 season, was the clear winner over three slugging stars—Mickey Mantle, Millie Mays and Hank Aaron.

Koufax received 225½ votes from the sports writers and Broadcasters participating in the poll. Mantle, the New York Yankees' outfielder who also retired during the decade, was second with 154½. Mays finished third with 106½ and Aaron was fourth with 51½.

Despite the fact he retired when he was still in his prime at the age of 30, Koufax distinguished himself with the following achievements:

FOUR NO-HITTERS

—Pitched four no-hitters, including a perfect game, at a one-a-year pace from 1962 through 1965, a feat unmatched in baseball history.

—Struck out a major league record 382 batters in 1965.

—Won 27 games in 1966, a modern National League record for a left-hander.

—Led the National League in earned-run average a record five consecutive seasons from 1962 through 1966.

—Won the Cy Young Award in 1963, 1965 and 1966 and won the Most Valuable Player Award in addition in 1963.

—Averaged more than one strikeout for each inning pitched, a feat never approached by any other pitcher.

Mays and Aaron, still active with San Francisco Giants and Atlanta Braves respectively, rank second and third on the all-time home run list behind Babe Ruth's 714. Mays has 600, Aaron 556. Mantle finished his career with New York Yankees with 536.

Rounding out the top 10 vote-getters were Detroit pitcher Denny McLain, New York Yankee outfielder Roger Maris, Baltimore outfielder Frank Robinson, Chicago Cubs' first baseman Ernie Banks, Pittsburgh outfielder Roberto Clemente and St. Louis pitcher Bob Gibson.

Scoring Spotlight On Art 'n' Andy

Art Jones of Portland Buckaroos and Andy Bathgate of Vancouver Canucks are currently tied for the scoring lead in the Western Hockey League with 72 points each.

However, Jones holds the inside track as he aims for a third-consecutive championship because Portland has four more games remaining than Vancouver.

Jones, who had 38 goals and 76 assists in 74 games last season, is currently third in goals with 26. Paul Andrea of Vancouver and Len Ronson of San Diego Gulls lead with 29.

Bathgate leads in assists with 47, one more than Jones, and is just one point away from his 1968 total of 73 points, which placed him 11th.

Phillips Back In Title Chase

TORONTO (CP) — Alf Phillips Sr. of Toronto swept into the Canadian seniors curling championships Thursday, trouncing Kitchener's Carl Asmussen 10-2 in a sudden-death playoff for the 1970 Ontario seniors title.

Phillips, who defeated the Gord Moore rink of Victoria last spring, now has a chance to become the first man to win the Canadian seniors championship two years in a row.

The national finals are set for Feb. 23-27 at Kamloops.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Entering winners' circle for first time in Bowler-of-the-Week competition is Bob Bird who topped men's fivepin division in 14th week of 26-week long contest sponsored by The Daily Times. Bob took time out from basketball executive duties to roll fine 288-336-300—951 series in ANAF League at Gibson's Bowladrome which earned him weekly honors and berth in season-ending rolloff in May.

HITTING HERO ADMITS METS ARE GENEROUS

NEW YORK (AP) — Cleon Jones, all-star left fielder who hit a club record .340 last season, has signed his 1970 contract with the world champion New York Mets.

General manager Bob Scheffing said Jones received an "obviously very big and justifiable increase."

"The Mets couldn't be more generous," said the 27-year-old Jones who also led the club in hits, doubles, walks and steals in 1969, his fourth full season in the National League.

It was estimated the contract is for $53,000.

Hoop Leaders Drub Trailers

Trends continued Thursday night in the Victoria Senior Men's Basketball League as the top two teams stepped higher on the ladder at the expense of the two trailing squads.

Independents retained their four-point lead by tossing a century tally at Century Inn, crushing the winless Innkeepers 100-51. In the other game at Central Junior High School, second-place Hotel Douglas kept pace by tripping Farmer Construction 89-77.

Holding a slim, 10-8 lead after the opening few minutes, Independents suddenly turned the tussle into a rout with a string of eight successive field baskets.

John Lauvaas and Bill Carlson combined to collect more points than the entire Century crew as they contributed 28 and 26 points to the Independent total.

FOULS FOIL FARMERS

Independents led 47-22 at the intermission.

Foul troubles helped stop Farmers in the last half after a 38-38 score at half-time. Farmers spurted ahead 50-44 early in the third quarter only to have Bill Spotswood, Wayne Farmer and Rick Humber foul out.

Rod Fields, Bob Burrows and Ken Gregory led the late rally by the Hotelmen. Fields canned all 11 of his points, Burrows 13 of his pacesetting 22 and Gregory all of his 12 after the intermission.

Eddy's Grid Career Lasted 26 Years

OTTAWA — Funeral services were to be held here today for E. K. "Eddy" Emerson, who set a remarkable Canadian football record for durability during his playing career with Ottawa Rough Riders.

Member of the Canadian Football Hall-of-Fame and an Ottawa businessman, Emerson died suddenly at his home this week at the age of 78.

Born in Georgia, he played a record 26 seasons with the Rough Riders before retiring in 1937. He served as president of the Ottawa club in 1930-31 and again from 1947 to 1951.

Emerson had remained a director of the club until its sale a year ago to David Loeb. He first played for the Riders in 1909, performing with the team in Grey Cup victories in 1925 and 1926 as flying wing—or flanker—and linebacker.

Emerson served as president of the Big Four Football Conference, the forerunner of the Eastern Conference of the Canadian Football League, in 1948-49. He never received a cent in salary in his lengthy playing career.

He was good enough at hockey to get a professional offer from Toronto but stuck with football. He also won more than 30 trophies in auto racing.

Now It's Clay's Turn . . .

LONDON (Reuters) — Cassius Clay, alias Mohammed Ali, has "regained" the world heavyweight championship in a revised version of his controversial computerized fight with Rocky Marciano.

The BBC showed the new ending this week after hundreds of complaints from boxing fans angered by last week's original version, which showed Marciano winning by a 13th-round knockout. In the BBC version, Marciano was shown with arms upraised in protest after the referee had stopped the fight, apparently because of a cut eye.

But even the computer seemed to have its doubts about the new verdict. No round was mentioned and no explanation was given.

The script of the fight was dictated by a computer fed on information from the two former heavyweight champions' careers.

The 45-year-old Marciano died in a plane crash two weeks after the film was completed.

SEEKING AID through self-help is Mrs. Elsie Arnee, who hopes to find an outlet for paintings like this one that she has created in the past six years as an artist.

CANCER VICTIM IN SEARCH OF PRIDE

Must She Also Lose Her Dignity?

By PAT DUFOUR

A 61-year-old woman knows she is fated to lose her eyesight through cancer.

She's accepted the cold hard fact. She cannot, though, face a future devoid of dignity.

Mrs. Elsie Arnee, who lives on the third floor of a run-down apartment building on Fisgard, has no illusons about the cancer tumors behind both her eyes.

"When they examined me the last time they told me they could take out both my eyes and try to arrest the growth. They decided not to — they said it was too late."

Mrs. Arnee accepted the verdict.

What she can't accept is a pride-less existence on a $90 monthly welfare cheque.

Out of that, she pays $52 a month for her apartment, $12 for utilities and the remaining $26 must keep her in food and other necessities.

"I'm fortunate not to have to get drugs. I've been on them quite a while but the doctor has taken me off because of the side-effects. I've become used to the pain which wracks my head for as much as three days at a time. What I can't get used to is being a charity case."

She hopes to do something about that situation.

Mrs. Arnee began painting six years ago and as long as her eyes last she hopes to continue.

She'd like to earn back her independence by selling them. There are difficulties.

"I've done the rounds of the private galleries and they all tell me the same story. They're overstocked with paintings and prints imported from Europe."

•

She'd also like to get a job but her doctors won't allow it.

"I worked for five days this summer in the Goodwill warehouse. By the third day everything was going around except the belt I was working on. The doctor said I had to stop."

Mrs. Arnee is not a woman to give up easily.

"This cancer may not kill me for a long time. I may as well be doing something worthwhile while I'm waiting."

Given an opportunity to show her paintings she's confident she'll be able to make the first steps back toward a full life.

If she sold some, her next step would be to "rent a little house where I could run a gift shop."

She had such a shop for 1½ years at the Junction, corner of Pandora, Fort and Oak Bay.

"Then they painted yellow curbs all along the side so that none of the cars could stop. That was the end of my business."

•

She has other ideas.

"I wanted to buy a tent and go up-Island and paint. I'm sure that I could sell my paintings to tourists in the summer months."

Friends persuaded her that this was hazardous "but I haven't completely given up the idea."

The building Mrs. Arnee lives in was sold this week. She and the other tenants fear that the rents will be raised.

This worries Mrs. Arnee but doesn't defeat her.

"All I need is someone to help me get started. It won't be easy but it will be worth it."

Powerful, Moving Performance by Poet

By STEVE HUME

A good poetry reading is like a passion play—the player subordinate.

Born in experience and nurtured in myth, the poems take on an organic quality, embed themselves like seeds in the consciousness of the listener.

The people jamming the brownstone room during Wednesday's lunch-hour at the University of Victoria were intent as no class has been in weeks.

The thin fluting of a reed pipe echoed vaguely from somewhere else in the labyrinthine social science building, and the audience hung on William Stafford's every word.

Students, faculty, long-hairs, straights—they were all there to get something from one of North America's leading contemporary poets.

GAIN INSIGHT

Some were there to experience his verse on the poet's terms, some hoped to gain insight into the poetic process, some were there to watch the performance of a National Book Prize winner.

Those who went looking for a flamboyant and theatrical performance went away disappointed.

Unlike Simon Fraser poet Stanley Cooperman, who read at Uvic a week ago, Stafford gave a humble and subdued reading.

He limited himself strictly to a 50-minute session, did not indulge in poetic posturing, and kept his commentary laconic and to the point.

It was a powerful and moving performance, and it was in character with what Stafford told the audience about himself and his poetry.

He told them he was trying in his poems "to rise to the level of the ordinary," that ornate language and elaborate stylistic devices detract from the content, that simplicity is the ideal.

"Some believe that with poetry you should start at the level of ordinary language then rise to a peak of sophistication. I believe you should start somewhere below the ordinary then develop to the level of everyday speech."

After the reading, in an interview interspersed with conversation about family and ferry schedules, he elaborated further:

"Too many people feel writing is using some kind of skill you have to learn. We all have this skill. Every one of us."

"The ability to change in attitude is more important (to the creative process) than any accumulation of knowledge. You have to forgive yourself what you say so that you can go on to say something else."

He said the school systems of North America are a destructive influence for young people trying to write.

"The schools are geared to teaching the skill of how to write," he said, "and that is a distraction from the act of writing."

"It instills an attitude that makes people feel that what they think is not worthy. What people think is the only thing that is worthy."

Stafford, 56, who was born in 1914 in Hutchinson, Kansas, is known as an anti-war poet who speaks out strongly against the Vietnam conflict from his home in Portland, Oregon where he teaches at Lewis and Clark University.

During the lunch-hour session he read one of the anti-war poems that embody his Quaker philosophy and have made him prominent in the anti-war movement in the United States.

It was a sparce, lean verse about a peace march in Portland, and it was starkly evocative. There was an absence of the hysteria that characterizes much of the current anti-war poetry.

"We are surrounded by the myths of history," he commented, "but as a poet I feel there could be better myths."

"There is more out there than has ever been written."

ANTI ALL WAR

Later, relaxing in a faculty lounge, he clarified his position on the war, pausing to think, never raising his soft voice.

"I'm not just anti-Vietnam war," he said, "I'm anti all war, any war."

"My feeling now is not a temporary or a current emotion. All my convictions are anti-war."

Stafford burst into international prominence in 1963 with publication of the book Travelling Through Darkness which subsequently won the national book prize.

Other books include The Rescued Year and West of Your City.

'At Bridge, I Am Captain Of My Soul'

By KEN CONWAY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Omar Sharif is a highly-paid international movie star whose dark good looks may cause the most heart throbs since Rudolph Valentino

He has everything going for him, you might think, that a fellow could ask.

Not quite.

Except that it would severely diminish his income, says the 37-year-old Egyptian, he would give up films for a career in professional bridge.

"At the bridge table I feel I am the captain of my soul and the master of my fate," the star of Dr. Zhivago told an interviewer. "I find myself hoping the game will never end."

Sharif, who plays as much as he can between movie jobs, is in town as a member of the Omar Sharif Bridge Circus. He and seven other foreign experts are playing top teams in big North American cities. One of their stops was in Winnipeg.

EARNED $20,000

The entourage came to the United States fresh from an 80-rubber match against British experts in London for £1—$2.60—a point and side bets. Sharif and company pocketed about $20,000.

Sharif says bridge is an ideal spectator sport, "more fun to watch than to play."

Spectators are admitted to his circus for $3 each.

"It's a fast moving game, much faster than golf," he says.

"A decision must be made every three or four minutes, and it takes longer than that to play a hole of golf. As a spectator, you see all hands."

He even sees social benefits: "I believe that if people would play bridge they would have less time to hate their fellow man."

CRISIS NOW OVER FOR MERV

WASHINGTON (WP) — The crisis for The Merv Griffin Show (CBS) has passed and the series will continue. The show has had a difficult first six months on the network and only recently has it picked up better ratings.

Part of the improvement stems from a CBS-TV decision to have Griffin spend more time on the West Coast where the show is more accessible to the biggest performers in motion pictures and television.

The second factor in better ratings is the low appeal of The Dick Cavett Show on ABC-TV. Cavett replaced Joey Bishop recently and instead of attracting more viewers has gotten fewer.

Johnny Carson's Tonight series is still well ahead of both his network competitors.

The first sign of trouble for Merv Griffin came when managers of affiliated stations began asking if his programs could be shown the following afternoon. Griffin's previous success had been with a show that was sold to individual stations and scheduled most often during the afternoon. Griffin's contract requires that he approve the shift. He, apparently, agreed.

Meanwhile, as viewing resumed normal patterns following the holidays, Griffin's ratings began to improve. Also, during theis period, Griffin's old employers at Group W (Westinghouse broadcasting) began complaining about plans for stations to carry Griffin in the daytime.

Lamarr Drops Suit

Group of Seven Member Dies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lawren Stewart Harris, one of the last two remaining members of the famed Group of Seven Canadian artists, died Thursday at his home. He was 85.

He outlived by four months his wife, Bess, a top-ranked painter in her own right, who died Sept. 28.

Mr. Harris, who came to Vancouver in 1940, was born in Brantford, Ont., the son of Thomas Harris and Annie Stewart. His family was of the Massey-Harris farm implement manufacturers.

His most widely reproduced works include North Shore, Lake Superior, which now hangs in the National Gallery of Canada in Ottawa. Another is Shacks, which typifies the early period of his painting.

The famed painter's interest in art began early. As a youngster of eight he painted Christmas cards and sent them to relatives. At 12 he was taking weekly art lessons.

After graduating from the University of Toronto, he went to Germany to study art in 1908. In 1911 he became an illustrator with a New York magazine. He returned to Canada a year later, painting street scenes and old houses in the slums and outskirts of Toronto.

JACKSON
. . . last one

There he helped form the Group of Seven, whose only surviving member is A. Y. Jackson of Toronto. The other members of the group were J. E. H. MacDonald, Arthur Lismer, F. H. Varley, Frank H. Johnson and Franklin Carmichael.

The group, the most noted Canadian art body, was an informal association and did not exist in the sense of an organized society. Its members shunned established European techniques to develop their own distinctive Canadian style.

The group's first exhibit was at the Toronto art gallery in 1920 and critics labelled it "The Hot-Mush School."

A member of Parliament took particular exception to Mr. Harris' bleak northern landscapes and said they were a national menace because they would discourage immigration.

* * *

"We accepted the criticism as partly a compliment and we encouraged it," Mr. Harris said at one time. "Our work tried to exhibit the savage landscapes of Canada. We were painting this country in its own terms, painting it as Canadians saw it and not as Europeans saw it."

The Group of Seven later took in younger painters, and by 1933 became known as the Canadian Group of Painters. Mr. Harris became the first president and from 1944-1947 was president of the Federation of Canadian Artists.

In 1940 he moved here and lectured at the school of art. He encouraged many young artists and did much to bring the work of Emily Carr before Canadians.

* * *

In October, 1948, the Toronto Art Gallery honored him with a major one-man exhibition, the first living artist so honored by the gallery. He received honorary doctor-of-law degrees from three Canadian universities and his exhibitions here and in Eastern Canada attracted record crowds.

Mr. Harris continued his search for new means of expression in art up to the time of his death at an age when most men are satisfied to reflect on past accomplishments.

"My work has gone beyond abstractions," he said in a recent interview.

"There's no way of telling what the next step is. When I begin work today I have no idea what the finished product will look like until I'm finished."

An assiduous painter, usually on a large scale, Mr. Harris worked in a large, bright den on the ground floor of his two-storey home near the University of British Columbia.

Arrangements for his funeral have not been set.

U.S. Senate Cuts Maximum Penalty

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Senate this week took the first step to reducing federal penalties for the use and sale of drugs ranging from marijuana to heroin.

It voted unanimously in favor of a bill, strongly backed by the Nixon administration, which would enact lighter maximum sentences than are at present mandatory, would in some cases even remove criminal records for drug offences.

The bill, which will now go to the House of Representatives, applies only to federal sentences but it is hoped it will set a precedent for state laws.

A first offence for possession would carry a maximum sentence of one year and a $5,000 fine. Present federal law imposes a two-to-ten-year sentence for the first offence with suspension or probation permitted.

Constitution Opinion Study Reaction Mixed

By The Canadian Press

There has been mixed reaction, some of it indifferent, from provincial capitals to the establishment of a parliamentary committee to seek grass roots opinion on the question of updating the Canadian constitution.

The Commons Tuesday unanimously approved a government motion to establish the committee, to be made up of 20 members of Parliament and additional representatives appointed by the Senate.

While Premier Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island termed it "a beneficial way of establishing another area of dialogue," Saskatchewan's Ross Thatcher said: "We don't think the constitution is a matter of particular importance."

Premier Robarts of Ontario said: "It is their committee, not mine, and how it functions is up to them. I doubt if we as a government will make representations to it—I believe the place for that is the federal-provincial conference."

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand of Quebec did not comment directly on the proposed committee but a spokesman for his office said the premier favors such a move.

Mr. Bertrand said in a recent speech that, "there is no way a constitution could be imposed on us if it were not substantially accepted by the Quebec people."

Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia remarked: "It's a good thing Ottawa is getting a grass-roots view of something."

Although Mr. Bennett said he was not referring specifically to the constitutional issue, he accused Ottawa of being completely out of touch with the people and suggested the federal cabinet should hold meetings in various parts of the country.

Despite Premier Thatcher's assertion that the constitution is not of particular importance, he said that, "If a parliamentary committe comes to Saskatchewan we'll certainly welcome them and do all we can to assist them."

NOTES SIGNS OF CHANGE

Premier Harry Strom of Alberta commented that the federal government "has not given the provinces any indication of changes they intend to make in constitutional discussions," but said he had noted suggestions of a change.

"At the present time we are very, very bogged down as far as making any progress in constitutional reform. . . ."

Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland said he believes "it's necessary to know the grass-roots feeling" but that it is up to the public to express those opinions.

While Premier Campbell of P.E.I. said it would not be proper to comment on matters dealing with the operations of the federal Parliament, he added that it appears the "proposal will in no way detract from, or interfere with, the on-going constitutional review."

G. I. Smith, premier of Nova Scotia, would say only: "It's a matter for Parliament."

Follow The Flowers To Good Life

Would you believe ninety miles of daffodils?

That's what Vancouver-Burrard MLA H. J. Meriles would like to see as part of an effort to beautify the province.

Merilees suggested in the legislature Wednesday that muncipalities from Hope to Vancouver plant 10 million bulbs of daffodils in the median along highway 401.

He said the highways department could start the beautification ball rolling by budgeting a fraction of one per cent of all freeway and arterial contracts for landscaping.

TOO MUCH 'DIGGING UP'

Flower Overpower at Beacon Hill?

A moratorium on development of Beacon Hill Park was urged by officers of Victoria Labor Council in a meeting with Mayor Courtney Haddock.

Concerned about the "erosion of park area in the city," the VLC group suggested there had been a great deal of "digging up" recently at Beacon Hill.

●

"It is becoming more of a garden than a park," said council secretary-treasurer Larry Ryan. "They should lay off and give the park a chance. There's a lot of blacktop going into it."

The delegation, which included vice-president John Schibli and president Jack Groves, noted the development of Central Park to include a new swimming pool, which shrinks the area available for lawns, trees and play.

It was suggested that the sites of Beacon Hill and South Park schools, on Douglas Street adjoining Beacon Hill Park, be reserved for park use when the schools are closed.

As for existing park development, it was suggested that if work was reduced in Beacon Hill it might be expanded in places like Thetis Lake Park.

VLC is also "apalled" over the construction of a large high-rise apartment building on Michigan Street, which has "obliterated a priceless view on Douglas Street."

●

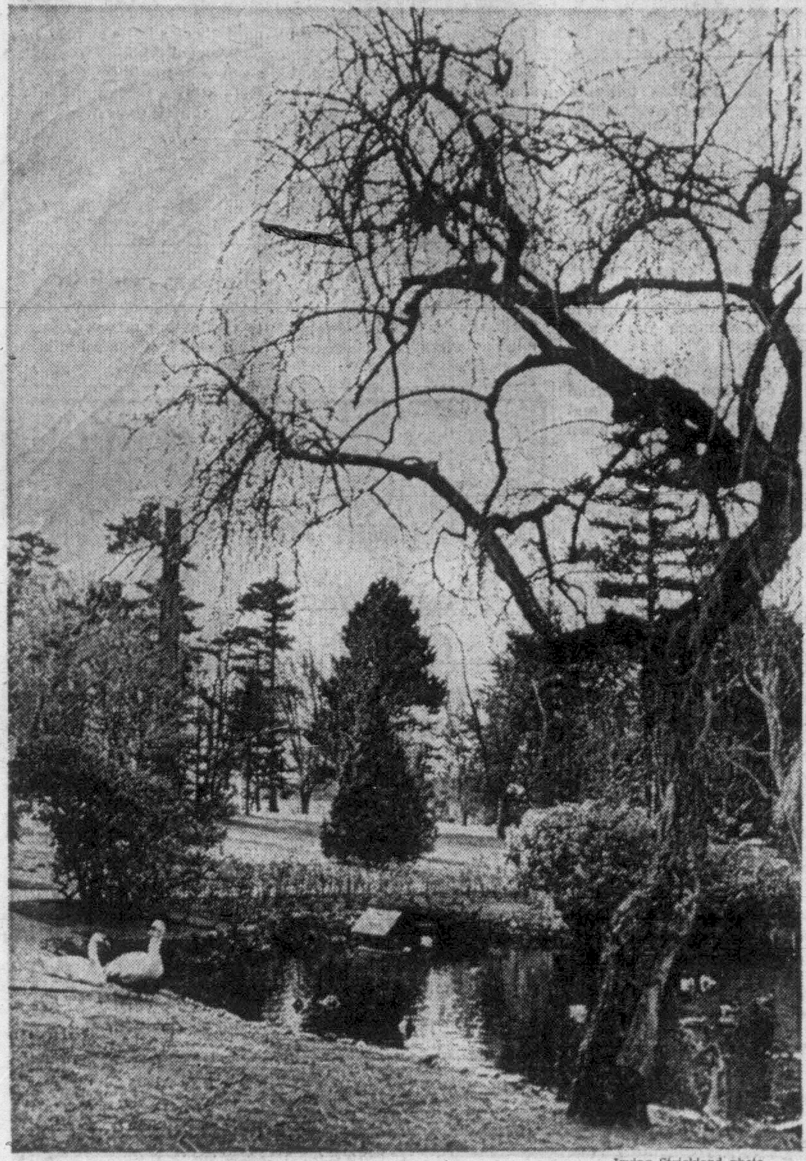
Ryan said the city should devote more attention to regulation of apartment construction, including height zoning and the type of construction proposed by developers, who are allowed to "obliterate views in perpetuity. We think council should exercise more control over these things. It seems to be getting out of hand.

"I don't believe it was realized what damage this (Michigan high-rise) was going to do," he said.

The delegation also sought the mayor's support for a suggested amendment to the licensing bylaw to require bonding of contractors to protect the public from exploitation by door-to-door repairmen, unqualified tradesmen and fly-by-night operators.

●

Also discussed at the Wednesday meeting were expansion of downtown library facilities by acquiring adjacent property, a review of the special grants system, terms of reference of an industrial commission, support for a harbor commission, leasing of important land parcels rather than outright sale, and projected plans for Broad Street.



—Irving Strickland photo.

GETTING TOO FRILLY for their taste, Victoria Labor Council asks that the city stop dressing up Beacon Hill Park. They say it's becoming more a garden than a park. Too much blacktop, they say—but the swans don't seem to mind. They perch on it on a chilly morning.

Cost of Schools Climbs to $23M

Trustees approved a budget of almost $23 million Thursday night to operate the Greater Victoria school system this year.

School board chairman Carron Jameson said today his guess is the budget will produce about a three-mill tax increase. That could mean another $10 to $20 on the average taxpayer's bill.

The school board budget of $22,959,252 falls just within the limit set by a complicated government grant formula. Spending above the limit could have led to a referendum.

INCREASE OF 13 PER CENT

This year's spending, which still requires department of education approval, is up 13.3 per cent over the 1969 budget of $20.26 million. It is almost double the operating budget five years ago.

Major item is teachers' salaries—$13.43 million. Paying off principal and interest on earlier capital spending will cost $2.45 million.

Trustees continued their squirming under the government's squeeze on education funds.

"We're just holding our own," said Jameson of the budget. And that probably wouldn't be possible if the number of new students wasn't dropping.

ALMOST 33,000 PUPILS

The district anticipates 550 more pupils in September. Two or three years ago enrolment was climbing by 1,000 or more annually. There will be close to 33,000 pupils and 1,400 teachers in the fall.

Peter Bunn, chairman of the school board's building and grounds commitee and former board chairman, expressed disgust today over having to haggle with the government on such things as library shelves.

"This is sort of caveman education, isn't it?

"We are hardly doing more than standing still. We may make a tiptoe forward but we sure as hell aren't making the first stride."

REFERENDUM POSSIBLE

A capital spending referendum may be put to the voters later this year, to cover such items as book shelves and other furniture formerly included in the operating budget.

Among other major budget items:

- $657,732 to operate the Institute of Adult Studies.
- $311,330 for the board's evening education program.
- $920,674 for administration.
- $73,000 for transportation.

A total of $1.12 million was approved for building repairs and maintenance, but not before $184,254 was pared from the preliminary estimates.

'WAIT AND SEE' SAYS OLAFSON

Ald. Harold Olafson said this morning he is prepared to take a "wait-and-see" attitude on Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock's streamlined administration.

He was the only alderman available for comment this morning as the first "board of management" meeting was held at city hall.

Haddock announced his administrative shakeup plans Thursday morning.

Following the announcement, Ald Hugh Ramsay said he supported the move.

Ramsay stressed that his own business — farm and construction equipment—operated in a similar way and that he saw no reason why city hall could not be run by the same management stream system.

Haddock's plan calls for a board of management comprised of department heads, an executive group comprised of the city manager, the city planner, the treasurer and engineer, and a board of governors or city council.

This morning's meeting of the management board will see all department heads outlining their duties to members of council.

All "board of management" and "executive directors" meetings will be closed to the press.

'BUNCH OF NONSENSE'

Radical Red Power Denied by Students

A radical, militant red power group that rejects its elders and advocates violence is definitely not being established in Victoria, a group of young Indian organizers claimed today.

Bill Wilson, Larry Seymour and Ron Hamilton were responding to a story in Thursday's Times which suggested the atmosphere at a meeting of 150 native youth Wednesday at the Institute of Adult Studies was hostile, anti-white and militant.

The story, which quoted as its source an unidentified Indian student who allegedly attended the meeting, reported the ejection of a Times reporter, jostling of a white teacher, and claimed native youth at the meeting rejected their chiefs.

It further claimed that at a second, more agressive meeting, some participants advocated "kicking out a few windows."

The story was a distortion of the facts, charged Wilson, a fourth-year political science student at the University of Victoria.

He was erroneously identified in the story as being elected president of a new organization formed at the meeting.

FAR FROM HOSTILE

"But there was definitely no organization formed and I certainly wasn't elected to any position," he said.

Wilson is president of the National Native Student Association of Canada, a body formed some time ago.

He said the atmosphere at the meeting was constructive and far from hostile—a creative session in which ideas were freely kicked back and forth.

Seymour, who was named in the story as being involved in the ejection of the reporter, said the incident was misrepresented.

"I told her she'd have to wait until there was a group decision, that she might not be permitted to stay," Seymour said.

"There was a vote and the majority decided to let everybody who wanted to stay at the meeting and observe. She didn't stick around long enought to find that out."

'GET OUT, WOMAN'

Pat Dufour, the Times reporter, said today Seymour did not indicate she might be permitted to stay for the meeting.

When she identified herself to Seymour before the meeting and said she would like to attend, he told her "Why should we have you here?"

"Get out, woman," he told her after suggesting the press had never done anything to benefit Indians.

Seymour then said the people at the meeting would probably take a vote to see whether "any outsiders" would be permitted to attend. But, thinking she was not to be included among those, Mrs. Dufour left.

Seymour said no white teachers were intimidated, and none were told they could attend the meeting if they would "sit down and shut up."

Gail Roach, a white counsellor at the Institute of Adult Studies, corroborated Seymour's statement.

"There was no intimidation of white teachers," she said.

"Their discussion on the point as to whether outsiders should be there was highly valid, and they did vote to let us stay.

"I felt no animosity."

She charged reports that a teacher with a camera was hassled by 10 Indian students was "highly inaccurate."

'VERY ORDERLY'

"The only person who approached him was me. I told him he should ask the kids before he took any pictures."

Jack Kempster, the teacher who was allegedly intimidated, said no such incident took place.

"The allegation that I was intimidated is a bunch of nonsense," he said.

"Hamilton asked me to come to the meeting and take some pictures, then Seymour asked me to explain to the meeting who I was and what I was doing. It was all very orderly, and there was nothing out of place whatsoever."

NO REPUDIATION

Hamilton, also a student at Adult Studies, said he objected strongly to suggestion in the story that the meeting was militant, led to proposals of violence, and that participants rejected their elders.

"There was no statement made about kicking out windows or anything like it. The atmosphere was definitely not militant, but positive, and a statement of support for the Union of B.C. Chiefs," he said.

"We did not at any time repudiate our chiefs. That was the farthest thing from our minds."

He said the whole purpose of the meeting was simply to lay some groundwork for a possible province-wide native youth organization in the future.

THE WHOLE POINT

And the whole point of such an organization, he said, would be to solidly back the chiefs, to establish communication between B.C. Indian communities and then work towards real group solidarity.

"It doesn't matter how old you are, you're still an Indian," said Wilson.

Hamilton stressed that Wednesday's meeting never intended to establish such a body overnight.

"This was just to establish a degree of social and political awareness among Indian youth," he said.

"We know what we want, something more meaningful that what is."

ASK THE TIMES

Q. What was the highest score ever recorded in a rugby match, and what teams were competing? H.G.

A. Several scores of more than 100 points have been recorded, says the Guiness Book of Records, but the highest total came when Radford School thumped Hills Court 176-0 in 1886. The score is arrived at by changing the 31 goals (converted trys) and seven trys to modern scoring values of three points for trys and penalties, two points for conversions. Highest score in a tour match was recorded in 1962 when New Zealand All Blacks crushed Northern New South Wales, Australia 103-0, and the highest international score came in 1924 when France beat Romania 59-0.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Last Chance for Park

Property owners in Langford, Colwood and Metchosin will vote Saturday in a referendum to acquire a 77-acre park.

It would be only the second local public park — proposed for outdoor sports — in the unorganized area where 20,000 people live.

To succeed, explained returning officer Mrs. Mary Colclough, there must be 60 per cent or better voters in each of the three areas.

The potential park site is the old Colwood racetrack property owned by the federal government which is willing to sell it for park purposes for $2,000 an acre, or $154,000.

This is less than half the price it would sell for as a development and one warning has been issued that it will fall to developers unless the public purchases the land.

Richard Emery, the Colwood representative on the Capital Regional Board, has said that failure of the referendum will mean private speculators will get the last large potential recreational area in the district.

Polls will be open between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. this Saturday at these locations:

Colwood — Sangster Elementary School, Colwood Elementary School;

Langford — Belmont Secondary School, Happy Valley Elementary School, Langford Elementary School, Millstream Elementary School, Glen Lake Elementary School;

Metchosin — Metchosin Elementary School.

Total Pool Cost To Top Budget

The total cost of the new swimming pool and community centre in Gordon Head will exceed the amount budgeted in the 1967 Saanich recreation referendum.

This was disclosed at a meeting of the Gordon Head Community Centre Committee Thursday, even though the construction cost is $33,000 below the estimate.

Committee chairman Ald. Alan Newberry said, however, that this is not unusual and that it happened on two earlier recreation projects, the George R. Pearkes Arena and the Saanich Senior Citizens Activity Centre.

The committee will recommend to this Monday's council meeting that the low bid of $401,384 from E. J. Hunter and Sons Limited be accepted.

Municipal comptroller-treasurer John Tribe told the committee that the total cost of the project includes:

Construction, $401,384; architects and consultants fees, $32,000; site preparation, driveway, lighting, landscaping and sewer connection, $40,600; various interior furnishings, $30,000; for a total of $503,984.

The 1967 recreation referendum provided $470,000 for the project.

Tribe said an additional $30,000 was provided in the provisional municipal budget for 1970 and the committee recommended that council approve this expenditure for the project.

The committee was told that if council approves the contract recommendation Monday it could be signed Tuesday and E. J. Hunter and Sons Limited would be ready to start work immediately.

Completion date was estimated at Sept. 15.

Arthur Mayse . . .

OVER IN WICKED VANCOUVER, Provincial Judge Les Bewley has raised a ripple by suggesting that holdups might become fewer if armed heisters knew their victims were equipped to shoot back. It's an interesting opinion, even though lawmen aren't likely to thank the judge for it. And under certain highly-specialized circumstances, it could make armed robbery an unpopular occupation.

★

A few years ago in Chicago, a handgun artist of high repute concluded a trick-shooting display ordered up by an outdoorsmen's club. Then he and his wife strolled to the hotel parking garage where their car was stabled As they stepped out of the self-service elevator, they glimpsed shadowy figures moving in on them from the depths of the ill-lighted cavern.

The exhibition shooter, who knew a gang when he saw one, opened his gun case and slipped loaded clips into each of his .22 automatics.

He faced the zip-gunners, switchblade wielders and bicycle-chain-swingers with a pistol in each hand, and ordered them to drop their weapons. Instead, they rushed him.

Our guy then slipped both safeties and opened fire, though not to kill. His targets were knees and ankles, and he popped them on the wing. The ruckus ended before it had well begun.

That was a specialized circumstance. First, the intended victim was a practised and highly-skilled pistoleer, with the steely nerve of a frontier sheriff. Second, he had advance warning of trouble on the way.

★

In the typical holdup attempt, the citizen lacks these advantages. For one thing, he is taken by surprise. For another, he is justifiably frightened. And for a third, even were he armed, he probably couln't get his gun into action in less than five seconds.

Further, if he were allowed that much time, it's doubtful that he could hit a bull's behind at three paces.

If free-and-easy gun toting caused a drop in crimes of violence, the fact would surely be apparent in the United States. In many of those states, possession and carrying of handguns has never been unduly restricted, and in the last few years, such weapons have multiplied.

★

So have the very crimes that the gun bought for self-defence is supposed to protect against.

American writer Philip Wylie had something to say about this rush to arms not long ago.

He pointed out that the fear behind it was doing his countrymen more harm than the violence which inspired that fear.

Wise words, and they deserve to be heeded.

I'm not against guns, either long or short, in legitimate use. As a matter of fact, since even the smallest rifle is awkward for a man with a fishing-rod in his other hand to carry, I wouldn't mind being able to take a lightweight plinking revolver along on wild country jaunts.

But I don't want that privilege badly enough to support a change in our strict laws that govern both the possession and the carrying of handguns, and I disagree entirely with the judge's suggestion.

Once in Vancouver, I was assigned to interview a middle aged storekeeper who was recovering in hospital from a holdup. He had been struck on the head with a gun-butt, then beaten. He couldn't be shaved, because his face was one raw abrasion, and that bothered him.

★

Among other stupid questions, I asked him if he kept a gun in his corner grocery.

His wife, who sat weeping beside him, answered for him.

"No," she said. "And even if he did, he'd never try to use it."

Her courage was the sort that Philip Wylie urged on his people. It was the courage of the non-violent, and in some future millenium, perhaps it will prevail.

Until it does, those not given to violence require much more far-reaching protection from the armed, violent thief than they are receiving.

★

The penalties provided for those who commit such crimes are by no means lenient as they stand. I doubt that making them tougher would serve a useful purpose. It's possible, however, that more money spent on reclamation and rehabilitation programs might.

We could help ourselves as well by doing what I urged earlier this week — spending to ensure that our police forces are as well-equipped for crime prevention and crime control as they can possibly be.

But far more effective in the long run might be a determined attempt to clean up the environments and conditions that produce the armed criminal.

That can't be done with a gun!

Antibiotics Inhibit Medium's Reception

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto medium blamed antibiotics for her failure to communicate with the spirits.

Just about everything went wrong for Betty Robinson as she picked out people at random from an audience of 500 this week and told them the information the spirits were revealing to her about them.

The information was all wrong.

"I've been sick," she said later. "Antibiotics dull the mind and you can't pick things up clearly."

Mrs. Robinson told one of the audience at the First Unitarian Congregation hall that a blind child, a woman called Helen and someone who had died of a heart attack wanted to reach her.

The woman replied that she did not know any of them.

She was also told that she would be going to Europe for a holiday.

"No way," she said later. "If I have the money I want to go to Mexico."

Mrs. Robinson asked a man: "Do you have anything to do with garments, clothing?

"No," he replied. "I teach."

She asked another: ". . . You're a student. You're taking psychology."

"No," answered the girl. "Art."

Inflatable Cards Make Gassy Gifts

By PENNY SAVER

Mother was pouting so hard she would have put a pigeon to shame.

"Your sister-in-law," she sputtered, "is an obstinate fool. The day I can't even spoil my own grandchildren. . . ."

At this point she became incoherent so I popped a cup of tea in her hand and asked her to explain.

"Mildred phoned to ask me not to give little Lettice a gift on her birthday—just a card. She thinks the child is spoiled!"

I had to agree with mother's point of view. Lettice is no more spoiled than most children.

But I knew, as did mother, that if Mildred said no gifts, no gifts it would have to be.

"Why not buy the best and biggest card you can find," I suggested soothingly. "One that will be as much fun as a toy."

"Or one that can double as a toy," said mother, her eyes sparkling. "And I know just where to get it. Can you drive me downtown?"

The birthday card mother bought Lettice is inflatable.

Shaped like a little burro, it urges her to get a kick out of her birthday. And it is big enough to use as a toy.

This birthday burro is one of a line of inflatable greetings ranging from get-well to an all-occasion hound dog that can be used for autographs. Other shapes include a bright bug and a porpoise.

These inflatable cards, complete with mailing envelope, cost $1.50.

The inflatable card didn't completely ease mother's disappointment, partly because she had already decided what to give Lettice and had been anticipating the child's reaction.

"I was going to giver her a sombrero, a funny, fancy one. I found quite a number of straw hats, from neat little cowboy-type hats for children to a massive sombrero that fits better on a wall than on a head.

"These hats ranged from $1.50 for the little ones to $5.95.

"At first I thought the biggest, which was displayed on the wall, was some kind of skirt. It kind of rippled and was banded with bright colors.

"Then I changed position and caught a side view of the crown! I was so surprised.

"But anyway, I can't buy that or any other hat for Lettice now. Not while her mother keeps being stubborn."

If you would like to know where to shop for these items, please call 382-3131 between 9 a.m. and 12 noon.

Great Care Needed In Changing Yarns

By MAY MacLEAN

Dear May, I bought a lovely suit pattern on my last trip to New York. It calls for a tweed yarn, but I was unable to obtain the exact yarn here in Canada. The yarn I used knitted exactly to the same stitch tension, but I have found that I have had to buy several more balls than the pattern called for. The finished suit looks nice, but not the same as the photograph. Can you tell me the reason why?

Mrs. B.B., Montreal.

Dear Mrs. B.B., Some of the American yarns are obtainable here in Canada, and many are available under their European label. However, when the original yarn called for is unobtainable, it is possible to use a substitute, but only if the stitch tension will match perfectly.

Great care should be taken with your choice. For instance, if the original model shown in the photograph is from a tweed or boucle yarn it is going to look totally different if you knit it with a smooth type of yarn. So try if possible to select a yarn which is of the same texture.

When changing yarns, always look at the label to see what the make-up content of wool, or a combination of wool and a synthetic, wool and mohair or linen is. Note the percentage of the various fibres used and try to select a yarn nearly the same.

Hand knitting yarn is sold by weight. Two balls of different yarns, each weighing the same, do not necessarily have the same number of yards to each ball. Some synthetic fibres weigh heavier than others, and the percentage of those used in the yarn will determine the number of yards to the ball.

Of course the big problem in selecting yarns is — will you have enough? Or will you buy too much? Most yarn shops put aside a few extra balls, and take back any remaining, but only within a reasonable amount of time. The problem is not so great when you have too much, as you can always use up the extra balls for small items such as mitts and caps.

Speaking of caps, this week's pattern is all the rage with the teen-age crowd right now. Knitted caps are being worn all the time with maxi-coats, and they look so smart with the long matching scarf swinging gaily!

The instructions for the two sets are on the one leaflet — one is crochet and the other is knit.

The beret fits an average head size of 20½-22 inches and the scarf is in two lengths — 66 inches or 90 inches.

To order Leaflet No. 6929, send 35c in coin or money order. Your order must be accompanied with a stamped self-addressed return envelope, long one if possible Send to: May E. Mac Lean, Knit and Chat, c-o the Times. Please be sure to state pattern number when ordering, and to allow two to three weeks for delivery.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Strategic Retreat

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I'm sure you've never had another letter like this one. The situation is as follows: My husband has never been a very sociable person. He doesn't enjoy being with relatives, his or mine. In fact, he's never enjoyed being with his own children. Our two eldest are now married and gone, and our youngest recently left for college, so my husband moved out of our bedroom and into the spare bedroom.

I like people, Abby, and always enjoyed having friends and neighbors drop in to visit. When this happened, my husband would feel so "intruded upon" that he'd just excuse himself and find someplace to go.

About a month ago he said it would be better for everyone if he got his own apartment just so he could be by himself. Knowing how stubborn he is, I didn't try to talk him out of it. You understand we aren't angry with each other or anything like that, and he can well afford the apartment. He comes back to visit me often, and seems in a much happier frame of mind. Of course, I'd rather have him home all the time, but I don't want him to be unhappy. No one knows about the apartment but me. What do you think of this setup?—Wondering.

DEAR WONDERING: I think your husband is going to extremes to be by himself. (A den or spare bedroom to be used as his private retreat should suffice.) It seems to me that a husband who first wants out of the bedroom, then wants out of the house, will probably next want out of your life.

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of two small children, and I am very much in love with my husband.

My problem is that I am extremely attracted to my husband's boss. When we see each other socially, I find myself wanting to be near him, and show my affection, but instead I greet him with polite coolness, and avoid him all evening. Oddly enough, I have the feeling that he is attracted to me, too.

Now, I think I have overdone it, Abby, and I am afraid I have hurt his feelings, and he thinks that I actually dislike him. Nothing could be further from the truth. Being an honest person, basically, this bothers me. Do you think I should tell him truthfully why I have been so cool to him? I don't like the feeling I have about the whole thing. — Mixed Up.

DEAR MIXED UP: If you are looking for trouble, just confess to a man whom you find extremely attractive, and suspect the feeling mutual, that you've been cool to him because you don't want him to know how much you really like him.

My advice to you is to discontinue the artificial winds from the north, and stick by your husband when his boss is in the company.

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I'd be writing to you, but here I go. I work in a fairly large office. All of the girls I eat lunch with are married, myself included. Every day without fail, one of the girls insists on discussing her marital affairs (and she doesn't leave anything out, either) with the girls at lunchtime. We all feel as though we have a ringside (or should I say bedside) seat in their private life. Is there any way someone can tell this person how we feel about this very private matter being discussed at the lunch table? Please sign me.—Sick of Sex Talk.

DEAR SICK: Yes. Why don't you take the bull by the horns and tell her?

CONFIDENTIAL TO TALK ME OUT OF IT IN CLEVELAND: Memorize the following gem of wisdom by Ella Wheeler Wilcox:

And God shall hear your words and make them
true."

What's your probem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

SPORTS FORBIDDEN

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP) — Soccer is a national pastime for the young men of Paraguay, and the girls like to play too. But the law says they can't. The statute forbids women from playing soccer or participating in "other sports incompatible with the conditions of their nature." The National Sports Council says it will prosecute violators.

High Penalty For Milk Thief

JOUBERTINA, South Africa (AP) — Farmer's wife Louisa Potgieter couldn't fathom why her cow was giving less milk. The cow's milk supply dwindled to nothing at all until her sister paid an unexpected visit to the cowshed one morning. Standing just outside the door with milk foaming around its snout was a pig, lustily sucking away at the cow. Farmer Roelof Potgieter killed the thief.

More than 300 people listened intently to panel's opinions on abortion legislation.

Abortion Law Changes Favored By Majority, Panel Tells Meeting

By JUDI FREEMAN

A poll of Victoria's medical profession shows that a majority of doctors favor a change in Canada's present laws on abortion.

Mrs. Elizabeth Murrison, 854 Somenos, told a public meeting attended by more than 300 Thursday that 55 of 94 replies to an anonymous poll by letter Monday were in favor of making abortion a matter between a woman and her doctor.

HEALTH DANGER

Present legislation requires a decision from a panel of three doctors on the basis of danger to the physical or mental health of the mother.

There were 184 Victoria doctors polled; 19 wanted no change in present legislation while 20 indicated extensive change was needed.

The meeting was held in Victoria High School to hear a panel of six debate the pros and cons of amendments to the abortion laws. Moderator was Prof. J. S. Hayward of the University of Victoria.

Mrs. Murrison arranged the meeting as part of a campaign to have the laws eased.

"We should not be expected to live by the religious beliefs of others," said Mrs. Murrison.

She urged them to write letters to politicians and "if necessary threaten not to vote for any political party which does not support our cause."

Lawyer Rodney Beavan stated that the question of abortion should be up to husband and wife in consultation with their doctor.

"I don't think any group should have the power to say yes or no to this question," he said.

"Surely the women know best. In an era of change it is time for the women to decide for themselves."

Beavan was supported by panelist Bernice Packford, local social worker, who said women should be considered responsible citizens cabable of making decisions.

PRIEST OPPOSED

"I think that a matter which concerns our own bodies should be left to us," said Mrs. Packford.

Her statement was challenged later by Rev. E. Laura Butler who restated an earlier stand by Msgr. Michael O'Connell that the unborn child has some rights.

"When a child is conceived it is no longer your body alone," said Rev. Butler. "When we marry we have the consent of society to bring life into being. The child becomes the concern of society. And life and death are social matters for they affect the community."

Rev. Butler agreed that abortion laws should be liberalized "but I feel that abortions should be granted after due consideration by a responsible board which deals compassionately" with requests.

TWO REASONS

Reasons for abortions might be rape or the possibility of a deformed child, she said.

Msgr. O'Connell, rector of St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral, was the only panel member who did not favor some form of amendment to the abortion laws.

He suggested that the present amendments be retained and studied extensively "with great care" before further change was advocated.

"If we are going to improve the world we are not going to do it by eliminating human life. We must change institutions."

He said humans should be valued from conception to the grave.

Oak Bay MLA G. Scott Wallace bore the brunt of questions from the audience.

In his initial address, he reiterated his opposition to "abortion on demand" and said the present legislation has "considerable latitude."

SECOND DOCTOR

"But the phrase 'danger to health' should be spelled out more clearly," he said.

Under questioning, Wallace said abortion should be considered by a husband and wife with their own doctor and in consultation with a second doctor.

One questioner said he didn't want a doctor to make a moral judgment for him.

NO MORAL BASIS

Wallace said there was no moral judgment involved. Decisions on abortions, as for sterilization, would be made on the basis of health and danger of the operation to the mother.

"Having an abortion is not like going to the hairdresser's."

Wallace cautioned against a dramatic change in the laws.

"There is as much danger in sudden extreme change as there is in no change at all."

Handicapped Senator Pushes Abortion Bill

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — A bill to give South Carolina one of the nation's most liberal abortion laws was steered to passage by a House member who used himself as an example of birth defects.

Rep. Thomas W. Greene, born with a withered arm, led the fight for legislation to permit abortion in cases where pregnancy endangers the physical or mental health of the mother or where there is substantial risk of a defective child.

"I know something about this problem of physical defects," Greene said as an unusual quiet fell over the House. "The mother should be allowed to make this decision between her God and her doctors."

The bill was approved on a 67-36 vote and was expected to be returned to the Senate for concurrence in amendments today.

Opponents charged that the bill would make South Carolina "an abortion mill" and permitted "legal murder."

The new law would permit abortions when three doctors agree that "continuation of the pregnancy would threaten the life or impair the mental or physical health of the mother . . ."

Abortions would similarly be permitted when there was "substantial risk that the child would be born with physical or mental defects."

Clergy Sanctions Ecumenical Bliss

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — The Massachusetts Commission on Christian Unity, an organization of Roman Catholic and Protestant clergy, released today a set of guidelines indicating new views on religiously mixed marriages.

The Rev. Thomas P. Howard of Franklin, a minister in the United Church of Christ and chairman of the commission, said the guidelines had been approved by Cardinal Richard Cushing, Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston, as well as by bishops in the four Catholic dioceses in Massachusetts and by major Protestant leaders.

One change in attitude, he told a news conference at the Episcopal Theological School, is seen by the term "ecumenical marriage" instead of "mixed marriage" describing couples with different religious backgrounds and beliefs.

Since the Vatican II Ecumenical Conference, he added, "most churches are recognizing that persons in mixed marriages have a special and positive role in the life of the churches. Being partners of a 'mixed marriage' in no way lessen the holiness of your marriage."

Among the guidelines, contained in a booklet designed as a personal message to "ecumenical couples," is an appeal for husbands and wives to not only worship at their own church but with their marriage partner at his or her church.

The guidelines also urge "ecumenical education" for children, familiarizing them with religious beliefs and practices of both parents to help foster "an appreciation of the worth and meaning of the religious traditions that are a part of their family."

The Rev. Howard said the guidelines, believed to be the first such set, concede attitudes by various churches in the past on mixed marriages sometimes have led one or both partners from his or her church or all religious connection. The guidelines urge discussion of all issues involved with an ecumenically minded clergyman — or layman — to sidestep any premature severing of religious connections.

The guidelines deal with Catholic-Protestant marriages, he said, and future guidelines may be developed to deal with orthodox church members.

Drug Spy Passed Acid Coke Test

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — A young mother who was an undercover narcotics agent at a high school says her most frightening moment came when a young man told her he had slipped an LSD cube into her soft drink.

"The first thing that came to my mind was 'where is the nearest hospital and how fast can I get there'" recalled Carolyn Carrison in an interview.

"But luckily he hadn't dropped the acid in the coke," said the petite 22-year-old college senior. "He was just trying to see what my reaction would be."

Carolyn Carrison—an undercover alias—spent four months posing as a kookie senior at Tascosa High School here by day and as a member of the drug scene at night.

The climax came last week when authorities, armed with grand jury indictments, arrested a large number of alleged drug offenders.

It was four months of pot parties and deception and lonely hours of ferreting out drug contacts, she said in the interview granted on condition she not discuss certain points.

"It could not only jeopardize her life but a number of the cases," said detective Don Smith.

Carolyn actually volunteered for the job, walking into police headquarters one day and asking to be an undercover agent.

She explained she did this for personal reasons and because of an aversion to drugs and drug users.

The police intelligence unit sent her, after carefully probing her background, to Tascosa High School in the guise of an 18-year-old beset with parental problems.

She told her youthful companions she lived with an older brother, actually her husband, 26, an employee of a sound recording firm.

She placed her two-year-old son in a nursery and at times with his grandparents.

Her parents, Carolyn said, were against the idea.

"They were always afraid I would get hurt. They believe the Mafia is coming to get me," she smiled.

She said her husband had misgivings but "after a serious discussion" went along willingly with her adventure.

"I didn't have any dates as such," she said. "I just went out, either in a group or alone. Nobody ever came by the house and picked me up."

She said she brushed aside offers of dates, usually by claiming she was too busy or explaining that "I have a big brother who keeps a tight rein on me."

She said officers taught her how to smoke marijuana without inhaling and that on occasion when she could not avoid them she would "participate" in pot parties.

Carolyn said she attended classes at Tascosa about a month before making her first contact but she could not elaborate on the circumstances.

"It snowballed," she said.

"This may not be much," she said. "What I've done is nothing compared to the problem. But maybe it will stir up some people."

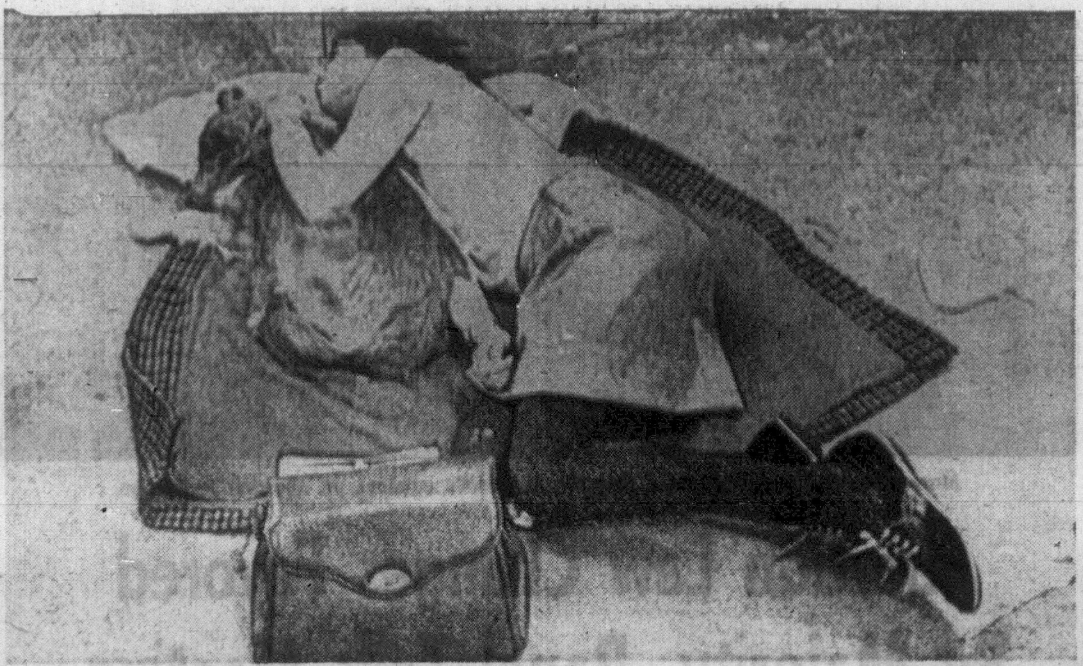
FASHION FLASHES

Beads and pearls will replace chains for spring, worn in multiple lengths and color combinations with day and evening costumes.

There will be even more scarves than before, long lengths of fringed silk, or big Spanish triangles, both in new Art Deco and graphic designs.

New belts will be more narrow, but with lots of zip, in gold cords, tasselled, in leather passed through enamelled rings, in silk braid.



NERVOUS? WHO'S NERVOUS?

Neither Linda Brevik nor her Shetland sheep dog, Royal, seemed worried as they waited for the "fun match" dog show sponsored recently in Seattle by the South King County Dog Fanciers' Association. While others paced and preened, Linda and Royal curled up for a quiet nap. Royal woke up to win a first-place ribbon. (AP Wirephoto)

Pint-Sized Pick-Pockets Learn To Read, Write and Love Work

By CARL D. ROBINSON

VINH LONG, Vietnam (AP) — When Tuyet was six she ran away from her temperamental father and her home in a Saigon slum. She roamed the streets five years and became a leader of a gang of urchins who make their living by picking pockets.

At 11 Tuyet was picked up by police.

She was lucky, because the court sentenced her to an indeterminate term in a quiet spot in the Mekong Delta.

Now, wearing a clean dress, Tuyet sits in the back corner of a classroom diligently copying the day's lesson off the blackboard. She is learning how to read. Around her are girls of similar backgrounds—other gang leaders, runaways, and orphans.

They are in the Home of the Good Shepherd, run by Irish nuns.

Back in 1958, Mother Dympna —who has returned to her native County Cavan only once in the last 33 years—and other nuns took over a one-time French officers' compound. They converted a two-storey villa into their quarters, barracks into classrooms and dormitories, and a front yard into a beautiful miniature park full of tropical plants and flowers.

The sisters' first job was the rehabilitation of prostitutes and bar girls picked up under strict morality laws established by the late president Ngo Dinh Diem.

GIRLS SETTLE DOWN

The home soon had a reputation for developing solid alternatives for the girls. Trained to read and write, sew and cook, they went out to find work or husbands and settle down.

These same girls still return for visits, bringing along their husbands and children. One came back with six sons.

Some 2,000 girls have gone through the home in 11 years. Only rarely do the girls fall back into trouble.

Nine sisters from the Order of the Good Shepherd share responsibilities at the home. Five from Ireland and two from Malaysia all speak Vietnamese. Two Vietnamese sisters who received training in Singapore complete the staff.

The 200 girls are from one to 18 years old—orphans, unwed mothers, beggars and runaways.

"The main idea here is to teach these girls the love of work—that they have to earn money instead of taking it from peoples' pockets," says Sister Mary from County Kilkenny.

Girls learn home economics, tailoring, embroidery, and secretarial skills. They learn to use their imaginations—do their own shopping, sing and play the guitar, pattern and sew their own clothes.

Teachers At Workshop

Teachers from several of Victoria's co-op play schools are attending workshops and lectures in Vancouver this week-end.

This morning they attended a seminar at the Institute of Child Study, and the afternoon program included a talk by Pat James, group development worker for the Vancouver Association of Co-operative Play Schools.

Theme of Saturday's workshop will be exercises in sensory awareness, conducted by Anthony Holland of Vancouver City College.

Teachers attending include Diane Cownden, Jean Mitchell, Joyce Stamford, Shirley Mazerolle and Edelgard Carolffeld. Accompanying them is Lorraine Ayers, president of the Vancouver Island Co-operative Play School Association.

Auto Safety Bill Adequacy Questioned

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — There was support in the Commons Thursday for the government's proposed auto-safety bill but there was concern that it does not meet Canadian needs.

Transport Minister Don Jamieson, opening second-reading debate, said that 29 standards for safety will be set by regulations under the legislation and that if it is passed by March they would apply to 1971 models.

The bill would impose fines of up to $200,000 on manufacturers, distributors or importers who knowingly sell a defective car.

Percy Noble (PC — Grey-Bruce) said Canada was adopting standards already followed in the United States. He questioned whether these standards are adequate for Canadian driving conditions.

Barry Mather (NDP—Surrey) said the bill is a step in the right direction but that it contains "many weaknesses and shortcomings."

Gerard Laprise (Creditiste—Abitibi) said his party favors the bill, but that he hopes more detailed information would be available when it is sent to the Commons transportation committee for further study.

STRONG CRITIC

Strongest criticism of the legislation came from Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot) who said the fact that safety inspectors would be appointed by the transport minister at his discretion leaves it open to political skulduggery.

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) also questioned whether the 29 standards are adequate for Canadian winter-driving conditions.

Mr. Jamieson said the standards apply to vehicles used on highways but will not include snowmobiles. They could, however, be included later.

The safety standards now proposed already are found in most U.S.-made cars. They include safety belts and non-protruding objects on car interiors.

Today, the Commons was to consider an amendment to the Canada Shipping Act that would require foreign shipowners to pay for all medical and hospital services provided in Canada to sailors employed on their vessels.

Legislation to make students loans easier to obtain was given third reading earlier Thursday, after a brief debate in which Mark Rose (NDP—Fraser Valley West) said an increase in the number of student loans means that fewer students are able to pay their own way.

GOES TO SENATE

The bill, which now goes to the Senate, authorizes trust, loan and insurance companies as approved lenders. Only banks now are allowed to make the loans.

The measure also ends a requirement that loan applicants from abroad be required to declare their intention to remain in Canada after graduation. It authorizes loans of up to $500 a semester, and raises the loan limit for the 1970 and following loan year to $115,000,000. It was $100,000,000 in 1969, when $71,727,077 was lent.

The House also gave third reading to amendments to the Small Businesses Loans Act and the Quebec Savings Bank Act.

The businesses loans act amendments allow trust, loans, and insurance companies as well as banks to make government-guaranteed loans.

The Quebec Savings Bank amendment will allow the Montreal and City District Savings Bank to operate outside Montreal. Both bills now go to the Senate.

BLACK MILITANTS HECKLE EX-CHAMP

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — "You niggers give me more trouble than the whites!" Cassius Clay shouted to about 100 black militant hecklers.

The group had interrupted the defrocked heavyweight boxing champion's lecture at Muhlenberg College Thursday night.

The hecklers criticized Clay—who prefers the Black Muslim name Mohammed Ali—for buying a $75,000 house in Philadelphia.

"Do you want me to buy a home in the ghetto?" Clay countered.

Some students shouted that Clay would live in with racial brothers if he really cared about them.

Clay, obviously ruffled, shouted at one black youth: "Sit down! You're nothing but a nigger! Be quiet, boy, before I knock you down! You niggers give me more trouble than the whites!"

At that, about 100 students, both black and white, left the college auditorium, jerring and hooting Clay.

Clay left after the crowd dispersed.

Conflicting Statements In Rape Case

One man's conflicting statements—admitting and denying sex relations with a 14-year-old girl—were read as evidence in Victoria Assize Court Thursday afternoon.

The statements were alleged to have been made by William H. Hollinger, 22, of Duncan who, with Michael D. Newstead, 17, of 482 Burnside East, is charged with raping the girl near Interurban Road late Nov. 11 and early Nov. 12.

Both have pleaded not guilty.

Dectective George Walton of Saanich police said he took the first statement from Hollinger on Nov. 13 about 11:55 p.m.

In this statement Hollinger told how he and Newstead drove the girl home from the Reception and Diagnostic Centre on Carey Road. He denied having relations with her.

In a second statement, made to Walton at Victoria police station on Nov. 20, Hollinger said he had relations with the girl but there were no threats or promises of any kind.

Hollinger said the girl told him she needed $10 to pay for some "acid."

SECOND STATEMENT

"I propositioned her," the statement read. "She took off her ring and necklace and put them in the glove compartment of the car ... There was no force, no threats.

A statement by Newstead, taken in Saanich police station by Walton and Detective John Merrifield, was also admitted as evidence.

Newstead told how he and Hollinger picked up the girl at the Carey Road home and drove her home. He said the car stopped near Interurban Road and both he and Hollinger had relations with the girl.

The jury of 12 men was excluded all Thursday morning while lawyers argued the admissibility of the statements. The jury returned at 2:30 p.m. and the evidence was heard in open court.

NURSE TESTIFIES

Margaret Harbottle, a Royal Jubilee Hospital nurse, said the girl was brought to the emergency ward about 4:45 a.m. on Nov. 12.

Her doctor was called and Miss Harbottle prepared her for examination. She said she found no bruises or wounds on the girl's body.

"Did you notice anything about her emotional state?" asked David Skillings, assistant to Crown counsel J. W. Anderson.

"Yes, she seemed fairly calm and rational," Miss Harbottle replied.

She said the girl's doctor took swabs and slides which were turned over to the hospital pathologist.

Sharon Ann Finkleman, a social work aide at the Reception and Diagnostic Centre on Carey Road, said the girl had previously been a resident of the centre.

Witness said she revisited the premises on Nov. 11 at 8 p.m. Some time later, Newstead and Hollinger arrived and suggested they give the girl a ride home. She agreed and left with them in a white car.

Saanich police Constable David Smith said he examined the spot where the alleged rape took place and found three beer bottles. The fingerprints on one of them corresponded to those of Hollinger.

He said he also found tire prints in the area that were made either by Hollinger's car or by another car with identical tires.

Togetherness Urged

SASKATOON (CP) — Western Canada should try to build Canada instead of helping to tear it apart, Ray Perrault, Liberal MP for Burnaby-Seymour, said in an interview Wednesday. "We've got it made in Western Canada if we stick together," he said.

HOME GARDEN

Hedges Reduce Hours of Labor

By HILDA BEASTALL

Small growing hedges carefully placed within a garden will add a sense of space to the overall design. Even more important, small hedges of the right material lessen labor especially if they are also evergreen.

Hilda

These two reasons are enough recommendation for modern gardeners requiring attractive plants in single-lot gardens designed to be relaxation areas.

Here is a quartet of dwarf, evergreen shrubs suitable for hedges, the highest of which would reach 15 inches. All are reasonably hardy to some drying out in summer, will grown anywhere except in dense shade, and all have gone through the past 25 years with us, suffering only temporary disfigurement in four of the worst winters. All recovered. First, we suggest the dwarf Barberry, Berberis buxifolia nana, only five inches high, with dark purpplish green leaves all winter, turning again to green i late sprig.

This is spiny like all the berberises, but remains compact enough not to be invasive by paths and steps if allowed one foot of space. It seldom requires any pruning.

Lavender of the ordinary English type, in full sun with gravelly soil can be quite successful for a foot high hedge if it is clipped once in early April and again in early September. This will keep it dense, bushy, and covered with its silvery grey leaves all year.

Foliage is fragrant to touch, and spikes of blossom will quickly form after the April pruning.

Another evergreen shrub not too often seen, but most attractive in smallish gardens near salt water is Hebe "Autumn Glory". Its old name was veronica, but ten years ago all shrubby veronicas were given a new generic name of Hebe--(hee-bee).

As a low hedge in sunshine, this hebe contributes dark green leaves summer and winter, and navy blue flowers in late summer. It needs hard purning back in late March for new growth in summer to flower later.

Last in this short list of evergreen dwarf hedge plants is dwarf box, Buxus empervirens suffruticosa. A compact 12-inch shrub, it will take either full sun or light shade.

Box and berberis will need 16 plants to nine feet of row length; while hebe and lavender each need a space of a foot between plants at planting time.

Dwarf hedges are miniature, never robbers of soil and sunlight like their big brothers.

SOLUTION MONDAY

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Work on Roads Was Compulsory

By BOB BOWAN

In January 1791 the House of Commons in Britain received a royal message that Quebec would be divided into two provinces of Lower and Upper Canada. The division became effective on Boxing Day of the same year and John Graves Simcoe was appointed the first Lieutenant Governor of Upper Canada.

The new province began to make great progress under his guidance, especially road building, although they were very rough. Until 1791 practically the only road in Upper Canada was between Cornwall and Prescott although a trail had been blazed between Montreal Kingston. Simcoe began building Yonge Street between Lake Ontario and Lake Simcoe, and the Danforth Road between York (Toronto) and Kingston. He also encouraged road building between Niagara and what is now Hamilton.

A great deal of the work was voluntary. There was an advertisement in a Niagara newspaper on January 30, 1799, asking citizens to subscribe time and money build the Black Swamp Road in Lincoln County. The appeal was so effective that two-thirds of the road was built by March 15 and then another appeal was made for $260 so it could be completed.

However, road building was also compulsory. Men who owned a cart and team of horses had to work on the roads for six days every year. In 1831 an act made it compulsory for men who did not pay taxes to work on roads for two days a year. People whose property was assessed at 25 pounds had to work for three days, and those owing property worth more than 25 pounds were expected to work from three to 12 days depending on their assessment.

There was a way of avoiding work by contributing two shillings and six pence for every day. That was the equivalent of 50 cents and was good pay for a day laborer.

Other events on January 30:

1649 — King Charles I was executed

1666 — Governor Courcelles left Quebec with force to attack Iroquois

1815 — Bishop Strachan of York wrote to ex-President Jefferson protesting actions of U.S. troops during War of 1812

1847 — Lord Elgin became Governor General

1869 — Joseph Howe became President of Privy Council

1928 — President Cosgrove of Irish Free State began visit to Canada

1934 — Constitution of Newfoundland was suspended owning to financial crisis

1951 — Prime Minister Holland of New Zealand visited Ottawa.

Crux Appeal To Be Heard

NASSAU, Bahamas (CP) — The Bahamas Supreme Court agreed Wednesday to hear an appeal by Vancouver lawyer A. G. Duncan Crux against an order for his extradition to Canada.

Justice H. Cunningham Smith and Justice James Smith granted an order nisi to Crux and said they would hear his application for a writ of habeas corpus on Thursday, Feb. 5.

YOUR HEALTH

Spleen Performs Major Functions

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Sometimes a patient will ask me, "What is the spleen, and what does it do in the body?" I wish I could give such an inquirer the November, 1969 issue of "Today's Health," the splendid little medical journal for laymen, published in Chicago by the American Medical Association. In this magazine Arthur S. Freese has a fine article on this peculiar organ which carries out so many important functions but yet when it is removed surgically, does not seem to be missed by the person's body.

The ancient physicians thought that the spleen had something to do with anger, hence even today people will say, "That man is full of spleen," or "He vented his spleen on me." Actually, it has been only in recent years when with many special and new research techniques, physicians have learned of some of the many functions of this strange organ.

The spleen is a solid organ about as big as a man's palm, full of soft pulp which is full of red and white blood cells. It can make blood cells, it filters out and throws away defective blood cells, it salvages some chemical parts of blood, and because it does away with old blood cells that have done their stint of work it has been called the "graveyard of blood cells."

They say that all of the blood in a man's body—some six quarts—goes through the spleen every 90 minutes, and every second some 10,000 red corpuscles are destroyed and replaced with new ones. While the spleen destroys the old red blood cells, it saves the iron in them and returns it to the blood marrow where it can be used again in making new cells.

As that expert on the spleen Dr. Ancel Blaustein, New York, has said, "The spleen does not waste a thing." In times of physical and emotional stress, the spleen can push out needed blood into all of the arteries of the body.

* * *

Today, most operations for removal of the spleen are performed for injuries with rupture of the organ by a severe blow over the splenic region. These occur in auto accidents, in falls off horses, in skiing or sledding accidents, or in a severe bump in football. What is unfortunate is that when the spleen is injured, it does not heal itself well. Sometimes when the spleen is almost broken in two by an accident, the person starts to bleed to death inside, and then he must have a quick emergency operation if his life is to be saved.

The spleen is most likely to rupture when it has become enlarged, as in a case of infectious mononucleosis, malaria, tuberculosis, or brucellosis (a disease caught by a man who is working with sick cattle). The biggest spleen are seen with leukemia (cancer of the blood). I have seen them so big that they extended down around the navel. Primary tumors that arise in the spleen are rare.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

One of the reasons why many tournament players do not open four-card major suits in first or second position frequently indulges in pre-emptive, obstructionist bidding, and thereby makes it rough for opener-responder.

Where the responder knows for sure that opener has at least five cards in the opening major suit, responder, having three trumps, knows at once that the partnership has at least eight trumps between them. Thus, he can raise opener with confidence in competitive situations, and not worry about being in a trump suit with a combined holding of only seven cards.

The above point is the theme of today's deal

North-South vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH
♠K 6 4
♡A 8 5
◇A J 10 6 2
♣9 3

WEST
♠J
♡Q J 10 9 7 6 2
◇7 4
♣J 10 8

EAST
♠Q 10
♡4 3
◇Q 9 8 5 3

SOUTH
♡K
◇K
♣A K Q 6

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	3♡	4♠	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5♡	Pass
5 NT	Pass	6◇	Pass
7 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♡.

West's three heart overcall was strictly a nuisance bid, its aim being to deprive North-South of the bidding space needed to interchange information.

North's lead to four spades was based on the appreciation that, first he had just about an opening bid secondly that his partnership had at least eight spades between them, since South's major suit opening guaranteed a minimum of five spades. In theory, had North bid only three spades, South would have assumed that North was simply contesting the auction with perhaps a 10-point hand.

When, via the Blackwood Convention, South learned that North had two aces and a king, he knew that the partnership was a tremendous favorite to make a grand slam. Of course, if the adversely held spades had been divided 3-0 (22 per cent of the time) the grand slam would have been defeated.

Had North not known for certain that South possessed at least five spades he would probably have bid four diamonds over East's three heart call. In this case, although South could have found out that North had two aces and the spade king, South really couldn't assertain whether North had the K-x-x on K-x of spades.

Fun with figures

By J A H HUNTER

John had a sheet of paper in his hand. "See this triangle, Dad," he said. "The sides are 13, 14, and 15 inches. And its area is double its perimeter."

"That's good." Bob took the paper and did some figuring on the back. "I beat that," he told the boy. "The sides are three consecutive numbers, but in mine, the area is just 28 times the perimeter."

That was too tough for John. You figure out the dimensions.

Yes, Victoria There Is A Santa Claus

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Yes, fellow Victorians, there is a Santa Claus! A Mrs. Santa Claus too. And, for your information, they live right here in our own city. You know them as Jack and Kay Barraclough, patrons of music and the arts and proprietors of two ladies wear stores, one on Government Street and the other on View.

Forbes

They have been portraying these "Santa" roles in a most delightful (but almost unbelievable) way.

★ ★ ★

I ran onto the story quite by accident. It's so good I'm going to pass it on to you.

A little over two weeks ago the phone rang in the Government Street store. Florence Steel answered. The call was from Hawaii where the Barracloughs had gone at the end of December for a holiday in the sun.

"What are you doing?" Kay Barraclough wanted to know.

"I'm standing at the counter", answered Mrs. Steel.

"Better sit down", Kay suggested, "Jack has something he wants to say to you."

Mrs. Steel did sit down. Wondering, she says, "what on earth was coming."

Jack was very business-like when he came on the phone. He wanted Mrs. Steel to "get busy right away", contact all employees in both stores and find out if they could spend a week in Hawaii.

★ ★ ★

When she knew how many were free to travel, she was then to get in touch with Brud Blaney and have him arrange air tansportation for the group in the Barracloughs' name.

As soon as that was available and the travel date set, the stores were to be closed for staff holidays.

By then she was numb says Florence. Although the Barracloughs had always been thoughtful and generous "bosses", this time she was having a hard time convincing herself it wasn't all a delightful dream.

She had an even harder time making the other employees believe it was true. "I spent the rest of the day on the phone".

To make a long story short, in remarkably quick time all arrangements were completed.

★ ★ ★

Seven of the nine employees were able to travell and the little group flew off to the sunny isles on Sunday, Jan. 18. They returned last Sunday.

When they touched down at Honolulu, airport the Barracloghs were there to meet them, arms loaded with fragrant leis.

"Mr. B. spent the day looking for those leis," said Florence. "Terrific storms that hit the islands a week before we arrived ruined the flowers. There were lots of artificial leis but few real ones."

Then came the event-filled week that "we will never forget." For six in the group it was a first time in Hawaii. The seventh had bren there once before "but was just as excited as if it had been my first time."

The Barracloughs arranged accommodation at The Breakers where they were staying themselves. They got a big car and for two days toured the little group around to see everything of interest.

★ ★ ★

The weather was perfext "after the storms of the week before". They went swimming. They sat under the fabulous banyan tree. Attended the Kodak show. Went to well-known places to eat. and, in between, "just lazed around."

"Everyone was so good to us," Florence says, "and we loved it all."

Both stores re-opened Monday. The Barracloughs are still in Hawaii, where they will be holidaying until early in February.

"We're the envy of everyone who hears the story", says Florence. "I'm even getting calls from some who would like to work here and are asking to have their names put on a waiting list."

'Control Needed' If Drug Legalized

By ROB MATTHEWS

HALIFAX (CP) — A Dalhousie University sociologist told the LeDain inquiry into the non-medical use of drugs Thursday that studies show a high percentage of marijuana users were going on to "harder drugs."

But Dr. Paul Whitehead said one drawback was that such studies tend to be focused on those likely to make the move anyway.

He said widespread education was needed and society had to develop "social and cultural norms" for what should be accepted as proper use of drugs.

The inquiry appointed by the federal government and headed by Gerald LeDain, is scheduled to continue hearings today.

Mr. LeDain noted the absence of adults from a hearing Thursday night and wondered whether any of the youths present could say "why your parents aren't here."

JOINED SESSION LATER

Several adults did join the session as it progressed and offered their opinions on the use of marijuana and other psychedelic drugs.

One man said "possession of marijuana shouldn't be a criminal offence" as it gave youths "a criminal record for the rest of their lives."

That was something that could become "quite harmful" to their futures, he said. But if it were legalized, some form of control was needed.

He told the commissioners "we smoked corn silk when we were young and it was frowned upon" but that was just the same thing the youth of today was doing. "They're just experimenting."

In an earlier submission, Prof. H. D. Beach, a psychologist at Dalhousie, said there was an "urgent need for much good research" and little progress could be made in research, education and communication "while these drugs are classified with the hard narcotics."

TOLD OF STUDIES

Ronald K. Siegeal of Dalhousie's psycho-pharmacology laboratory, told the commissioners of his studies of the effects of marijuana and found that "psychedelic experience can be healthy and normal."

H eurged development of a safe psychedelic drug and establishment of a board of experts to decide policy of distribution, control, and an educational campaign.

At the night session, one youth told the commission he didn't think criminal elements would move in to market such drugs if they were made legal. There was "very little profit in it."

HANOI AIR WAR MOVING SOUTH?

By GEORGE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (WP) — The shooting down of an American rescue helicopter over North Vietnam on Wednesday substantiates intelligence reports that Hanoi has moved its air force south since the bombing halt began Nov. 1, 1968.

Military sources said the incident could presage a North Vietnamese decision to step up its air war activities. This would put political pressure on President Nixon to resume the bombing of the North.

•

The helicopter had been searching for the two-man crew of an F-105 fighter-bomber that had been shot down a couple of hours earlier by North Vietnamese ground fire. The helicopter, which carried six men, was shot down by a MIG-21.

Pentagon officials said the downed F-105 was a two-seater version of that fighter-bomber, meaning it was a "Wild Weasel" aircraft engaged in the secret electronic war to foil Soviet-made surface-to-air (AM) missiles used in North Vietnam.

The Wild Weasel is equipped with all kinds of electronic gadgetry to warn that a SAM has been fired. The pilot from instrumentation in the cockpit can tell where the SAM was fired from, enabling him to radio reconnaissance planes in his formation how to avoid the missile.

•

One possiblility is the the F-105 dove to avoid the SAM, bringing the plane within easy range of the ground fire which knocked it down. U.S. sources said one of the two crewmen in the F-105 bailed out.

The MIG-21 which got the helicopter probably came from a base fairly close to the demilitarized zone. Intelligence sources report that there has been a generally southward movement of North Vietnamese planes since the U.S. called off the bombing of the North effective Nov. 1, 1968.

Lord Thomson 'Buys Papers To Make Money to Buy More'

OTTAWA (CP) — Lord Thomson, the world's biggest news media owner, said Thursday night he likes to buy more newspapers so he can make more money and he likes to make more money so he can buy more newspapers.

Lord Thomson, the Toronto-born press baron, was one of numerous witnesses on a 90-minute CBC television feature examining truth in the news media.

The commentator was Elie Abel, Montreal-born journalist who has worked for the New York Times, the National Broadcasting Commission and who now is dean of the Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism.

Lord Thomson was asked why he bought more newspapers, considering the number he already has in Canada, Britain the United States and elsewhere.

He replied: "To make more money."

He was asked why he wanted to make more money and replied: "To buy more newspapers."

URGE TO EXPAND

He said "it's an ever-widening circle" that every businessman wants to get bigger.

The program was predicated on two major questions—whether people believe what they read in newspapers or whether they believe what they see on TV.

The CBC program, heavily-larded with shots of news action of its own staff and officials, also included reference to such single ownership media areas as Sudbury, Ont., where the newspaper and TV station are controlled by the same interests.

Eric Wells, a former senior editor of the Winnipeg Tribune, talked about the daily newspapers' "additional product" which he said is "an advertising vehicle."

He said newspapers are attuned to the advertising market and asked: "Where is the curiosity about life?"

John Bassett, publisher of the Toronto Telegram, said that if any reader has a "beef with The Telegram" they should take it up with me."

He criticized any suggestion of a national press council to supervise press conduct and said suggestions of sensationalism are nonsensical.

He asked whether it was news that it was a sunny day or that 27 inches of rain had fallen or that Toronto Union Station had been washed away.

Among other witnesses was Stuart Keate, publisher of the Vancouver Sun.

Government Pay System Probe Promised by Supply Minister

OTTAWA (CP) — Supply Minister James Richardson says he plans to hire a firm of consultants to make a "fundamental examination" of the entire government pay system.

In the meantime, he reported to the Commons today, most of the backlog of retroactive pay cheques has been cleaned up.

Opposition members had been complaining for some time that many public servants, awarded retroactive pay increases early last year, are still waiting for the adjusting cheques.

Mr. Richardson said that within the next few days the backlog will be reduced to "a very small number."

His announcement of the consultants' study was met with criticism from opposition spokesmen.

Robert C. Coates (PC—Cumberland-Colchester North) said that if the government continues to hire outside consultants at the present rate, there will soon be a firm of consultants studying the work of consultants.

Surely, he said, the government can decide what is needed to be done without the aid of outside consultants.

Mr. Coates said there is no excuse for the "very substantial" delays that have occurred in issuing retroactive pay cheques. There were 13 federal employees in his riding who were still waiting for pay increases granted to them last May.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said he is afraid that outside consultants will just get in the way. "Surely there is a simpler way to straighten it out."

Bernard Dumont (Creditiste-Frontenac) said there has been an unjustified delay in giving the seven-per-cent differential to bilingual employees. "This doesn't do anything for the bilingual cause."

Mr. Richardson said in his announcement that 78 working agreements were signed last year, affecting 185,000 federal employees. There were another 36 agreements with Crown corporations and government agencies.

This "enormous volume," coupled with retroactive clauses, imposed an unprecedented burden on government pay offices.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

MOVIE TO WATCH this evening is mainly for fun — In Like Flint, bringing back James Coburn as skirt-happy secret agent Derek Flint. It's at 8 on Channel 8, midnight on Channel 6.

LAUGH-IN. 8, Channels 2 and 6. Jack Benny makes his first Laugh-In guest appearance and does skits as a lion tamer, a ballet dancer, Eskimo and matador. Also, telephone company representative Lily Tomlin has a verbal exchange with the White House.

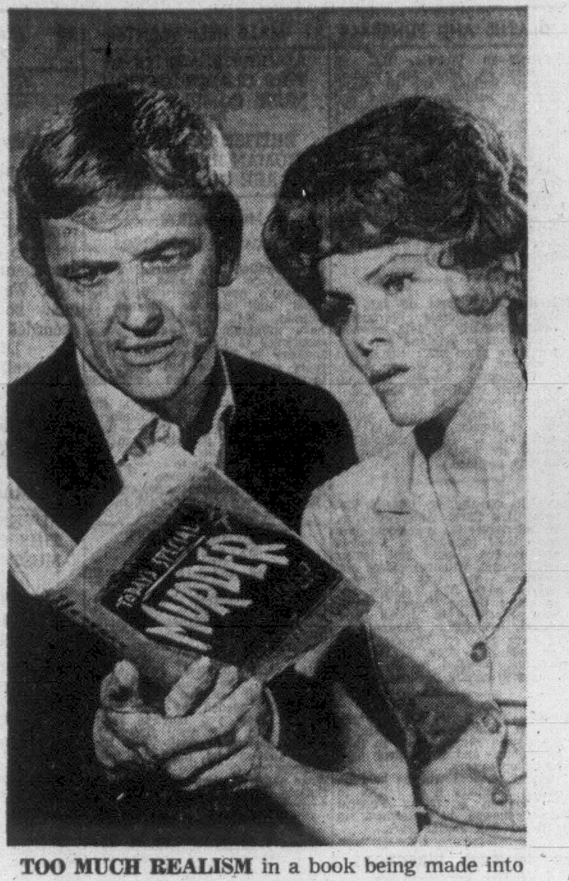
GET SMART. 7:30, Channel 7. Pat Paulsen doesn't have to try so hard in this guest spot, playing an insurance man ready to help idiot Maxwell Smart clear up murders of CONTROL agents. Ace Weems (Paulsen) and Smart do a little digging and come up with a murder list containing Max's monicker. Don't worry about the plot, Adams and Paulsen are amusing as the two dumb clucks.

SPECIAL. 7:30 Channel 5. "The World of the Beaver." Expert photography of animals in their native habitat is a fascinating thing to watch as well as an amazing achievement, as anybody who has ever tried to take a good picture of a friendly pet can testify. This documentary, the work of Australians Des and Jen Bartlett, is a superb example of the art as it follows beavers through all four seasons in Jackson Hole, Wyoming, and records their instinctive genius for selecting housing sites and building dams. It's a bit too long and some of the narration seems unnecessarily childish and condescending, but it's a fine tribute to this iteresting breed of animal whose behavior could teach man many a lesson.

THE TIM CONWAY SHOW. 8, Channel 7. (Premiere). Tim Conway and Joe Flynn, heroes of "McHale's Navy," are back running an air charter service, doing everything wrong in their accustomed slapstick style. Flynn, with four stripes on his sleeve, is the boss of the mortgaged, broke, Triple A Airline, and Conway is its bumbling pilot. When the Laurel and Hardy of the air fly a Cuban passenger and construction equipment to Arizona, plane doors won't stay shut and panel instruments come loose on the initial haul. The wild trip is pure slapstick and fairly funny as the two get locked out of the cockpit and Conway uses a wire to fly by remote control. The fellas try too hard in the opening scenes, but the charter run gets the job done.

HOGAN'S HEROES. 8:30, Channel 7. Good fun as the POWs assist in the wedding of General Burkhalter's hefty niece, played by Muriel Landers. Miss Landers is tubby, and her wedding gown receives the expert touch of France's LeBeau who must leave camp for the fittings. It's all part of a ruse to save an intelligence agent, and LeBeau, with Miss Landers, generate most of the comedy. Sgt. Schultz also horns in, playing model for a second wedding gown to be used in the escape plan.

BRACKEN'S WORLD. 10, Channel 5. "A Perfect Piece of Casting." Good storyline. Kevin's weekly major film deals with a strangler this time, and he hires a former actor, now a men's hair stylist, who resembles the actual suspect. If you can't guess at least part of what happens from there on in, you don't watch too many "B" movies, or routine TV dramas, but even the obvious can be absorbing. Monty Markham ("Mr. Deeds" guest stars as the actor who seems to be having trouble with the characterization but soon becomes very much with it.



TOO MUCH REALISM in a book being made into a movie bothers stars Monte Markham and Laraine Stephens in tonight's Bracken's World episode, 10 on Channel 5.

LOVE, AMERICAN STYLE. 10, Channel 4. Tune in for Paul Lynde's performance in the opener. He's an ambitious young executive who gets a promotion and finds it hard to cope with a distracting sexy secretary. It's a pleasure to watch Lynde use his expert comedy timing to good advantage, and blonde Carol Wayne is helpful too. The second offering has Joey Heatherton playing a hippie hitchhiker, which should please the male viewers in the audience, but the final entry about a movie star who causes a family squabble when he drops in on some small town folks, is too long to sustain its amusing premise.

TONIGHT'S MOVIES

8:00: Channel 8: In Like Flint (1967 adventure, Lee J. Cobb, Jean Hale, Andrew Duggan.

9:00: Channels 7 and 12: The Venetian Affair (1967 drama), Robert Vaughan, Elke Summer, Felicia Farr.

SEASHORE DREAM
COME TRUE
Do you dream of a character home, well built, firmly rooted on about ¾ acre with 214 ft. of shoreline? Does your dream include a big separate garage, workshop, and a natural spot for a boat ramp, and nothing but sea, sky and islands between you and Mount Baker, and would you believe that such a dream could be less than 2 blocks from shopping and transportation, if so your dream can come true. Asking price $49,000. MADGE HOLE 386-1361 or 592-7641 or 382-5369.

Middle Child Candidate for Delinquency

By DON VIPOND

The child in the middle is more likely to become a juvenile delinquent.

Boys in trouble far outnumber girls.

Intelligence seems to have less to do with it than school performance.

Foster and adopted children are a greater risk.

The only child rarely ends up in trouble.

These are some of the facts presented to a teachers' discussion group at Claremont secondary school Thursday by the director of Brannan Lake institute for delinquents.

He talked about how parents and their children become alienated and the thinking behind help for offenders.

More than half the children he sees have both older and younger brothers and sisters.

"I am very familiar with the middle child who expresses strong feelings of being unwanted at home, having to take responsibility for the behavior of younger children and having to ttake the blame for behavior of older children," said John Noble.

He said his staff is also familiar with the boy whose delinquency is associated with his rejection of his adoptive parents at the onset of adolescence.

"Anyone who stands up and says he knows what gets kids into trouble is either simple-minded or else he thinks his audience is. There are many suspicions which we call theories and there are many theories which are no more than labelling systems."

Much of the theorizing surrounding juvenile delinquency leads only to finding someone to blame—"the kids, the parents, the schools, poverty or affluence, too much mothering or not enough, too much religion or not enough."

It's time, he said, to adopt the "no-fault insurance principle because it's more important to help the injured than to find out who's to blame.

"I find that attaching blame to parents does not make better parents. It simply makes them feel more guilty about their inadequacy."

One of his first tasks with parents of delinquents is to attempt to relieve "some of this burden of guilt and anxiety so they can start to like their boy again."

Those working with juvenile delinquents rarely if ever see a Jewish or Chinese youngster, he said in discussing the frustration and confusion adolescents experience trying to figure out where they stand in the family.

"In some societies they have a funeral for the onset of adolescence as the death of the child. It is called a rite or passage or a puberty rite. The adolescent is often ritually killed and momma has a good cry.

"In such cultures, no juvenile delinquency."

"She can then say, 'goodbye child, welcome man'."

Such Zest . . . Such Charm Dolly Captures Audience

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Well, Hello Dolly!

And welcome too. Such zest, such charm, so much spontaneity bubbling up out of a well-crafted framework.

The UBC Musical Theatre Society is to be congratulated on the quality—as well as appreciated for its enterprise in bringing so pleasing a live stage production of Dolly to Victoria audiences.

The first-night audience at McPherson Playhouse, Thursday, ate it up with obvious relish and no wonder.

Faults clearly to be found still do not interfere with enjoyment with vitality and tempo, so they are not too hard to forgive.

Professionally directed by Bob Ross—and I mean that in the best sense—with sleek choreography by Grace Macdonald, the musical runs a shining course from curtain to curtain.

HIGHLIGHTS

Production numbers such as the Fourteenth Street Parade, the Waiters' Gallop and, of course, Hello, Dolly itself, are genuine gold-plated highlights.

Dolly, as portrayed by Dolores Kirkwood, is a charmer, effervescent, roguish but with a warmth that emanates strongly across the footlights.

What does not come across strongly is her voice. Needed here is a lusty, hearty, even brazen sound but Miss Kirkwood's is thin and rather sweet, particularly in the high register.

Consequently we get a more airy, light-textured Dolly altogether than was intended originally. But charming, and lovely to look upon and that's a big compensation. It is in the vocal aspect that this production falls short generally. Not that fine voices are needed but words are, and the ability to belt out a song with real pizzaz.

A great many words escaped the listener Thursday. Vocal energy certainly does not match the physical energy of the cast. But most of this is due to vocal immaturity and lack of long-term training.

In every other way director Ross has made maximum and triumphant use of what he has had to work with.

STRIKING TALENT

Distinctive in the cast were Jim Colby as matchmaker Dolly's objective, Horace Vandergelder — an excellent characterization.

Striking talent is also present in both Hank Stinson and Brent Carver as his two clerks, Carver, particularly, is one of those performers who creates a role with his entire body and is never for an instant out of character.

A small part most effectively played was Rudlolph, the maitre d' of the Harmonia Gardens.

The pit orchestra was somewhat unbalanced but musical director Karl Kobylansky led it strongly and contributed his share to the effect of vitality.

Performances tonight and Saturday night are sold out but there are still some tickets available for the matinee Saturday which begins at 2:30 p.m.

Alberta Pushes Social Goals

By JIM NEAVES

EDMONTON (CP)—Social goals were emphasized for 1970 when Premier Harry Strom's Social Credit government announced Thursday a total health care insurance package—which will ease the burden on property taxation—and measures to attack environmental pollution.

The government, in the speech from the throne opening the new session of the Alberta legislature, said it plans to combine hospital and doctor services under a health services premium.

This will result in the four-mill levy now made on property to finance hospital costs being eliminated and one estimate places the saving to Albertans at $12,000,000.

The government also announced new approaches to housing and urban transportation and the establishment of a commission on alcohol and drug abuse.

The speech, read by Lt.-Gov. Grant MacEwan, also predicted a major revision of the School Act, a demerit points system for drivers, help for the sagging farm economy, and action to control education spending.

Legislation establishing an environmental conservation authority "armed with broad investigative powers to help preserve a healthy environment" will be introduced in addition to a revision of the Water Conservation Act.

Also in the pollution field, the government intends to introduce amendments to provide a property tax exemption on land or improvements used exclusively for abatement of water, soil or air pollution, provided the owner meets standards required by the provincial board of health.

The government plans to re-establish the Alberta Housing Corp. as a Crown agency with broader powers to enable it to "respond more directly to housing needs in local communities, and to provide the corporation with more flexibility in providing of funds for housing purposes."

Cited in the speech as being the first of its kind in Canada, the Urban Transportation Act will be designed to spur development of ultra-modern transportation systems in cities. This is believed to include provision to protect land corridors, needed for future transportation arteries, from land speculation.

The changes in the medical care plan were widely predicted after its inception in July last year. Present premiums, for medical insurance only, are $120 a year for two or more people in a family and $60 for single persons.

CAN OPT OUT

Some persons objected to the compulsory aspect of the plan and the government will provide provisions for such objectors to exempt themselves from the new plan.

Changes will enable those who "object in principle to publicly-financed health services to exempt themselves from both the benefits of the program and the payment of the premium."

Health Minister James Henderson, in an interview outside the legislature, said objectors will have to provide notice of intent before July 1—the new plan's date of implementation.

However, he said if and when they decide to re-enter the plan, they will have to pay the premium accumulated from July 1.

Provision will be made under the new scheme's premium structure to "reflect more accurately the financial capabilities of lower-income families."

However, Alberta NDP Leader Grant Notley said that while it appears there will be an improvement in the health plan, including an option for drug insurance, he is concerned that it is to be financed through a premium structure.

RCMP Promotions

Three promotions were announced today by Supt. H. F. Law, officer in charge of the RCMP on Vancouver Island.

Cpl. S. W. Henswold will become a sergeant, at Courtenay, and Cpl. J. H. Stevens will become a sergeant, at Port Hardy.

In Victoria, Constable J. G. J. O'Neil is promoted to corporal. He works in the general investigation section.

Let Pupils Be Heard

It's called the classroom meeting. Students sit in a circle. The teacher still asks questions but there are no right and wrong answers.

This seminar approach to learning was demonstrated for Saanich and Gulf Islands teachers Thursday and today an American psychologist warned it may look easy but it's tough to make work.

Joseph Peters said the classroom meeting, perhaps lasting just a few minutes at the primary level, is one technique for applying the ideas of reality therapy, a teaching and learning philosophy developed by American psychiatrist and author Dr. William Glasser.

●

Glasser believes there must be more opportunity in the classroom for youngsters to build a conviction they are worthwhile. This means giving them a chance to be heard, to learn without "failing," and to commit themselves to goals which are within reach.

Peters, who was a New York policeman and probation officer before earning a master's degree in psychology, outlined other aspects of reality therapy in talks and demonstrations at Newcombe auditorium Wednesday night, Claremont secondary school Thursday and two other Saanich schools today.

The classroom meeting is a "sort of conversation," he said Thursday to an audience of about 200 teachers attending the professional development day program.

Students in a circle leaves nothing to impede conversation. There's no place to hide and they have to communicate. The job of the teacher is to show there are alternative answers.

In his demonstration at Claremont, he had a Grade One class exploring the meaning of friendship and what qualities in themselves others would like.

●

Teacher and pupils must become personally involved, he said. And once a child has promised to try a project, there must be no excuses.

Punishment is out with reality therapy — because it may seem effective temporarily but it doesn't work in the long run.

Besides, said Peters, punishment absolves a youngster from what he's done wrong and he's free to do it again. The idea is not to free him from his responsibility but to keep him involved and responsible.

Wednesday night he told teachers that by the time a student leaves high school these days he's had 10,000 hours in the classroom but 15,000 hours watching TV.

TV commercials hammer home the failure syndrome by telling viewers they are inadequate but if they will just buy whatever is being plugged they will somehow be made whole again.

'Lady Victoria' Must Pay Share

The difficulty of running a university in Victoria can be overcome with love, says Victoria Chamber of Commerce vice-president P. D. P. Holmes.

Replying to Dr. Bruce Partridge, University of Victoria president in his first public address in the community, Holmes cited the work of a university president as "critical and tough. "It was made more difficult if any schism between university and community was allowed to grow.

"Needed, really, is a love affair between the two if either are to totally fill their respective potentials," said Holmes.

He said the main needs of the university are recognized.

"It is now up to Lady Victoria to play her role, and we, individually and collectively, constitute that lady. So let's play our part with unswerving passion."

PRIVATE FUNDS

Partridge had told the chamber luncheon meeting there is still a need for privately-endowed finances at Uvic, even though it is a state-supported institution.

The great universities "without exception" have private funds to spend, helping them to provide outstanding faculty members they could not otherwise afford, Partridge said.

In the allocation of government spending priorities, universities deserve to rank high, he said. If they continue to offer non-competitive salaries, quality staff will be lost.

"I don't think the universities of British Columbia want to be staffed by what's left over."

1,000 JOBS

Looking at the community as if the university did not exist, Partridge said 1,000 jobs representing $7 million to the local annual economy would be lost, unskilled labor would be increased, 100 persons a year would be added to the ranks of unemployed, and fewer and fewer persons with ability, but lacking a degree, would become successful.

Of the 3,500 enrolment at Uvic today, 2,500 would be forced to attend a university elsewhere, at greater expense, and the remaining 1,000 would not go to university at all, the speaker said.

VICTORIAN POTPOURRI

Librarians, Trustees Favor Move

A suggestion that branch libraries be established in schools has aroused widespread interest among librarians and members of the Greater Victoria school board.

Ald. Alan Newberry who made the proposal at a Greater Victoria library board meeting Wednesday, said the school library branches would be less costly to operate than the board's bookmobile service.

This is how he suggested the libraries in schools could be administered.

He assumed, first, that the school board would provide the library space free of charge to the library board.

They would be operated by teacher-librarinas from 9 a.m. to 3.30 p.m. and from 3:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. staffed by library board librarinas.

The library board would be responsible for staffing the libraries on Saturdays.

All libraries would be located in elemntary schools as they are less orientated to the school curriculum than those in junior and secondary high schools.

The library board would provide the books and would see that stocks were rotated from school to school.

"As I see it, bookmobiles is an expensive service," said Ald. Newberry. It's a service more suitable for strickly rural areas."

He also felt that a Vancouver consulting firm recommendation that branch libraries be established at various key-localities was far too expensive.

"Cost of establishing a branch library and operating it for one year varies between $50,000 to $70,000, he said. "This does not include capital costs, such as a building.

Glimpses Of Japan

Glimpses of Japanese at home, at work, at play and striking views of many Shinto and Buddhist shrines, are features of an all-color film The People of Japan to be shown at the McPherson Playhouse next Wednesday.

There will be shows at 6 and 8:30 p.m.

Producer of the film Gene Wiancko, who has made 17 major motion picture productions, many of which have won awards, will appear in person at the two showings.

He completed the filming of the Japanese travel film last summer, using a new color film process. Almost all significant aspects of Japanese life are represented in it — customs, weddings, ceremonies, dances, artistry, religions and entertainment.

A graduate of the University of California, Wiancko for 12 years was an exploration geophysicist. He was in charge of the 30-man exploration party whose work with sub-surface seismic waves led to the discovery of the world's northern-most gas field, at Point Barrow, Alaska.

Neighbor Important

The most important resource a blind person has when he's in a tight corner is a sighted neighbor, says Mrs. Elizabeth Watling, president of the Victoria White Cane Club.

White Cane Week starts Sunday and Mrs. Watling drew attention to the blind's need for understanding by their neighbors.

She also dismissed some misconceptions.

"Blind people don't hear better, they just listen harder. Skill with sound never takes the place of sight but becuase the blind are people, we use all the resources we can find."

She told of a capable blind swimmer who used to leave a radio on the beach while he swam a mile or so out in the lake. The sound of the radio was a constant direction signal.

Mrs. Watling added that out-of-door sounds put meaning into the world for the blind.

"Footsteps make echoes which trees and buildings reflect. Many blind people can tell how many trees are near and even their distance apart."

During White Cane Week the local Canadian National Institute for the Blind headquarters on Blanshard will feature handiwork and recreation displays.

Woman Fined $600

A 66-year-old woman was fined $600 in court Thursday when she pleaded guilty to impaired driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Lilac Martin, 601 Cook, also had her licence suspended.

The accused was driving south on Cook, Jan. 22, about 6 p.m., and attempted to turn east onto Collinson when she struck another vehicle and left the scene.

Polce found her damaged car parked at her residence and the accused inside in an intoxicated condition.

Judge William Ostler fined her $350 for the impaired charge and $250 for failing to remain at the scene.

Rayn G. Kwiram, 20, 523 Santa Clara, was fined $250 for not having car insurance.

Gary G. Brown, 26, of 4051 Wilkinson, was fined $150 for failing to take a breathalyzer test.

He refused to give the breath sample when asked by police Jan. 8 after he had been involved in a rear-end collision at Cedar Hill Cross Road and Blenkinsop.

Family Planning

The Victoria Birth Control Clinic, designed to serve both married and unmarried persons, will begin operations Feb. 17 from to 9 p.m. in the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health offices, 1947 Cook.

Clinics will be held at the same time each Tuesday.

The clinics are sponsored by the Victoria Branch of the Family Planning Association of B.C.

Chairman R. G. Napier noted this week that a similar clinic in Vancouver served more than 2,000 persons in 1969. He said that he expects the Victoria clinic will receive a proportionate response.

Napier added that family-planning clinics have been operating in other parts of the continent for many years.

"It is now felt that the production of an unwanted child, in or out of wedlock, not only is irresponsible, it is criminal."

Dr. C. H. Borsman and Dr. A. E. Gillespie will be the clinic's medical advisers.

Also on the committee are Mrs. Margaret Hartlen, Community Action Group of Greater Victoria; Mrs. Kathleen Horvath and Miss Nancy Lee, supervisor and nursing director with the health board; Mrs. Doris London, public health nurse and clinic supervisor; Mrs. M. E. Morrison, registered social worker with the provincial department of welfare.

Other committee members are Dr. M. E. Patriarche, family life co-ordinator for the Greater Victoria School Board; Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer, and Mrs. J. R. Nation, secretary-treasurer.

WHEN THE MURK SETTLES

'Trumpet' Will Be Ready To Blow All for Silver

By ED GOULD

THORNTON-TRUMP
. . . Another Stab

When the murk of the spring runoff settles in Kootenay Lake this spring, a Sidney-area skindiver hopes to slip quietly into the water and locate a missing trainload of silver.

Peter (Trumpet) Thornton-Trump, with three diving companions, will resume the search he gave up 10 years ago for several boxcars of ore that broke loose from a CPR train in 1921 and rolled into the lake.

The railway serviced the many mines in the lake and mountain area and just as regularly dumped boxcars into the lake until finally it moved its tracks further back.

●

Thornton-Trump, a native of Chilliwack who opened a business in Victoria in October, said another Victoria man, Bill Hook, narrowly missed getting his bonanza in another wreck nearby.

"While we were diving for our wreck, Hook (brother of underwater photographer Alan Hook) was diving for another one further up the lake.

"He found the boxcars after two years' search but apparently thought they were empty. Some other divers were watching him and after he left they brought in a tug and turned the boxcars over and found two bars of silver."

Thornton-Trump and his crew gave up because of a shortage of adequate air equipment.

When they go back this year it will be with everything they need and with much more diving experience under their waterproof belts.

●

Raised on a ranch at Falkland, B.C., Thornton-Trump (his friends call him Trumpet) was educated in Kelowna but lived for a time on South Pender Island where his parents ran a marina.

It was here where he learned to dive and took part in helping a development firm lay underwater sewer lines, inspected pilings and once cleared the fouled propellor on a government ferry.

Formerly art director for Alberta Government Telephones in Edmonton he owns Thornton-Trump Creative, where he provides everything from ideas to ready-for-the-camera designs for businesses, advertising agencies and printers.

Good diving weather the year-round and the fact that the city is ready now for the type of art service he provides — "which was not the case a few years ago" — is what brought him to Victoria.

He is aware that if he and his diving companions do bring up an El Dorado of silver from Kootenay Lake, the mining company will still have first call on ownership.

He knows from bitter experience, for example, that boaters who have lost their motors overboard can claim them years later, and without reward, after they have been salvaged by a diver.

●

To get first claim in on the silver horde, he must go through a rigamarole of filing plans with various government departments and publishing of claims.

"But the first thing to do is to locate those boxcars again and get the silver," he said. "Then we'll worry about ownership."

Operator Killed

GOLD RIVER — Silvo Strussi, 43, of Cumberland, was killed in an industrial accident Thursday at Muchalat Lake near here.

He was operating a caterpillar tractor on a cliff when it tumbled into the lake. He was an employee of Tahsis Co.

CAMPBELL RIVER RCMP ASK FOR MORE STAFF

CAMPBELL RIVER — Because of an increase in crime and in accidental deaths, the appointment of an identification specialist has been requested from council by the RCMP detachment here.

The force's present strength is 12.

"The population has increased rapidly in the last few years and so has crime," said an RCMP official. "Certain types of crime, especially break-ins and thefts, have increased by 40 per cent."

★ ★ ★

He said violent or sudden deaths due to accidents had also increased, and an identification specialist was especially needed for this work.

The municipal council is expected to deal with the application at its next meeting.

Mayor Kenneth McDonald said if an identification man was appointed, he would use laboratory facilities in Nanaimo until such time as a new police building was constructed in Campbell River and a laboratory established.

Business Course Slated for Duncan

DUNCAN — A 12-session evening course in business economics as part of a new program designed for management personnel in Cowichan will be offered in Duncan as an off-campus course of Malaspina College.

The program is sponsored by the Duncan Chamber of Commerce and the Duncan Jaycees.

Classes will start Feb. 9 at Cowichan Senior Secondary School. Enrolment is limited to 25 students.

The entire program of courses is divided into two groups and successful completion will lead to a certificate of business management.

Ernst Poschenrieder, a Malaspina instructor, will teach the course. The group of officials responsible for setting up the program included Hugh Ney, co-ordinator of business programs at Malaspina; Les Atchison, president of the Duncan Chamber of Commerce; John Wilson, a member of the business programs advisory committee; Ron Butler, of Pitfield, MacKay, Ross and Co., and Robert Thorburn, adult education director, Duncan.

Joint Swimming Pool Promoted by Op-Rec

DUNCAN — Duncan's centennial '71 committee, which is also the recreation commission, wants to meet its North Cowichan counterpart to discuss a strong bid for the swimming pool to be chosen as a joint centennial project.

Operation Recration has written both committees urging selection of the proposed indoor swimming pool.

In a letter from Pat Moore, president of the Cowichan Op-Rec society which has promoted fund-raising for the pool said it was "most anxious" the pool be declared a joint 1971 centennial project by both the city of Duncan and the district municipality of North Cowichan.

150,000 ADMISSIONS

"With a potential of approximately 150,000 admissions each year, we believe that no other facilility would be of so much benefit to the community . . ." the letter states.

Op-Rec also feels "that if a different centennial project were undertaken, and it became necessary to go to the ratepayers for an enabling bylaw, the public reaction to several money bylaws might result in the defeat not only of a swimming pool bylaw but also of the centennial project itself."

Moore also noted his committee senses public acceptance of a swim pool as "the next step forward for our community" and that as such it has the potential to achieve a stronger community spirit.

Charles Rowley, chairman of Duncan's recreation commission cum centennial committee, said his group has agreed to get in touch with North Cowichan's centennial committeee to mull over the proposal.

Legion to Build Home for Aged

CAMPBELL RIVER—A $150,000 senior citizens' housing project will be undertaken by the Campbell River branch of the Royal Canadian Legion.

At a meeting this week, members decided to form a society, named after the late John Perkins, Campbell River pioneer, who was a past president of the branch, becoming a charter member when it was formed in 1934.

A committee of legion and auxiliary members was appointed to study the project.

The branch also voted to pay the expenses of Trina Embleton, Miss Campbell River, and her Princess, Dawn Anne Ziolkowski, when they attend the Vernon winter carnival.

Driver Jailed

DUNCAN—Driving while under suspension has cost Howard Percy James, 30, of Duncan, six months in jail.

The sentence was handed down when the court learned that James had three previous convictions for driving while under suspension and three for driving while impaired.

JUST A PREVIEW. Next week helicopters, both private and those from the Canadian Forces search and rescue branch, will be putting down at either Lansdowne Junior high school or a field near Jubilee Hospital with 66 retarded children, complete with attendants and nurses, will be airlifted from Woodlands School on the mainland to the new Eric Martin Institute. It is hoped to complete the transfer in one day. (Robin Clarke photo).

$1.6B Pipeline Seen for Canada

VANCOUVER (CP)—Public Works Minister Arthur Laing says Canada is in line to pick up a $1,600,000,000 contract for oil pipelines from Alaska to the rest of the United States.

"I spoke to my very good friend Walter J. Hickel, U. S. Secretary of the Interior, and he told me the overland oil pipeline route from Alaska to United States proper is the best route for transferring oil," Mr. Laing said Thursday.

Speaking at a banquet here on the opening of the Anvil Mine in the Yukon Territory, he said the overland pipeline through Canada is a "definite possibility."

Mr. Laing said the recently-tested Northwest Passage route is not suitable for year-round traffic by oil tankers.

"There are 100 mile-an-hour winds blowing there in the winter. Coupled with ice problems, they make it impossible for ships to travel that route year-round."

He said the $1,600,000,000 figure represents what the U.S. would spend on pipelines which would "probably be located through British Columbia and Alberta if they are given the go-ahead."

The 215,000-ton bulk oil carrier Manhattan ran into heavy ice on a trial run through the Northwest Passage last September in an attempt to establish a safe sea route from Alaskan oil fields.

Mr. Laing also predicted a boom for the Canadian Prairies.

"They're sitting on a fortune in energy-producing materials.

"I'm not saying the Prairies will export their natural resources. I'm saying that industry, from the United States and other countries, will come to them."

TYPHOID OUTBREAK COST LINE $520,000

LONDON (Reuters) — The cost of the typhoid outbreak on board the P. & O. liner Oronsay probably will exceed $520,000, a company spokesman said today.

The spokesman explained the daily cost of keeping the Oronsay in Vancouver was $20,800. For the last two weeks there also was a $26-a-head hotel bill each day for 123 persons waiting to join the ship when it sails.

The name of the typhoid carrier would not be released, the spokesman said, but confirmed he was a male member of the crew who now is in hospital.

Housing Jump Seen

Times News Services

OTTAWA—The government was asked for confirmation today of a report that low-income housing will be substantially expanded this year.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto-Greenwood) also asked whether there would be an announcement soon that public housing rents will be reduced.

He was told the questions will be passed on to Robert Andras, minister responsible for housing, who was absent.

The questions followed predictions by Toronto's Globe and Mail that Andras will announce Monday orders to Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to pump $550 million into low-rent projects this year.

$150 MILLION

The money, an increase of more than $150,000,000 over the federal commitment last year to low-income housing, will come from a total CMHC budget of $850,000,000, the newspaper says.

The government apparently will increase its effort to expand the housing stock for low-income people, but make no additional money available above the amount spent last year for loans for student housing projects and land assembly for housing development, or for direct loans for mortgages to individual home buyers, it says.

The newspaper says new low income housing starts in the coming year will almost double the number of such units—19,000 built in 1968.

RATE CUT

The paper says some of the $550,000,000 will be lent at reduced rates to builders for limited-dividend projects which they will rent at rates limiting their return on investment.

Meanwhile a resolution supporting voluntary restraint against raising the selling prices of factory-built homes in 1970 was adopted unanimously Thursday by the Canadian Home Manufacturers Association, concluding a two-day convention here.

Marcos Palace Under Siegc; 20 Wounded

MANILA (UPI) — Anti-government students smashed down the gate of the Philippine White House with a commandeered fire truck in a night of rioting and bloodshed that raged into the early hours of this morning and spread to downtown Manila.

At least two persons were killed and 20 or more wounded by gun shots, police said. A check of Manila hospitals showed at least 100 others were injured by flying rocks or police clubs.

Armed forces chief Gen. Manuel Yan took control of more than 1,000 police and troops fighting the rioters and said "no less than 100 persons were arrested."

Riot police swinging their clubs from behind wicker sheilds repulsed a mob of more than 3,000 students besieging Malcanag Palace, the residence of President Ferdinand Marcos, after two hours of fighting Friday night.

But scattered battles raged on and several police trucks and jeeps were burned in a five square block area near the palace. Sniper fire was heard.

There were reports of looting, vandalism and burned cars in downtown Manila more than a mile from the palace.

The rioting flared during a demonstration called to protest alleged police brutality and to demand that politicians stay out of next year's constitutional convention.

At a similar demonstration last Monday rioters hurled sticks and rocks at Marcos' car as he was leaving the halls of Congress after delivering his annual state of the union message.

Marcos was reported inside the old Spanish palace throughout the battle. His press secretary, Francisco Tadad, issued a statement blaming the riot on "subversive elements" and taking Manila Mayor Antonio J. Villegas to task for allegedly refusing to maintain law and order.

The violence erupted when members of the left-wing Nationalist Youth Group and other militant organizations joined the protest group.

The demonstrators attacked the palace, climbing trees and walls. They used poles, slingshots and rocks to smash all the lamps along the street and several windows of buildings

14 POLICEMEN INJURED

Hayakawa Target of Rocks

BOSTON (AP) — Police with nightsticks twice routed some 200 rock-throwing militants who attempted to prevent a speech by S. I. Hayakawa, president of San Francisco State College, Thursday night at Northeastern University.

The demonstrators, waving Viet Cong flags and shouting obscenities, left the auditorium littered with glass from broken windows. Rocks smashed windows in other university buildings.

Thirty-one demonstrators were arrested; 14 policemen were treated at hospitals for minor injuries.

Hayakawa, who took a hard line with demonstrators at his college last year, endured steady heckling from militants in his audience of 1,300. He was shouted down frequently, and interrupted by others telling the hecklers to "shut up."

Police said many of the demonstrators were non-students who participated in earlier disturbances at Boston University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Hayakawa, speaking in the university's distinguished lecture series, departed from his text at one point to recall that in the 1930s "the brownshirts (Nazis) in Germany would go through colleges throwing out professors and disrupting learning."

"It was the brown-shirted youth then; today it is the SDS (Students for a Democratic Society)."

Shattered Glass, Nerves Follow Sonic Boom Battle

From AP-Reuters

Israeli planes damaged Egyptian oil installations in the Suez canal area Thursday and fought a duel of sonic booms with Syria late into the night.

Egypt said one civilian employee of its oil company was killed and 11 were wounded in the attack on the refinery at the southern end of the canal but did not say how much damage was done to equipment.

Lots of broken windows and frayed nerves resulted from the sonic duel.

It was the first attack on the Egyptian refinery since Israeli shelling in October, 1967, destroyed a large part of the plant.

WINDOWS SHATTERED

Syria began the Battle of the Bangs Thursday afternoon when a lone MiG-21 flew over Israel's chief port, Haifa. The Israeli military command said it did not bomb or strafe, but the sonic boom it created shattered hundreds of windows and caused a flood of phone calls to police stations. The plane escaped back to Syria.

Hundreds of people rushed out into the streets of Haifa, but there were no reports of panic and most people believed the plane was Israeli until they heard the news.

An hour later, an Israeli plane roared over Damascus and took a toll of windows there. Then after midnight Israeli planes flew over Damascus and four other cities in the north, Hamma, Homs, Latakia and Aleppo, Syria's second largest city, the Israelis reported.

A military spokesman in Damascus said the sonic raids in the middle of the night broke many windows but caused no injuries.

There also was a sonic boom over the biblical Lebanese port of Tyre near the Israeli border Thursday night, but no one seemed to know whose plane caused it.

The buzzing came after another day of intense Israeli air activity in which jets struck into Jordan Arab guerrilla positions and also at Egyptian military targets in the Suez area.

Long Beach First Goal

The provincial government isn't backing out of a deal with Ottawa to acquire land for a 35-mile-long national park on the lifeboat trail and the Effingham islands, Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan said Thursday.

But the province won't move on land acquisition until Long Beach Park itself is dedicated, he said in an interview.

"We are giving first priority to the Long Beach area where there are already large areas of provincial and federal land assembled, and we have said we will make no further alienations or negotiations to acquire more land in the other areas in the meantime," Kiernan said.

The proposed 65-mile-long national marine park including the trail, the Effinghan islands at the entrance to Barkley Sound and Long Beach, was authorized by legislation passed last year.

1971 DEDICATION

The province hopes the first stage, Long Beach, will be dedicated as a national park in 1971.

Kiernan said the federal government realizes it would be impractical to build up all three parts of the park at the same time.

But he warned that acquisition of land along the lifeboat trail, from Port Renfrew to Bamfield, will be difficult because of the large number of Indian reservations, private holdings and timber operations in the area.

Salvador, Honduras Hostilities Erupt

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Hostilities broke out again between Honduras and El Salvador Thursday. Each claimed the other started the shooting. The two governments suspended peace talks in Costa Rica at which they had been trying to ease the aftermath of their 100-hour war last July.

Honduras said a "considerable number" of dead Salvadoreans were left in Honduran territory. El Salvador's defence minister, Gen. Fidel Torres, said he was waiting for casualty reports from the front.

El Salvador, smallest Spanish-speaking nation in the Western Hemisphere, claimed Honduran planes violated Salvadorean air space and then Honduran troops and armed civilians crossed the poorly-defined border. El Salvador said its troops repulsed the invaders after a three-hour battle.

Honduras said the first attack was made by 100 Salvadorean ground troops around dawn, and five hours later Salvadorean planes bombed two villages. The Honduran foreign ministry said that after a battle of several hours, the Salvadorean troops "were defeated, leaving behind a considerable number of guardsmen dead in Honduran territory."

Armed conflict along the border has been common since July, but Thursday's appeared to be the most serious since a ceasefire was declared July 18.

9 Killed In India

CHANDIGARH (Reuters) — Police shot and killed nine persons and the army was put on the alert in Haryana state in north India today amid mounting violence.

Four persons died when police opened fire on an enraged crowd who tried to set fire to a passenger train at Rewari, 70 miles south of New Delhi.

In Sonepat, about 50 miles north of Delhi, five persons were shot and killed and demonstrators burned down the houses of two Congress party members of Parliament.

Haryana was gripped by a general strike to protest the government's decision to award the disputed capital city of Chandigarh to the Sikh—majority state of Punjab. The two states had the capital, which was designed by French architect Le Corbusier, since Hindu Haryana was carved out of the Pubjab three years ago.

In the Sikh holy city of Amritsar, Sant Fateh Singh today broke his four-day fast over the fate of Chandigarh. The 60-year-old Sant had threatened to fast until Sunday and then burn himself to death if the city were not given to Punjab.

'Most Fearsome' Bombs Being Developed by U.S.

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States disclosed today its nuclear weapons experts have lately been testing "new weapons concepts" conceivably dealing with such bizarre weapons as the laser bomb, the neutron bomb and the "pure fusion" hydrogen bomb.

But the government also revealed there would be some delay in completing expanded facilities for producing some of its most modern present weapons—including warheads for the Safeguard anti-ballistic missile system.

The Atomic Energy Commission told about both projects in its annual report to Congress.

The commission gave no details about the new weapons concepts.

FREE OF FALLOUT

But AEC weapons official have previously disclosed to The Associated Press that:

—The United States is trying to develop "pure fusion weapons"—that is, hydrogen bombs and missile-warheads that would not require an A-bomb fission trigger and would therefore be free of radioactive fallout.

—The AEC also is still trying to develop the fearsome "neutron bomb," which has been described as a kind of death-ray weapon.

—Commission scientists maintain a new kind of hydrogen bomb—a "laser bomb"—is a theoretical possibility, but a highly remote one.

A laser bomb would be an H-bomb in which the intense heat of a laser beam—perhaps the most powerful and concentrated form of light in the universe — would be used to trigger the hydrogen explosives, instead of the A-bomb trigger now required.

The AEC told about the "evaluation and testing" of the feasibility of the new weapons concepts in the "nuclear defence effort" section of its report which also covered the status of peaceful-uses area of atomic energy.

PM DUCKS

Pot 'Shot' at Munro

Health Minister John Munro's suggestion that if a substantial proportion of Canadians are found to be smoking marijuana it should be legalized was questioned in the federal House of Commons and attacked in the B.C. Legislature Thursday.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) asked Prime Minister Trudeau if Munro's suggestion during a taped television show was a statement of government policy "and if so, may I ask what is meant by reasonable minority."

"Mr. Speaker, I am informed by the minister that he stated nothing of the kind," replied Trudeau.

At a Wednesday night taping of the Under Attack show Muhnro said "if we find that a significant minority of the Canadian people smoke marijuana we would be totally irresponsible if we didn't legalize it."

But he cautioned that he "would not really expect it to be legalized in the near future."

Minister without Portfolio Grace McCarthy told the legislature here Munro's attitude was "unbelievable" and Premier Bennett chimed in:

"That's like saying that if theft is widespread, you should legalize it."

"I charge the minister with complete irresponsibility," Mrs. McCarthy said.

She said Munro's words "give credence to the school of thought that drug-taking is no more harmful than drinking" and are a "disservice to children."

Such statements could lead to "an open invitation to every pusher in the United States" to come to Canada if it were to become known as "a drug haven."

She said the legalization of marijuana would increase

Wallace Outlines Stand To Delight of Backbenchers

Enthusiastic desk-thumping from Social Credit backbenchers greeted Dr. Scott Wallace (SC—Oak Bay) in the legislature Thursday as he set out his personal position within the party.

Wallace said he is a supporter of the Social Credit party because it most closely represents his political views but added:

"It should certainly be clearly understood that I would not remain passive to see any new progressive policies I might offer sacrificed on the altar of party unity.

"It should be made clear that I do not consider party loyalty synonymous with blind allegiance."

Wallace also said, in a reply to an NDP interjection, that he hasn't promised to vote with the government on every issue—"I've made no such obligation."

The Oak Bay MLA made clear his unwavering opposition to socialism.

"If the members of the socialist parties in this House are licking their lips in anticipation of the differences I may have within my own party, these are but skirmishes compared to the battle royal I hope to have against the avowed proponents of socialism and against those deceivers who espouse socialism while masquerading under a different label."

Speaker William Murray intervened at this point to ask Wallace to withdraw the word "deceivers" which he did with apologies.

Wallace said it would be "ridiculous" to suggest a politician should agree with everything his party says just as it would be to suggest a man should agree with everything his wife says.

'Utter Hogwash'

A claim that the B.C. Medical Association is stifling the free speech of its members was described in the legislature Thursday as "utter hogwash" by Dr. Scott Wallace (SC—Oak Bay).

"Any doctor who does not communicate with the news media, does not do so because of any interference by the medical association but from his own personal choice, usually because he is uncertain from past experience that his views will be accurately represented," Wallace said.

He said Barrie Clark (L—North Vancouver-Seymour) is not only a "hot-line expert but a hot air expert" for suggesting that doctors should be advising patients where they can find "known abortionists."

He said Clark, a hot-line radio moderator, was in effect criticizing doctors for not advising patients how to violate the ciminal code of Canada, Wallace said.

Clark raised the matter in the legislature Wednesday when he said the public was being prevented from learning the views of doctors on important issues because of the medical association.

COVERAGE REVIEW ORDERED

A special legislative committee set up to study automobile insurance will examine whether the provincial government's accident benefits coverage should continue to apply to public motor carriers.

This was set out in notice of a motion by Attorney-General Leslie Peterson to set up the committee which will also study costs of automobile insurance premiums.

Motor carriers such as buses and taxis are currently required to carry the accident benefits coverage, as are all private vehicles.

The committee will also study whether to bring into force a section of the act which would prohibit law suits for property damages in excess of $250.

This is the provision which Peterson last year said would result in a reduction of insurance premiums but critics of the move have pointed out it would force motorists to buy expensive collision coverage to protect themselves against damages above $250.

Job Totals 'Meaningless;' Dailly Blasts Gaglardi

Eileen Dailly, deputy leader of the NDP, Thursday blasted Social Welfare Minister Phil Gaglardi and his Alliance of Businessmen.

The MLA for Burnaby North noted in her reply to the throne speech thaat Gaglardi had only devoted four minutes of his 40-minute speech Wednesday to welfare, and she called figures he had given of the number of job placements by the alliance "almost meaningless."

Mrs. Dailly charged that Gaglardi had suggested a staff reduction in the department of social welfare, yet had not suggested a reduction in staff of the alliance which, she said, "is a place where the minister can and had practised political patronage."

The MLA said that figures Gaglardi gave of 1,150 job placements left many questions unanswered. "In what line of employment were they placed and at what salary? Were they temporary jobs at low salaries or permanent jobs at union rates?" she asked.

●

"None of this was given to us."

Only 350 of the placements were of people unemployed, she added. "As there were more than 30,000 employable persons receiving social welfare, a one per cent placement is hardly in keeping with the minister's grand statement on how he was going to reduce drastically the number of employable on welfare."

She said she hoped Gaglardi would announce the inclusion of rehabilitation and job placement in the department and "the abolition of the Alliance of Businessmen."

Mrs. Dailly said she had heard a great deal of talk about the slogans of the Social Credit government — "the good life" and "the rounded life" — but for many sectors of society it is an "empty" life.

She said those on welfare are demoralized and have no dignity or hope, and that the government has done little to relieve them.

●

Mrs. Dailly said there is a need for the establishment of a forensic clinic by the government, and urged stronger enforcement of laws protecting deserted families.

The deputy leader said that the day after seven-year-old Evangeline Azaercon was discovered missing, in Vancouver she heard police were rounding up all known sexual offenders. "If these offenders are known to the authorities," she said, "what is being done about them? Why has no attempt been made to treat them?"

Turning to another subject, Mrs. Daily said the government has yet to realize that housing is as essential a social service as hospitalization and medicare.

Strong government action is needed, she suggested, in the provision of land banks, the establishment of a housing authority, and in the injection of funds into housing.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, JANUARY 30, 1970 —PAGE 17

GETTING TOO FRILLY for their taste, Victoria Labor Council asks that the city stop dressing up Beacon Hill Park. They say it's becoming more a garden than a park. Too much blacktop, they say—but the swans don't seem to mind. They perch on it on a chilly morning.

TOO MUCH 'DIGGING UP'

Flower Overpower at Beacon Hill?

A moratorium on development of Beacon Hill Park was urged by officers of Victoria Labor Council in a meeting with Mayor Courtney Haddock.

Concerned about the "erosion of park area in the city," the VLC group suggested there had been a great deal of "digging up" recently at Beacon Hill.

•

"It is becoming more of a garden than a park," said council secretary-treasurer Larry Ryan. "They should lay off and give the park a chance. There's a lot of blacktop going into it."

The delegation, which included vice-president John Schibli and president Jack Groves, noted the development of Central Park to include a new swimming pool, which shrinks the area available for lawns, trees and play.

It was suggested that the sites of Beacon Hill and South Park schools, on Douglas Street adjoining Beacon Hill Park, be reserved for park use when the schools are closed.

As for existing park development, it was suggested that if work was reduced in Beacon Hill it might be expanded in places like Thetis Lake Park.

VLC is also "apalled" over the construction of a large high-rise apartment building on Michigan Street, which has "obliterated a priceless view on Douglas Street."

•

Ryan said the city should devote more attention to regulation of apartment construction, including height zoning and the type of construction proposed by developers, who are allowed to "obliterate views in perpetuity. "We think council should exercise more control over these things. It seems to be getting out of hand.

"I don't believe it was realized what damage this (Michigan high-rise) was going to do," he said.

The delegation also sought the mayor's support for a suggested amendment to the licensing bylaw to require bonding of contractors to protect the public from exploitation by door-to-door repairmen, unqualified tradesmen and fly-by-night operators.

•

Also discussed at the Wednesday meeting were expansion of downtown library facilities by acquiring adjacent property, a review of the special grants system, terms of reference of an industrial commission, support for a harbor commission, leasing of important land parcels rather than outright sale, and projected plans for Broad Street.

Cost of Schools Climbs to $23M

Trustees approved a budget of almost $23 million Thursday night to operate the Greater Victoria school system this year.

School board chairman Carron Jameson said today his guess is the budget will produce about a three-mill tax increase. That could mean another $10 to $20 on the average taxpayer's bill.

The school board budget of $22,959,252 falls just within the limit set by a complicated government grant formula. Spending above the limit could have led to a referendum.

INCREASE OF 13 PER CENT

This year's spending, which still requires department of education approval, is up 13.3 per cent over the 1969 budget of $20.26 million. It is almost double the operating budget five years ago.

Major item is teachers' salaries—$13.43 million. Paying off principal and interest on earlier capital spending will cost $2.45 million.

Trustees continued their squirming under the government's squeeze on education funds.

"We're just holding our own," said Jameson of the budget. And that probably wouldn't be possible if the number of new students wasn't dropping.

ALMOST 33,000 PUPILS

The district anticipates 550 more pupils in September. Two or three years ago enrolment was climbing by 1,000 or more annually. There will be close to 33,000 pupils and 1,400 teachers in the fall.

Peter Bunn, chairman of the school board's building and grounds commitee and former board chairman, expressed disgust today over having to haggle with the government on such things as library shelves.

"This is sort of cave-man education, isn't it?

"We are hardly doing more than standing still. We may make a tiptoe forward but we sure as hell aren't making the first stride."

REFERENDUM POSSIBLE

A capital spending referendum may be put to the voters later this year, to cover such items as book shelves and other furniture formerly included in the operating budget.

Among other major budget items:

- $657,732 to operate the Institute of Adult Studies.
- $311,330 for the board's evening education program.
- $920,674 for administration.
- $73,000 for transportation.

A total of $1.12 million was approved for building repairs and maintenance, but not before $184,254 was pared from the preliminary estimates.

'WAIT AND SEE' SAYS OLAFSON

Ald. Harold Olafson said this morning he is prepared to take a "wait-and-see" attitude on Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock's streamlined administration.

He was the only alderman available for comment this morning as the first "board of management" meeting was held at city hall.

Haddock announced his administrative shakeup plans Thursday morning.

Following the announcement, Ald Hugh Ramsay said he supported the move.

Ramsay stressed that his own business — farm and construction equipment—operated in a similar way and that he saw no reason why city hall could not be run by the same management stream system.

Haddock's plan calls for a board of management comprised of department heads, an executive group comprised of the city manager, the city planner, the treasurer and engineer, and a board of governors or city council.

This morning's meeting of the management board will see all department heads outlining their duties to members of council.

All "board of management" and "executive directors" meetings will be closed to the press.

Total Pool Cost To Top Budget

The total cost of the new swimming pool and community centre in Gordon Head will exceed the amount budgeted in the 1967 Saanich recreation referendum.

This was disclosed at a meeting of the Gordon Head Community Centre Committee Thursday, even though the construction cost is $33,000 below the estimate.

Committee chairman Ald. Alan Newberry said, however, that this is not unusual and that it happened on two earlier recreation projects, the George R. Pearkes Arena and the Saanich Senior Citizens Activity Centre.

The committee will recommend to this Monday's council meeting that the low bid of $401,384 from E. J. Hunter and Sons Limited be accepted.

Municipal comptroller-treasurer John Tribe told the committee that the total cost of the project includes:

Construction, $401,384; architects and consultants fees, $32,000; site preparation, driveway, lighting, landscaping and sewer connection, $40,600; various interior furnishings, $30,000; for a total of $503,984.

The 1967 recreation referendum provided $470,000 for the project.

Tribe said an additional $30,000 was provided in the provisional municipal budget for 1970 and the committee recommended that council approve this expenditure for the project.

The committee was told that if council approves the contract recommendation Monday it could be signed Tuesday and E. J. Hunter and Sons Limited would be ready to start work immediately.

Completion date was estimated at Sept. 15.

'BUNCH OF NONSENSE'

Radical Red Power Denied by Students

A radical, militant red power group that rejects its elders and advocates violence is definitely not being established in Victoria, a group of young Indian organizers claimed today.

Bill Wilson, Larry Seymour and Ron Hamilton were responding to a story in Thursday's Times which suggested the atmosphere at a meeting of 150 native youth Wednesday at the Institute of Adult Studies was hostile, anti-white and militant.

The story, which quoted as its source an unidentified Indian student who allegedly attended the meeting, reported the ejection of a Times reporter, jostling of a white teacher, and claimed native youth at the meeting rejected their chiefs.

It further claimed that at a second, more agressive meeting, some participants advocated "kicking out a few windows."

The story was a distortion of the facts, charged Wilson, a fourth-year political science student at the University of Victoria.

He was erroneously identified in the story as being elected president of a new organization formed at the meeting.

FAR FROM HOSTILE

"But there was definitely no organization formed and I certainly wasn't elected to any position," he said.

Wilson is president of the National Native Student Association of Canada, a body formed some time ago.

He said the atmosphere at the meeting was constructive and far from hostile—a creative session in which ideas were freely kicked back and forth.

Seymour, who was named in the story as being involved in the ejection of the reporter, said the incident was misrepresented.

"I told her she'd have to wait until there was a group decision, that she might not be permitted to stay," Seymour said.

"There was a vote and the majority decided to let everybody who wanted to stay at the meeting and observe. She didn't stick around long enought to find that out."

'GET OUT, WOMAN'

Pat Dufour, the Times reporter, said today Seymour did not indicate she might be permitted to stay for the meeting.

When she identified herself to Seymour before the meeting and said she would like to attend, he told her "Why should we have you here?"

"Get out, woman," he told her after suggesting the press had never done anything to benefit Indians.

Seymour then said the people at the meeting would probably take a vote to see whether "any outsiders" would be permitted to attend. But, thinking she was not to be included among those, Mrs. Dufour left.

Seymour said no white teachers were intimidated, and none were told they could attend the meeting if they would "sit down and shut up."

Gail Roach, a white counsellor at the Institute of Adult Studies, corroborated Seymour's statement.

"There was no intimidation of white teachers," she said.

"Their discussion on the point as to whether outsiders should be there was highly valid, and they did vote to let us stay.

"I felt no animosity."

She charged reports that a teacher with a camera was hassled by 10 Indian students was "highly inaccurate."

'VERY ORDERLY'

"The only person who approached him was me. I told him he should ask the kids before he took any pictures."

Jack Kempster, the teacher who was allegedly intimidated, said no such incident took place.

"The allegation that I was intimidated is a bunch of nonsense," he said.

"Hamilton asked me to come to the meeting and take some pictures, then Seymour asked me to explain to the meeting who I was and what I was doing. It was all very orderly, and there was nothing out of place whatsoever."

NO REPUDIATION

Hamilton, also a student at Adult Studies, said he objected strongly to suggestion in the story that the meeting was militant, led to proposals of violence, and that participants rejected their elders.

"There was no statement made about kicking out windows or anything like it. The atmosphere was definitely not militant, but positive, and a statement of support for the Union of B.C. Chiefs," he said.

"We did not at any time repudiate our chiefs. That was the farthest thing from our minds."

He said the whole purpose of the meeting was simply to lay some groundwork for a possible province-wide native youth organization in the future.

THE WHOLE POINT

And the whole point of such an organization, he said, would be to solidly back the chiefs, to establish communication between B.C. Indian communities and then work towards real group solidarity.

"It doesn't matter how old you are, you're still an Indian," said Wilson.

Hamilton stressed that Wednesday's meeting never intended to establish such a body overnight.

"This was just to establish a degree of social and political awareness among Indian youth," he said.

"We know what we want, something more meaningful that what is."

ASK THE TIMES

Q. What was the highest score ever recorded in a rugby match, and what teams were competing? H.G.

A. Several scores of more than 100 points have been recorded, says the Guiness Book of Records, but the highest total came when Radford School thumped Hills Court 176-0 in 1886. The score is arrived at by changing the 31 goals (converted trys) and seven trys to modern scoring values of three points for trys and penalties, two points for conversions. Highest score in a tour match was recorded in 1962 when New Zealand All Blacks crushed Northern New South Wales, Australia 103-0, and the highest international score came in 1924 when France beat Romania 59-0.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Last Chance for Park

Property owners in Langford, Colwood and Metchosin will vote Saturday in a referendum to acquire a 77-acre park.

It would be only the second local public park — proposed for outdoor sports — in the unorganized area where 20,000 people live.

To succeed, explained returning officer Mrs. Mary Colclough, there must be 60 per cent or better voters in each of the three areas.

The potential park site is the old Colwood racetrack property owned by the federal government which is willing to sell it for park purposes for $2,000 an acre, or $154,000.

This is less than half the price it would sell for as a development and one warning has been issued that it will fall to developers unless the public purchases the land.

Richard Emery, the Colwood representative on the Capital Regional Board, has said that failure of the referendum will mean private speculators will get the last large potential recreational area in the district.

Polls will be open between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. this Saturday at these locations:

Colwood — Sangster Elementary School, Colwood Elementary School;

Langford — Belmont Secondary School, Happy Valley Elementary School, Langford Elementary School, Millstream Elementary School, Glen Lake Elementary School;

Metchosin — Metchosin Elementary School.

Arthur Mayse . . .

OVER IN WICKED VANCOUVER, Provincial Judge Les Bewley has raised a ripple by suggesting that holdups might become fewer if armed heisters knew their victims were equipped to shoot back. It's an interesting opinion, even though lawmen aren't likely to thank the judge for it. And under certain highly-specialized circumstances, it could make armed robbery an unpopular occupation.

★

A few years ago in Chicago, a handgun artist of high repute concluded a trick-shooting display ordered up by an outdoorsmen's club. Then he and his wife strolled to the hotel parking garage where their car was stabled As they stepped out of the self-service elevator, they glimpsed shadowy figures moving in on them from the depths of the ill-lighted cavern.

The exhibition shooter, who knew a gang when he saw one, opened his gun case and slipped loaded clips into each of his .22 automatics.

He faced the zip-gunners, switchblade wielders and bycycle-chain-swingers with a pistol in each hand, and ordered them to drop their weapons. Instead, they rushed him.

Our guy then slipped both safeties and opened fire, though not to kill. His targets were knees and ankles, and he popped them on the wing. The ruckus ended before it had well begun.

That was a specialized circumstance. First, the intended victim was a practised and highly-skilled pistoleer, with the steely nerve of a frontier sheriff. Second, he had advance warning of trouble on the way.

★

In the typical holdup attempt, the citizen lacks these advantages. For one thing, he is taken by surprise. For another, he is justifiably frightened. And for a third, even were he armed, he probably couln't get his gun into action in less than five seconds.

Further, if he were allowed that much time, it's doubtful that he could hit a bull's behind at three paces.

If free-and-easy gun toting caused a drop in crimes of violence, the fact would surely be apparent in the United States. In many of those states, possession and carrying of handguns has never been unduly restricted, and in the last few years, such weapons have multiplied.

★

So have the very crimes that the gun bought for self-defence is supposed to protect against.

American writer Philip Wylie had something to say about this rush to arms not long ago.

He pointed out that the fear behind it was doing his countrymen more harm than the violence which inspired that fear.

Wise words, and they deserve to be heeded.

I'm not against guns, either long or short, in legitimate use. As a matter of fact, since even the smallest rifle is awkward for a man with a fishing-rod in his other hand to carry, I wouldn't mind being able to take a lightweight plinking revolver along on wild country jaunts.

But I don't want that privilege badly enough to support a change in our strict laws that govern both the possession and the carring of handguns, and I disagree entirely with the judge's suggestion.

Once in Vancouver, I was assigned to interview a middle aged storekeeper who was recovering in hospital from a holdup. He had been struck on the head with a gun-butt, then beaten. He couldn't be shaved, because his face was one raw abrasion, and that bothered him.

★

Among other stupid questions, I asked him if he kept a gun in his corner grocery.

His wife, who sat weeping beside him, answered for him.

"No," she said. "And even if he did, he'd never try to use it."

Her courage was the sort that Philip Wylie urged on his people. It was the courage of the non-violent, and in some future millenium, perhaps it will prevail.

Until it does, those not given to violence require much more far-reaching protection from the armed, violent thief than they are receiving.

★

The penalties provided for those who commit such crimes are by no means lenient as they stand. I doubt that making them tougher would serve a useful purpose. It's possible, however, that more money spent on reclamation and rehabilitation programs might.

We could help ourselves as well by doing what I urged earlier this week — spending to ensure that our police forces are as well-equipped for crime prevention and crime control as they can possibly be.

But far more effective in the long run might be a determined attempt to clean up the environments and conditions that produce the armed criminal.

That can't be done with a gun!

$1.6 BILLION PIPELINE

Alaska Oil May Cross B.C.

JUST A PREVIEW. Next week helicopters, both private and those from the Canadian Forces search and rescue branch, will be putting down at either Lansdowne Junior high school or a field near Jubilee Hospital with 66 retarded children, complete with attendants and nurses, to be airlifted from Woodlands School on the mainland to the new Eric Martin Institute. It is hoped to complete the transfer in one day. (Robin Clarke photo).

VANCOUVER (CP)—Public Works Minister Arthur Laing says Canada is in line to pick up a $1,600,000,000 contract for oil pipelines from Alaska to the rest of the United States.

"I spoke to my very good friend Walter J. Hickel, U. S. Secretary of the Interior, and he told me the overland oil pipeline route from Alaska to United States proper is the best route for transferring oil," Mr. Laing said Thursday.

Speaking at a banquet here on the opening of the Anvil Mine in the Yukon Territory, he said the overland pipeline through Canada is a "definite possibility."

Mr. Laing said the recently-tested Northwest Passage route is not suitable for year-round traffic by oil tankers.

"There are 100 mile-an-hour winds blowing there in the winter. Coupled with ice problems, they make it impossible for ships to travel that route year-round."

He said the $1,600,000,000 figure represents what the U.S. would spend on pipelines which would "probably be located through British Columbia and Alberta if they are given the go-ahead."

The 215,000-ton bulk oil carrier Manhattan ran into heavy ice on a trial run through the Northwest Passage last September in an attempt to establish a safe sea route from Alaskan oil fields.

Mr. Laing also predicted a boom for the Canadian Prairies.

"They're sitting on a fortune in energy-producing materials.

"I'm not saying the Prairies will export their natural resources. I'm saying that industry, from the United States and other countries, will come to them."

TYPHOID OUTBREAK COST LINE $520,000

LONDON (Reuters) — The cost of the typhoid outbreak on board the P. & O. liner Oronsay probably will exceed $520,000, a company spokesman said today.

The spokesman explained the daily cost of keeping the Oronsay in Vancouver was $20,800. For the last two weeks there also was a $26-a-head hotel bill each day for 123 persons waiting to join the ship when it sails.

The name of the typhoid carrier would not be released, the spokesman said, but confirmed he was a male member of the crew who now is in hospital.

Housing Jump Seen

Times News Services

OTTAWA—The government was asked for confirmation today of a report that low-income housing will be substantially expanded this year.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto-Greenwood) also asked whether there would be an announcement soon that public housing rents will be reduced.

He was told the questions will be passed on to Robert Andras, minister responsible for housing, who was absent.

The questions followed predictions by Toronto's Globe and Mail that Andras will announce Monday orders to Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to pump $550 million into low-rent projects this year.

$150 MILLION

The money, an increase of more than $150,000,000 over the federal commitment last year to low-income housing, will come from a total CMHC budget of $850,000,000, the newspaper says.

The government apparently will increase its effort to expand the housing stock for low-income people, but make no additional money available above the amount spent last year for loans for student housing projects and land assembly for housing development, or for direct loans for mortgages to individual home buyers, it says.

The newspaper says new low income housing starts in the coming year will almost double the number of such units—19,000 built in 1968.

RATE CUT

The paper says some of the $550,000,000 will be lent at reduced rates to builders for limited-dividend projects which they will rent at rates limiting their return on investment.

Meanwhile a resolution supporting voluntary restraint against raising the selling prices of factory-built homes in 1970 was adopted unanimously Thursday by the Canadian Home Manufacturers Association, concluding a two-day convention here.

Marcos Palace Under Siege; 20 Wounded

MANILA (UPI) — Anti-government students smashed down the gate of the Philippine White House with a commandeered fire truck in a night of rioting and bloodshed that raged into the early hours of this morning and spread to downtown Manila.

At least two persons were killed and 20 or more wounded by gun shots, police said. A check of Manila hospitals showed at least 100 others were injured by flying rocks or police clubs.

Armed forces chief Gen. Manuel Yan took control of more than 1,000 police and troops fighting the rioters and said "no less than 100 persons were arrested."

Riot police swinging their clubs from behind wicker shields repulsed a mob of more than 3,000 students besieging Malcanag Palace, the residence of President Ferdinand Marcos, after two hours of fighting Friday night.

But scattered battles raged on and several police trucks and jeeps were burned in a five square block area near the palace. Sniper fire was heard.

There were reports of looting, vandalism and burned cars in downtown Manila more than a mile from the palace.

The rioting flared during a demonstration called to protest alleged police brutality and to demand that politicians stay out of next year's constitutional convention.

At a similar demonstration last Monday rioters hurled sticks and rocks at Marcos' car as he was leaving the halls of Congress after delivering his annual state of the union message.

Marcos was reported inside the old Spanish palace throughout the battle. His press secretary, Francisco Tadad, issued a statement blaming the riot on "subversive elements" and taking Manila Mayor Antonio J. Villegas to task for allegedly refusing to maintain law and order.

The violence erupted when members of the left-wing Nationalist Youth Group and other militant organizations joined the protest group.

The demonstrators attacked the palace, climbing trees and walls. They used poles, slingshots and rocks to smash all the lamps along the street and several windows of buildings

14 POLICEMEN INJURED

Hayakawa Target of Rocks

BOSTON (AP) — Police with nightsticks twice routed some 200 rock-throwing militants who attempted to prevent a speech by S. I. Hayakawa, president of San Francisco State College, Thursday night at Northeastern University.

The demonstrators, waving Viet Cong flags and shouting obscenities, left the auditorium littered with glass from broken windows. Rocks smashed windows in other university buildings.

Thirty-one demonstrators were arrested; 14 policemen were treated at hospitals for minor injuries.

Hayakawa, who took a hard line with demonstrators at his college last year, endured steady heckling from militants in his audience of 1,300. He was shouted down frequently, and interrupted by others telling the hecklers to "shut up."

Police said many of the demonstrators were non-students who participated in earlier disturbances at Boston University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Hayakawa, speaking in the university's distinguished lecture series, departed from his text at one point to recall that in the 1930s "the brownshirts (Nazis) in Germany would go through colleges throwing out professors and disrupting learning.

"It was the brown-shirted youth then; today it is the SDS (Students for a Democratic Society)."

Shattered Glass, Nerves Follow Sonic Boom Battle

From AP-Reuters

Israeli planes damaged Egyptian oil installations in the Suez canal area Thursday and fought a duel of sonic booms with Syria late into the night.

Egypt said one civilian employee of its oil company was killed and 11 were wounded in the attack on the refinery at the southern end of the canal but did not say how much damage was done to equipment.

Lots of broken windows and frayed nerves resulted from the sonic duel.

It was the first attack on the Egyptian refinery since Israeli shelling in October, 1967, destroyed a large part of the plant.

WINDOWS SHATTERED

Syria began the Battle of the Bangs Thursday afternoon when a lone MiG-21 flew over Israel's chief port, Haifa. The Israeli military command said it did not bomb or strafe, but the sonic boom it created shattered hundreds of windows and caused a flood of phone calls to police stations. The plane escaped back to Syria.

Hundreds of people rushed out into the streets of Haifa, but there were no reports of panic and most people believed the plane was Israeli until they heard the news.

An hour later, an Israeli plane roared over Damascus and took a toll of windows there. Then after midnight Israeli planes flew over Damascus and four other cities in the north, Hamma, Homs, Latakia and Aleppo, Syria's second largest city, the Israelis reported.

A military spokesman in Damascus said the sonic raids in the middle of the night broke many windows but caused no injuries.

There also was a sonic boom over the biblical Lebanese port of Tyre near the Israeli border Thursday night, but no one seemed to know whose plane caused it.

The buzzing came after another day of intense Israeli air activity in which jets struck into Jordan Arab guerrilla positions and also at Egyptian military targets in the Suez area.

Long Beach First Goal

The provincial government isn't backing out of a deal with Ottawa to acquire land for a 35-mile-long national park on the lifeboat trail and the Effingham Islands, Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan said Thursday.

But the province won't move on land acquisition until Long Beach Park itself is dedicated, he said in an interview.

"We are giving first priority to the Long Beach area where there are already large areas of provincial and federal land assembled, and we have said we will make no further alienations or negotiations to acquire more land in the other areas in the meantime," Kiernan said.

The proposed 65-mile-long national marine park including the trail, the Effingham Islands at the entrance to Barkley Sound and Long Beach, was authorized by legislation passed last year.

1971 DEDICATION

The province hopes the first stage, Long Beach, will be dedicated as a national park in 1971.

Kiernan said the federal government realizes it would be impractical to build up all three parts of the park at the same time.

But he warned that acquisition of land along the lifeboat trail, from Port Renfrew to Bamfield, will be difficult because of the large number of Indian reservations, private holdings and timber operations in the area.

Salvador, Honduras Hostilities Erupt

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Hostilities broke out again between Honduras and El Salvador Thursday. Each claimed the other started the shooting. The two governments suspended peace talks in Costa Rica at which they had been trying to ease the aftermath of their 100-hour war last July.

Honduras said a "considerable number" of dead Salvadoreans were left in Honduran territory. El Salvador's defence minister, Gen. Fidel Torres, said he was waiting for casualty reports from the front.

El Salvador, smallest Spanish-speaking nation in the Western Hemisphere, claimed Honduran planes violated Salvadorean air space and then Honduran troops and armed civilians crossed the poorly-defined border. El Salvador said its troops repulsed the invaders after a three-hour battle.

PM DUCKS

Pot 'Shot' at Munro

Health Minister John Munro's suggestion that if a substantial proportion of Canadians are found to be smoking marijuana it should be legalized was questioned in the House of Commons and attacked in the B.C. Legislature Thursday.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) asked Prime Minister Trudeau if Munro's suggestion during a taped television show was a statement of government policy "and if so, may I ask what is meant by reasonable minority."

"Mr. Speaker, I am informed by the minister that he stated nothing of the kind," replied Trudeau.

At a Wednesday night taping of the Under Attack show Munro said "if we find that a significant minority of the Canadian people smoke marijuana we would be totally irresponsible if we didn't legalize it."

But he cautioned that he "would not really expect it to be legalized in the near future."

Minister without Portfolio Grace McCarthy told the legislature here Munro's attitude was "unbelievable" and Premier Bennett chimed in:

"That's like saying that if theft is widespread, you should legalize it."

"I charge the minister with complete irresponsibility," Mrs. McCarthy said.

She said Munro's words "give credence to the school of thought that drug-taking is no more harmful than drinking" and are a "disservice to children."

Such statements could lead to "an open invitation to every pusher in the United States" to come to Canada if it were to become known as "a drug haven."

She said the legalization of marijuana would increase

9 Killed In India

CHANDIGARH (Reuters) — Police shot and killed nine persons and the army was put on the alert in Haryana state in north India today amid mounting violence.

Four persons died when police opened fire on an enraged crowd who tried to set fire to a passenger train at Rewari, 70 miles south of New Delhi.

'Most Fearsome' Bombs Being Developed by U.S.

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States disclosed today its nuclear weapons experts have lately been testing "new weapons concepts" conceivably dealing with such bizarre weapons as the laser bomb, the neutron bomb and the "pure fusion" hydrogen bomb.

But the government also revealed there would be some delay in completing expanded facilities for producing some of its most modern present weapons—including warheads for the Safeguard anti-ballistic missile system.

The Atomic Energy Commission told about both projects in its annual report to Congress.

The commission gave no details about the new weapons concepts.

FREE OF FALLOUT

But AEC weapons official have previously disclosed to The Associated Press that:

—The United States is trying to develop "pure fusion weapons"—that is, hydrogen bombs and missile-warheads that would not require an A-bomb fission trigger and would therefore be free of radioactive fallout.

—The AEC also is still trying to develop the fearsome "neutron bomb," which has been described as a kind of death-ray weapon.

—Commission scientists maintain a new kind of hydrogen bomb—a "laser bomb"—is a theoretical possibility, but a highly remote one.

A laser bomb would be an H-bomb in which the intense heat of a laser beam—perhaps the most powerful and concentrated form of light in the universe — would be used to trigger the hydrogen explosives, instead of the A-bomb trigger now required.

The AEC told about the "evaluation and testing" of the feasibility of the new weapons concepts in the "nuclear defence effort" section of its report which also covered the status of peaceful-uses area of atomic energy.
